ELEVEN MORE DEATHS IN BERLIN POISONING

Total of Those Killed by Tainted Food Has Reached Sixty-Eight.

[Canadian Press.] Berlin, Dec. 30.—Eleven more deaths have occurred today on poisoning, bringing the total up to 68 since Dec. 26, when a large number of the inmates of the municipal night shelter for the homeless were suddenly affected by the eating of tainted fish. Thirty additional cases of sickness are also reported and the problem is becoming more mysterious as among the victims one at least was never in a public shelter, and a number of others did not partake of the suspected fish. The official experts continue to insist that the sickness was brought about by ptomaine poisoning, but they cannot ascertain where the poison came from.

STRAW HAT PRICES DUE FOR A SOAR

Chinese Rebels Burned Millions of Rolls of Straw Intended For Export.

[Canadian Press.] New York, Dec. 30.—Next year's straw hat will cost more than this year's, and the price will be still higher in 1913, owing to a shortage in the importations of straw, most of which comes from the Province of Shantung, China. Word reached the New York importers this week that millions of rolls of this straw had been seized and burned by the Chinese rebels. This means, it is said, that the importation of straw from China will be practically nil, and that there will be nothing to manufacture the straw hat of 1913 from except paper mache.

ORDERED BACK TO ZION.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—Four thousand members of the Christian Catholic Apostolic Church in Zion, who live outside of Zion City, Ill., have been commanded to dispossess their property and return to Zion City. The order was issued by General Overseer Wilbur Glen Voliva, successor to the late John Alexander Dowle, who said yesterday that in order to retain control of the city, it was necessary to have the votes of all these persons now non-residents. "They are scattered from the coast to coast, and control property valued at nearly $100,000," said Voliva. "The money realized from the property would be invested in the industries of Zion City."

CONS. CHEERED GREY AND LIBERALS LAW

Unusual Scene in British House When Parties Cheered State-ments of Opposite Leaders.

London, Dec. 31.—In a speech to his constituents in East St. Pancras, Joseph Martin, M.P., formerly of Canada, gave expression to rampantly radical views on the question of Britain's foreign relations.

Some of his striking passages were as follows: "Sir Edward Grey took occasion to justify the late Tory Government in entering into a secret treaty with France. I do not agree with the idea that the foreign policy in this country should be continuous. I think it is possible for the Tory party to go wrong in foreign affairs. Sir E. Grey is a Tory, and impregnated with Tory and Whig ideas, and yet he has been placed in this position, although I say nothing against him personally. His statement was entirely satisfactory to the Tory party, who are always looking for war."

Liberals Cheer Law. "When Sir Edward Grey made his statement and whenever he told what the Government had done with regard to relations with Germany his speech was punctuated with ringing Tory cheers, but mutterings of dissent from the Government. When Mr. Bonar Law spoke he devoted the first ten or fifteen minutes of his speech to a remarkable statement of what ought to be the relations between this country and Germany, taking strong grounds that this country's safety lay in friendship with Germany. These remarks received from the Liberal side the same hearty cheers which Sir Edward Grey received from the Tory party. It is a most unfortunate fact and something that the people of the country ought to know, that Sir Edward Grey's speech was most unsatisfactory to the majority of Liberals in the House."

"Why was it that the Liberals did not like Sir E. Grey's statement? I think I can say this: I know that it was received with dissatisfaction by a large number of Liberals and by the Liberal party in the country."

No War Over Morocco. Continuing, Mr. Martin said: "There is no reason in the world why two nations should be otherwise than friends. I believe that if two great nations go to war it is the fault of both or of one. I'd rather see the whole of Morocco sunk ten thousand fathoms deep in the sea with all British interests there than this country should go to war with Germany. The proper course in foreign affairs is to have no alliances, no special friends."

"I say when Sir Edward Grey admitted that the declaration of Lloyd George, made without excuse or reason, came near to bringing about war with Germany, it is a terrible thing to consider."

