Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHAT WOULD YOU LIKE TO STEAL?

RUTH CAMERON

Did you ever want to steal anything? I wonder how many people think that's an absurd question? And then I wonder how many of the same people, if they were absolutely honest with themselves (as honest in thought as they are in deed) would not admit themselves that they have had the stealing impulse?

There's the sort of thing I mean. A citizen, a thoroughly reliable citizen, who wouldn't really steal anything than you would, said to me the other day, "I never can see a pile of paper without thinking I'd like to take a few pieces. I just vision I would come round after dark with my machine and stow away a piece and make off with them. I don't know why it is but there's something about a pile of lumber that arouses that primitive feeling. I suppose it's because there are so many things I want to do and the house with lumber and darn stuff costs so much that you put up a cupboard without all covering it with silver."

She Wants to Steal Sugar.

A woman told me last summer that she never saw sugar anywhere without feeling as if she must carry some home.

In view of the success of "Tarzan of the Apes" as a film and as a novel, it is interesting to note that there have been Tarzans in real life. Not long ago there was the case of a child who was reared by monkeys. A human being was discovered near Naini Tal having a thick coating of hair which gave him the appearance of a monkey. It is thought that owing to this curious resemblance a troop of monkeys had adopted him as a child. When discovered, this strange creature was treated as a wild animal, but on further examination vaccination marks on both arms gave convincing proof of his true origin. A curious incident befell a shooting party in India in 1884. Dr. Condon, of the Imperial Civil Service, was in command. In a forest they discovered an unkempt object which they prepared to shoot, but on closer inspection, proved to be a boy walking on

Living With Wolves.

This is to certify that fourteen years ago I got the cords of my left wrist nearly severed, and was for about nine months that I had no use of my hand, and tried other Liniments, also doctors, and was receiving no benefit. By a persuasion from a friend I got MINARD'S LINIMENT, and used one bottle which completely relieved me, and have been using MINARD'S LINIMENT in my family ever since and find it the same as when I first used it, and would never be without it.

Allover flat embroideries in copper red chain-stitch are used on blue serge dresses.
Sleeveless tunics are very popular, especially when made of handkerchief linen.

AFTER CONVENTIONS.

WILL MACOL

Historic now the great conventions, at which our foghorn statesmen raved; both parties reek of those intentions with which the Hades' streets are paved. Both parties frown on those abuses which make our lives one long ordeal, and both would cook the sinful geese of profiteers who gouge and steal. I listened to the keynote speeches, applauded when the stunts were done; "of all the pebbles on our beaches," I mused, "these statesmen took the bun." I'm glad our woes will soon be over, all finished on election day; oh, then we'll wade around in clover, and raise our glad hurroo, hurra! Both parties give their sacred promise to cure all evils they can reach; for one, I am no doubting Thomas, discrediting a keynote speech. When two great parties are determined to make the world a better place, so seraphim, bewinged and ermined, might think its aspect no disgrace, to them I drink two brimming beakers of tangefoot (a home made brew); I heard their gifted keynote speakers, and know just what they plan to do.

THE BOOK OF MEMORY. Turn me loose and let me be young once more and fancy free; Let me wander where I will, Down the lane and up the hill, Trudging barefoot in the dust In an age that knows no "must," And no voice insistently Speaks of duty unto me; Let me tread the happy ways Of those by-gone yesterdays.

Age has stamped me as its own. Youth to younger hearts has flown; Still the cherry blossoms blow In the land I used to know. Still the fragrant cover spills Perfume over daisies and hills. But I'm not allowed to stray Where the young are free to play; All the years will grant to me Is the book of memory.

Fads and Fashions.

Large combs made of peacock feathers are worn for evening. Attractive lingerie is of flame-colored chiffon shading into rose. Novelty silk velvets have large painted flowers with metal leaves. The sleeve for fall will be three-quarters in length and quite loose. Coats sometimes have heavily quilted collars and cuffs of taffeta. A gown of black lace has a saash of black velvet edged with the lace. Brown velvings have borders of metal embroidery in rich bronze color. Small linen hats of brilliant colors and piped in white are being worn for modeling. In Paris are displayed gorgeous evening wraps in cloth of silver lined with black velvet.
