BECAUSE HER NOSE WAS SHINY.

WALT MASON

I was told of a husband recently who took his wife's best friend aside and with much mystifying preliminary asked her if she would do him a very special favor.

"Is that all?" Would she tell his wife that her nose was shiny and suggest she powder it?

"Is that all?" said the astonished confidante. "For Heaven's sake why didn't you tell her that yourself?"

"I don't dare to," confessed the husband. "She would say I never used to think her nose was shiny, and she'd ask how long I had noticed it, and if that was why I hadn't seemed to enjoy dancing with her lately, and she'd brood over it and begin to wonder if I loved her as much as I used to."

Two Sexes React Differently.

Now maybe the husband exaggerated. I don't know. But I certainly recognize the general outlines of a type of wife or husband who cannot stand the slightest criticism from his or her mate.

This is not, you understand, an essentially feminine weakness. Both sexes show it, though the reactions are different. The wife is aggrieved, whereas the husband is made angry. For the wife, with ten thousand generations of dependant women behind her, instinctively fears the loss of love. Whereas, the husband with ten thousand generations of dominant males behind him, instinctively resents an attitude varying ever so slightly from the all admiring.

And yet what is one to do? Throw two people together and no matter how genuinely and deeply they love one another there will be little surface things which grate. As the feminist writer, Mr. George, so ably puts it:

So Many of These Cruel Little Things
"There are scores of these little cruel things which wear away love. The dilemma is horrible; if the offended party speaks out he or she may raise this sort of thought: 'He didn't seem to mind when we were engaged, he loved me then and little things didn't matter. He doesn't love me now. I wonder whether he is in love with someone else. Oh dear, I'm so unhappy.' If, on the other hand, one does not speak out the offender goes on doing it for the rest of his or her life and there is nothing to do except to wait until one has gotten used to it and has ceased to care. But by that time one has generally ceased to care for the offender."

"Leta."

Mr. George apparently sees no way out of the dilemma since he thinks that the marriage in which both recognize this difficulty and are willing to accept mutual criticism is "a little callous." Mr. Stevenson, on the other hand, happily does and ends one of his beautiful essays on the eternal subject with this helpful sentence:

"Nay, you will be wisely glad that you retained the sense of blemishes; for the faults of married people continually spur up each of them hour by hour to do better and to meet and love upon a higher ground."

As I open my book to copy this passage I find that beside it is written "Leta."

Making Liquor Respectable.

A movement to offset the activities of the prohibition party, which is becoming powerful in the State of New South Wales, has been launched by a group of citizens. The purpose is to reduce some of the evil aspects of the liquor traffic rather than to do away with liquor entirely. The group has taken the name of Citizens' Rights and Liquor Reform Association, and its program calls for agitation for the reduction of the alcoholic content of liquors; to cause the cancellation of licenses of unscrupulous proprietors; to eliminate undesirable hotels, and to have legislation enacted providing that every licensed hotel shall be in reality a place of public accommodation and of reputable social entertainment.

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE.
I like to see the juices in a scarlet flood and sweet.
I don't want my strawberry shortcake standing stiff and prim and neat.
Cut precisely to a measure like a church's corner stone.
Let the men who want it that way claim my portion for their own.
I don't like the market shortcake that is sold for sordid pelf.
I want the sweet and luscious kind the missus makes herself.

The hotel chef is fancy, he may trim it up with cream.
And may think it look enticing, but there's nothing to the scheme.
He may have it gay with berries, but but his art has gone to waste.
Though his work may look like shortcake it has lost the real taste.
So I leave that pretty mixture on the hotel kitchen shelf.
And wait the juicy product that the missus makes herself.

I want the strawberry shortcake that has caught the breath of spring.
It may not be much to look at, but I tell you, it's the thing.
Let me have the crimson berries crushed and swimming in the dish.
And I've got a piece of shortcake for which all the gods wish.
I don't sigh for tony pastry, but I am a greedy elf.
When confronted by a shortcake that the missus makes herself.

Advantages of the Electric Range.

Speaking about its automatic electric range, an electrical manufacturing company has the following to say. The use of the range in the long run is not an expense but a saving. It helps cooking to become such an exact science that no food is spoiled. Results once obtained can be exactly duplicated. Meats actually shrink less in an electric oven than when cooked in the ordinary gas or coal range. Cooking by this method is absolutely sanitary as every part of the electric ovens can be thoroughly cleaned. Ranges can be obtained in sizes suitable for large families and small enough so that they are economical when cooking for two. The ovens are made to hold the heat. This saves electricity as most of the cooking is done with stored heat, and it keeps the heat in the stove instead of scattering it in the kitchen or over the house. This is a wonderful relief in baking or in any cooking in the summer time. The oven will cook a whole meal. Vegetables may be put in with the meat at the same time. Breakfast can be put in the oven the night before, the clock set and a few extra winks are possible in the morning; for the automatic range gets on the job at the desired time. All parts of the ranges are of metal, substantial and fireproof and approved by the Fire Underwriters. All of the electric heaters can be regulated for three distinct heats—high, medium and low—Scientific American.

PRIZES FOR PIGMANSHIP.

Every year a pig race is held at Crone-sur-Marne, in the North of France, a prize of 3,000 francs being awarded the lucky rider of the winning pig. This race is held in accordance with the terms of the will of a wealthy tradesman of the village, who died forty-two years ago.