WOMEN PAINTERS GET ALL HONORS

Miss Williams, of Barry, Captures the Highest Honors of Royal Academy.

London, Dec. 31.—The award of the Royal Academy's gold medal for an historical painting (which carries with it a travelling studentship of $1,000), to Miss Williams, of Barry, has been announced, and is an instance of the manner in which women students have this year swept the board at the academy's prize-giving. Their other successes include: Landscape painting, "Storm Clearing off the Skirts of a Wood"—Turner gold medal and £250 scholarship, Gladys Kennedy, daughter of the rector of Exhurd, near Guildford. Landscape painting, "A Look on the River or Canal"—Creswick prize, £25 and silver medal, Joan Joshua. Design for the decoration of a portion of a public building, "Winter"—First prize, $150 and silver medal, Margaret Williams; second prize and bronze medal, Florence Walden. Design in monochrome for a figure pie-

ture, "Samson Pulling Down the Pillars"

—£50 and bronze medal, Katherine Clausen.

Cartoon of a draped figure, "Agriculture Carrying the Ashes of Germanicus"—£125 and silver medal, Madeline Green. Painting of a figure from the life—Bronze medal, Alice Nash. Painting of a head from the life—Silver medal, Madeline Green. Set of three studies in drapery—Silver medal, Grace Hawkins. Landscape painting in oil—£200 a year for two years—Katherine Clausen. In his address at the prize distribution, the president of the Royal Academy, Sir E. Foynter, commented on the earnest and worked hard, while the men were slack, and either did not know how to work or did not care.

CHESTER RAILWAY BILL WITHDRAWN

Turkish Government Proves Stumbling Block to Proposed Railway Extension.

Constantinople, Dec. 31.—The Chester railway project has been withdrawn from consideration by the Turkish Parliament, and in its present form is regarded as having no chance of success. The Grand Vizier withdrew the bill after it had been the subject of considerable debate.

The stumbling block to the acceptance of the plan by the Government is twofold. The minister of public works favors a normal gauge line against the narrow gauge proposed by the Chester group. The promoters are prepared to undertake the construction of the broader gauge, but want a state guarantee in that event. The other point is that the Government wishes to secure the same right of option as that enjoyed by the Chester group; that is, to possess the right to withdraw the concession after the expiration of the two years granted for the purpose of making the necessary surveys, the Government paying the cost of the surveys and plans.

Outside of a small group of deputies the Chester enterprise has never been popular. It was introduced into the Chamber, owing to the mining interests involved, and that distrust exists to a certain degree after the full explanations made in the chamber.

German diplomacy, which views with interest the possible establishment of competitive railways in the regions adjoining the sphere of the Baghdad line, has all along thrown cold water on the American project, and is largely responsible for its virtual failure.

UNHAPPY JOHN

New Year Has Cheerless Outlook for ex-President of Standard Oil.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Tarrytown, N. Y., Dec. 31.—The new year has a cheerless outlook for John D. Rockefeller. Since he lost his job as president of the Standard Oil Company, one misfortune after another has befallen him. First he lost his lake, then the village of Tarrytown turned down his contract for oiling the roads; yesterday the Y. M. C. A. called on him for $37,000 for its new building, and the greatest blow of all fell today when George Ferguson, the Rockefeller ice man, told him his lake was leaking, and even if zero weather should come this winter the ice crop would be small and prices would have to advance next summer. Ferguson lives on the Rockefeller estate, but Rockefeller doesn't control his business. Last summer Ferguson's lake started to leak away and the superintendent wrote Mr. Rockefeller in Cleveland that a new dam was needed. Mr. Rockefeller wired back: "Don't know what kind of a dam Ferguson wants, but do anything to stand in with the ice-man."

YAT SENS TROUBLES. London, Dec. 30.—The correspondent at Tokyo of the Times says public opinion there is pessimistic over the prospect of a Chinese republic. It is believed, he says, that it will take several months to organize the elections, and in the meantime there will be great difficulty in preserving peace and order.

