Facts Are Simple. The facts of the shooting are simple enough on the surface, but with the inevitable mystery and complexity of stories lying beneath. When the af-OR. PINGEL-OFFICE, 316 QUEEN'S fair reached the hands of others than Italians, the details are plain. A frantic-eyed laborer rushed into Islington telephone. He explained that a man had been shot in the camp. He did not say when or how, but that it had happened. A doctor was summoned, and at the same time a private ambulance, so that the wounded man was rushed into Toronto and St. Michael's Hospital as fast as possible. Arriving there, it was found that he had been paint for iron roofs. Walter Scott, 504 shot through the abdomen, and had a York street, London. small chance for his life. ACsolved, and each one is of the class that believes firmly in the eternal vengrance of the Black Hand solved, and each one is of the class geance of the Black Hand. The shooting took place at a little after nine o'clock, yet no word of it was received by the authorities until the next morning at 11. In a high-powered motor car County Constables Stewart and Burns, accompanied by Frank Motta, the police court interpreter, rushed to the scene, thinking the affair had just happened. What they found was a scent more than 12 hours' old, and a badly frightened crowd of Italian laborers, all with different stories. English-speaking laborers were there, but they knew nothing, and were not particularly interested, except that the incident had occurred near enough to make it an tem of conversation Blames the Black Hand. According to a foreman with an exellent knowledge of English the shoot ing was an organized raid of the Black Hand Society. Yet, after telling it, he began to laugh it off, and was very worried lest he be quoted as having accused the society. His story, gathered from the men who had been in the aboose car where the shooting took place, was that there were several men mixed up in it. One man went through three cars and demanded money, while the others remained outside and kept up a scattered fusillade of shots to distract attention from what might go on inside. Fugioni refused, and shot as he sat on a bunk not ten feet from the would-be assassin. The story is supplemented by the one by Tony Bondi, who says that he was shot at by the men outside while he was approaching the car, and that he only saw any but the man who did the shooting, although they heard the shots outside. Giuseppe said that the man he saw was short, fat, young, well dressed, and possessed of a particularly heavy black mustache. It was determined by the county officers to make a thorough search through all the Italian boarding houses in the city in the hope of finding such a man. But the cap made this unnecessary. It was comparatively new, and the name of the man who sold it was written on the inside. The name is that of a well-bnown downtown firm, and not a place usually patronized by Italians. It was thought that whoever sold it might remember the incident and an inquiry was made.

West Londoners Think Estimate of $50,000 Is Too High.

"We are convinced that the bridge would be a great convenience," said Stinchcomb, "but do not think the izens would vote $50,000 for it. My impression is that the estimate is too high. I think that a suitable bridge could be built for $25,000, and I am of the opinion that the ratepayers would vote that amount of money." Ald. Saunders suggested that it would be wiser to allow the matter to remain over a year, in view of the fact that there were many money bylaws going to the people this January.

The deputation, however, thought it better to allow the ratepayers to express an opinion on the subject at the present

Engineer Van Cleve did not consider his estimate too high. The cost could be reduced somewhat if a pier were placed in the centre of the bridge, but he considered it a dangerous plan in view of the ice jams. It was decided to allow the matter to stand until the next council meeting. In the meantime Mr. Van Cleve will see if the estimates can be reduced. SUICIDE OF A BARBER. Quebec, Nov. 24.—A barber named Phileas Bedard, aged 27, committed suicide at noon today by hanging