He ordered that amongst the amusements of the annual fete should be included a race with pigs, to be ridden either by men or boys. The prize, however, was not to be handed to the winning jockey except on condition that he wore deep mourning for the deceased for two years after the race. The municipality accepted the eccentric bequest, and these singular races have been held regularly ever since.

Drinking-glasses called tumbler derive their peculiar name from the fact that they are the successors of little round silver bowls, so perfectly balanced that, whichever way they were tipped about on the table, they tumbled into position again, and there remained with the rim upwards.

The amount of dew that is nightly deposited on any object depends to a great extent upon the particular color of that object. If four pieces of board are taken and painted respectively red, yellow, green, and black, then exposed during the night, it will be found next morning that there is no dew at all on the red and black boards, that the green is damp, and the yellow covered with moisture.

Cats, large and small, make the most careful toilet of any class of animals, excepting some of the opossums. Lions and tigers wash themselves in exactly the same manner as the cat, wetting the dark, rubber-like ball of the forehead and inner toe, and passing it over the face and behind animals, excepting some of the opposite a sponge and brush, and the rough tongue combs the rest of the body.

PEER'S SMART REPARTEE.

The best story about Lord Liverpool, who is resigning the Governor-Generalship of New Zealand, concerns the occasion when he was leaving Dublin, after acting as State Steward and Chamberlain at the Viceregal Lodge.

An unsatisfactory minor official, seeking special recognition, approached. "I have been in this department ever since you were made Chamberlain, sir," he began.

"I know it—I know it," said his lordship. "Everyone knows I am a very patient and considerate man."

Saved His Life.

The conversation veered round to thrilling adventures.

"You fellows," said Horatio Pribberly, "remind me of a little experience I had some time ago. I was riding a brakeless bicycle down a steep hill, when suddenly the chain snapped and I careered down the rest of the hill quicker than a flash of lightning with the jim-jams. The road down the hill took a turn at direct right angles, and in the corner of the angle stood a thatched cottage."

"I was wondering what the verdict would be at the inquest, when I saw a man rest a plank of wood against the eaves of the cottage. I went straight for the plank, and soon was on the roof. At the back of the house the cottager's wife and daughters were shaking carpets, and my machine and myself toppled into the midst of them and were caught in the outstretched carpet and gently lowered to the ground."

A dead, dull silence descended on the company, and even the soda-water siphon wept.

THE KNOCKER.

I used to be a chronic knocker; I wore the cynic's gloomy frown; I was a most persistent mocker of all the worthy schemes in town. If some one cried, "Let's pave the village, and make our streets as slick as wax," I said, "That's but a form of pillage, a scheme to raise the poor man's tax." I blocked the plans of local boosters, and found in blocking them much bliss, and crowded like fifty-seven roosters, when schemes progressive went amiss. I found myself so doggone lonely I broke my heart and made me sad; I said, "I'd give my wad if only I had some friends in this here grad." But no one visited my palace, save when some gents of sterling worth came round and asked, in seeming malice, what I would take to jump the earth. "This town can reach no high condition," my callers said, upon a day, "until our skilled, urbane mortician has come and carted you away." I yearned for friends, and to obtain them I ceased to knock and learned to boost; it was the proper way to gain them, and now they flock around my roose. I put away my little hammer, it hangs, all dusty, on the wall; and when the village boosters clamor, my voice is loudest of them all.

Rinse the face now and then in salt water and the complexion will be rosier.

FISHERY RULES.

Rule 58 is amended as follows:—

"No cod-trap, part of trap, leader or moorings, no net, netting or twine of any sort shall be set, for the purpose of securing a cod-trap berth for the ensuing season, in the water between Sugar Loaf and the Northern Head of Petty Harbour, before 6 o'clock a.m. on the 25th of May in any year."

"No cod-trap shall be set in these waters before the 25th day of May in each year."

"In order to facilitate the setting of cod-traps on the date specified all nets, netting, lines, twines and gear of every kind and description shall be removed from the said waters before noon on the 24th day of May in each year, and shall not be re-set until noon on the 26th day of May in each year."

"From noon on the 24th to noon on the 26th of May, no gear as above described—with the exception of cod-traps—shall be set in these waters."

"If during this period stress of weather shall prevent the removal of any gear previously set, no such gear shall in any way hold a cod-trap berth."

"If the 25th day of May fall on a Sunday in any year, cod-traps may not be set until 6 o'clock a.m. on the Monday immediately following."

"In this event all gear as above mentioned shall be removed from these waters from noon on the Saturday until noon on the Tuesday immediately following, during which period no such gear shall be set."

"On the day on which traps are set, no person shall use or employ any steamer of any description, or any boat propelled by motor power the total development of whose engine or engines exceeds 12 horse power, conveying a trap, traps or fishing gear to the fishing grounds in setting a trap or traps or in the said waters."

"The above Rules do not apply to the waters between Big Black Head and Deadman's Bay, May 19, 31, 60d

DISEASED GUMS AND TEETH.

Of all the poison taken into the blood, the germs and pus contributed by the diseased gums and teeth are the most destructive to the human system. If every red blood cell is forced to fight against numbers of germs to the cell, the blood cannot attend to the building up of the body, and if allowed to continue the system is bound to break down and eventually you are an invalid. Kidney, stomach, heart trouble, rheumatism and many other diseases are brought on by diseased gums and teeth.