Ald. Morgan has always advocated commission form of government. If you favor the idea, vote for him.—(Adv.)

NINE INDICTED AT LOS ANGELES

Federal Probe of the Great Plot Bears Fruit—Three Are Nabbed.

SEVERAL ARE AT LARGE

Great Sensation Comes as a Result of the Confession of Ortie McManigal.

Los Angeles, Dec. 30.—The expected and long awaited sensation in the federal investigation of the dynamite plot here, light on which came through the confession of Ortie McManigal, burst today in the return by the grand jury of indictments against nine other members of organized labor, three of whom were arrested before the close of the day.

The indictments, which charge the illegal transportation of dynamite, were returned against Ortie McManigal, Anton Johansson, J. B. Munsey, E. A. Clancy, Ortie McManigal, M. A. Schmidt, David Kaplan and John J. and James B. McNamara. Tietmoe, Johansson and Munsey were arrested as they sat in the witness room of the grand jury which found the indictments, waiting to be called on to testify.

Tietmoe is secretary of the California Building Trades Council, and head of the Asiatic Exclusion League; Munsey is the business agent of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, of Salt Lake City, and Johansson is state organizer of the Building Trades Council. Today's indictments, returned secretly to Judge Olin Wellborn, of the United States district court, are based on alleged violations of the federal statutes governing the transportation of dynamite from one city to another for an illegal purpose. The indictments were drawn up on the strength of the confession of Ortie McManigal, to the effect that James B. McNamara brought dynamite from Riverside, Cal., to Los Angeles, in 1910. The dynamiting of any specific building or structure was not mentioned in the indictment.

Clancy Gets Away.

Clancy, who had been in Los Angeles several days as a witness before the grand jury, could not be found this afternoon, and is supposed to have gone to San Francisco. The authorities of that city have been notified to arrest him. Kaplan and Schmidt have been fugitives from justice for about a year. McManigal is in the county jail here, held on a county indictment, and it is understood that the true bill against him will not be served. The McNamaras are in San Quentin prison. In order not to disclose its hand until the men are brought into court for arraignment, the Government took Tietmoe, Munsey and Johansson into custody on bench warrants returnable before Judge Wellborn today.

These warrants later were changed to read before United States Commissioner Olin Wellborn at 10 o'clock. Judge Wellborn fixed bail at $5,000 on the bench warrants and informed the accused men that he would allow that amount to stand on the indictments.

Tietmoe, Johansson and Munsey engaged Joy Harriman, former McNamara attorney, and later socialist defendant, for mayor of Los Angeles, to defend them. Harriman immediately began scurrying about for bail to keep his clients from going to jail.

Johannsen Is Unmoved. While this was being done the prisoners were held in the office of the United States marshal in the federal building. Johannsen was the calmest of the three. He appeared to be entirely unmoved. "I don't think anything serious will come of this," said he with a smile. "Anybody wanting me to answer any questions will have to ask my lawyers, not me." Johannsen, however, declared that their arrest was a "frame-up," and that the Government had nothing on him. "I've got nothing to say regarding the charges," said Tietmoe. "We are innocent of any conspiracy or crime, and hope to prove it quickly."

Tietmoe has been active in the work of the exclusion league for years, and he played a prominent part in the activities against the Japanese, which placed the United States Government in an embarrassing position several times. He is a friend of P. H. McCarthy, the labor mayor of San Francisco.

Imprisonment and Fine. Tietmoe has been suspected of connection with the McNamaras, and it was learned after his arrest that he has been followed by secret service agents for many weeks. It is alleged that Johannsen and Munsey knew James B. McNamara personally, and were cognizant of the blowing up of the dynamite building.

After returning the batch of indictments the grand jury adjourned, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, when, according to an announcement, it will resume the dynamite probe. The offices of the indictments allege is termed an "overt act against the peace and dignity of the people of the United States in transporting high-powered explosives on a common carrier, namely, a passenger train."

This offense is punishable by two years imprisonment or a fine of $10,000, or both.

"DIAMOND MINE" IN AN ASH BARREL

Men and Boys Fight for One Hundred and Fifty Brilliants Thrown Away by Accident.

Philadelphia, Dec. 31.—The discovery today of a "diamond mine" containing about 150 small but perfect stones, in an ash barrel, in front of the jewelry store of Charles Kranich, No. 2466 Kensington avenue, almost caused a riot and resulted in the sale of the stones in that section of the city by boys, at prices generally asked for the cheap glass imitations. Mrs. Kranich saw a number of men and boys fighting for possession of the barrel. Several boys caught hold of the feet of a man and pulled. The latter fell and the boys trampled on him and fought for his place. Mrs. Kranich did not have any idea what they were fighting for, but became alarmed and called her son-in-law, Miss Bessie Kranich, and her sister-in-law, Miss Bessie Kranich. The three soon discovered the diamonds. Mrs. Kranich recognized them as part of her Christmas stock and asked the boys to return them. The boys ran away, the men returned and, those missing are said to be worth $1,500 at wholesale prices. According to Mrs. Kranich, the diamonds were thrown into the ash barrel after some tissue paper in which they were wrapped had been knocked off the counter by accident.

ASSASSINS AFTER REPUBLICAN HEADS

The Chinese Peace Conference Thrown Into a State of Wild Excitement.

CABINET OF DR. SUN YAT

Minister of Finance and Minister of Justice Both Graduates of Yale University.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Shanghai, Dec. 31.—The Peace Conference in session here was thrown into a state of high excitement today by a telegram from the revolutionary headquarters in Peking stating that a number of assassins had been dispatched to Shanghai by Princes Tsai Hsun and Tsai Tao to assassinate the Republican leaders. The delegates disclaimed any knowledge of such a conspiracy. Scores of revolutionaries are awaiting the arrival of the assassins at the railroad stations. The Chinese cabinet formed by President Sun Yat Sen was announced today as follows:

President, Dr. Sun Yat Sen; Gen. Li Kuan Hung, vice-president; premier or minister of war, Huang Hsin, the home organizer of the revolution; foreign minister, Wu Ting Fang; minister of finance, Chen Chin Tao, a Yale graduate, formerly of Yuan Shi Kains' cabinet; minister of justice, Wong Chung Hui, a Yale graduate and a minister in the Middle Tonkin; navy, Chang Pi Kawong, commander of the cruiser Pai Chi; commerce, Chang Chien, formerly of Yuan Shi Kains' cabinet; education, Tsai Yuan Pol; vice-minister, Chang Yi Chi, formerly of Yuan Shi Kains' cabinet.

The delegates to the peace conference today voted $200,000 to the revolutionaries for the relief of residents in the famine districts. The commander of the Lang Cho troops today telegraphed that 5,000 men wished to join the revolutionary army.

ECUADOR APPEARS NEAR REVOLUTION

Gen. Montero Proclaimed President by Troops, Names Cabinet—Two Other Contenders.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Dec. 30.—The troops stationed in this city last night proclaimed Gen. Pedro Montero as president of the republic.

Gen. Montero today formed a provisional government, the portfolios being distributed as follows: Minister of finance, Juan Borja; minister of foreign affairs, Modesto Chavez; minister of public instruction, Alfonso Arzuze; minister of war and navy, Francisco Martinez, Acquire.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—Ecuador is drifting toward a three-cornered revolution as a result of the sudden death of President Estrada on Dec. 22. The government was left in charge of Senor Saldumbide, pending elections to be held next month to select a successor to the presidency. Advice to the state department today declared the troops in Guayaquil have proclaimed Gen. Montero supreme chief of the republic. Meanwhile formidable movements are organizing in favor of Gen. Plaza, a former president, while Flavio Alfaro, a nephew of a former president, also is a contender.

THRILLING RESCUE OF DESTROYER'S CREW

Giant Waves Sweep Over Craft When Sailors Were Being Transferred.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 30.—Fighting her way out of the harbor and through tempestuous seas against a forty-five mile gale, the revenue cutter Onondaga was careening early in the morning answering the "S O S" wireless call of distress that had come from the U. S. torpedo boat Warrington, which was crippled in a collision about fifteen miles northeast of Cape Hatteras. The Warrington had been struck by a schooner that swept upon the low-lying torpedo boat unseen in the darkness of the fierce winter storm. The stern of the warship was badly wrecked and smashed and the huge waves that at times all but completely submerged her, poured perilously into the ship's after hold.

Feared She Would Sink.

For a time it was feared that the Warrington would sink before help arrived. And after the Onondaga had made her plucky run against the power and stress of the storm and arrived within speaking distance of the Warrington, the torpedo boat officers decided that the men of the Warrington should be transferred aboard the cutter, save only a small working crew to remain aboard the torpedo boat and share the imminent danger of death rather than abandon the ship entirely.

The transfer of forty-five of the Warrington's sailors in the life boats of the Onondaga made a thrilling and gallant spectacle of the sea. Giant waves tossed the lifeboats, but the brave and nerve of the sailors, and the gallant and steady forward to the side of the Warrington. The bitter cold of the driving winds struck mercilessly at the faces and hands of the rescuers, and when the boats returned to the Onondaga the rescued sailors were, many of them, so benumbed that they had to be drawn aboard by means of ropes slipped around their bodies.

But in spite of the tremendous difficulties the transfer of the sailors from the wallowing, water-logged torpedo boat was effected without the loss of a boat or one of them. Despite the injury of one of them, the storm so fact that the hour of rescue was long after the time of dawn, the storm so blackened the atmosphere that the rescues were performed by searchlights.

NAT AND LILLIAN

Goodwin Thinks He and Miss Russell Would Make Hit in Vaudeville.

New York, Dec. 30.—A well-built man, who, from his figure might have been 30 or 50, sat in an apartment at a local hotel tonight and perused a newspaper clipping. A smile overspread his features as he scrutinized the headlines: "Lillian Russell Weds in May; Husband No. 4 is Alex. Moore."

In May they won't be able to call me "Natty Nat," unless they want to call her "Looney Lillian," laughed Nat C. Goodwin, for it was he. "Let's see; for me it's been Edna Weatherly, 1877 to 1888; Nell A. Baker, 1888 to 1891; Maxine Elliott, 1891 to 1905, and Edna Goodrich, 1905 to 1910. And for her it will be Harry Abraham, 1879; Edward Solomon, 1881; John Chatterton, 1894, and Alexander Moore, 1912. That makes four wives, and that's why they can't call me 'Natty Nat' without casting aspersions on the most beautiful woman in America."

"But say, honest, I'm glad to hear Lillian is engaged. I feel almost like becoming engaged myself." It was suggested to Goodwin that he and Miss Russell would prove an ideal couple, providing they could procure a parson this side of Salt Lake City to marry them. "Well, we could make quite a hit on the vaudeville stage together," he replied. "Everybody interested in love and marriage—and what person above the age of 10 (months) isn't interested in those subjects?—would flock to see us. 'But it really makes me feel young to know that a young thing like Lillian has laid four of 'em away in camphor balls and law journals; but remember, there are four full months between now and May day, and it's just possible—but she is destined to remain a bachelor for the rest of his life.'"

OH! WHAT THE USE?

(St. Louis Republic.) He was telling her about a book he had just read. "The absolute sincerity and directness of the author," he said, "are above all praise. I don't know when I've read a book that seemed so helpful, so uplifting, so purely inspiring." She had been regarding him with a rapid countenance. Now she spoke. "George," she said, "I have just thought of a way to trim my winter hat!"
