Bitter References by Clemenceau in Preface to Andre Tardieu's Book.

SUCCESS BRED ENVY

Men Who Undertook Task Were Unequal to Occasion.

Paris, April 26 .- M. Clemenceau has broken his promise for the first time since he gave up power. L'Illustration will publish tomorrow a long extract from the preface the old Tiger has written for Tardieu's book on "The Peace Treaty." Disdaining to reply directly to the bitter personal attacks of which he has been the subject, Clemenceau does not spare sarcasm both for the critics of the treaty and for those who succeeded him at the helm of the French interests. Tardieu's book, he de-

Then the Tiger deals a sharp blow his successor's excuses for the administer the treaty with success. "It is the poor workman who blames his tools." Clemenceau workman who blames his tools." Clemenceau develops a theory of the foundation on which a great part of the opposition to the treaty in France is based. Men who undertook the task of carrying it out were not, he considers, equal thereto and accordingly began to denounce, first the treaty itself, and secondly, the personalities of those who had drawn it

They fail to realize that "a war won by four cannot result in a peace dictated by one." The inevitable compro mises were bound to cause some dissat isfaction, but it is remarkable that the criticism has been almost entirely confined to certain clauses taken away from the contest, whereas the treaty really must be judged altogether. no matter what have been the objections in France to this er that point of the treaty, the fact remains that its critics here, after having proposed to ject or tried to discredit it, have come back to the demands "rigorous execu-tion" even when "they were willing to whittle down its conditions to our detr ment under pressure of German bluff. Clemenceau continues that the treat of Versailles can be nothing but a pro-longation of the war's activities until its complete execution. The on, pos sible exception to this is the nullitying of Germany's defeat and even Keynes does not go so far as that. He recalls the prodigious spirit of victory in which the work of making the treaty was begun, the treaty which was itself to be It was something of the spirit which of Windsor inspired the Allies on July 4 in the last year of the war, when as Lloyd George statue, the British premier said, smiling: you know that you have just made me take part in the celebration of Eng-

Clemenceau replied: "If national pride makes you still regret that defeat I am to allow spooning booths in his cafe has been done to you by this American independence, which I see Canada, Australia and New Zealand daily approaching? There are more old scores than that between your flag and mine, and yet I salute it each day on the front with my whole heart." Turning to practical considerations of the present menceau issues a solemn warning against the danger of a "weak policy of postponement." He shows Germany raising her head encouraged by the failure to put the treaty into execution

The hour of supreme warning struck when the heads of the Allied govern-ments heard themselves urged, face to face-at the Spa conference-by a German delegate to 'cure themselves of the malady of victory, before the debate began. Yet the conference was not oken up. An apology was not even demanded from the beast in delirium, though perhaps these worthy boches should rather receive our thanks for the excess of frankness which hardly leave us illusions about the Ger-nan state of mind. In the future France must set herself without shrinking to execute the treaty and maintain her right, for, concludes Clemenceau, "to be master of the future one must forget oneself. The hammer and apvil are there. Let us see that the arms are."

Low Price of Grains Will Tend to Encourage Heavier Production.

The following is a summary of reports made by the agricultural representatives to the Ontario department of Wet weather during the week has been delaying seeding and other field operations. The spring crops already in, however, have been given an excellent start.

Fall wheat is doing well, taking the province as a whole, especially in those counties where the crop is most general.

Officials say there should be large supplies on Saturday.

A fairly good demand for oats was responsible for an increase in the price. By the hundredweight they sold for $1.50 and $1.55, and by the bushel, 51c and 52c.

province as a whole, especially in those counties where the crop is most general.

Clover, except where badly heaved, is also presenting a good appearance, although Grey reports some plowing under of the crop. Alfalfa and sweet clover are doing better than red clover.

Essex reports cherries and peaches in full bloom, and with little or no injury so far, from the weather, while Norfolk reports that cherry and plum blossoms have suffered nearly 50 per cent damage from frost, and black current blossoms from 10 to 20 per cent.

The Besex representative is of the opinion that more early tomatoes and corn will be grown in that county on account of the slump in tobacco values.

cent damage from frost, and black current blossoms from 10 to 20 per cent.

The ssex representative is of the opinion that more early tomatoes and corn will be grown in that county on account of the slump in tobacco values.

Halton speaks of some farmers in that county who will grow sunflowers for ensilage this year.

Milch cows in Leeds are selling from $80 to $150. Good milkers in Timiskaming are valued at from $125 to $150.

Grey remarks: "Members of agricultural societies say that a larger number of mares than usual will be bred this year. Undoubtedly the low price of grains will tend to encourage heavier live stock production generally."

Horses are in such demand in Leeds that the representative observes that "anything of fair size will bring $200 or over."

ating some of the debates still standing on the order paper, the Government hopes to wind up the business of the Legislature on Friday evening and prorogue on Tursday next. Suggestions to this effect were concurred in by the two Opposition leaders at a conference today between H. H. Dewart Hon, G. H. Ferguson and Premier Drury.

The premier hints that the source of the attacks on the treaty in many cases is envy because "we did not associate in the negotiations men whose views we had shared previously." This, he says, caused ill-feeling which was bound to break out later for "nothing is forgiven less easily than success, especially when there are wounds in the heart of him who criticizes it."

History was made last fall when the Imperial Oil Company brought in a big well at Fort Norman. Their geologists and drill crews had been searching in the Northwest Territories for the past two years, and the first attempt at drilling was a wonderful success.

We are now assured that Fort Norman, Mackenzie River Basin and Great Slave Lake district is proven oil country, and the question arises-What are we going to Canada produces but two per cent (2%) of the oil used in the Dominion. The importation of the other ninety-eight (98%), or $30,000,000 from across the border, greatly increases the unequal trade balance. Its about time for you to sit up and take

You know that the oil business is a wonderful money-maker, and you know that the oil fields recently uncovered in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana have made immense fortunes for small investors.

We do not know whether you had an opportunity to share in the profits made in these fields, but we do know that you now have an opportunity to share in the future millions of money that will be made in the new Canadian oil fields-if you are

We are specializing in Fort Norman, Mackenzie River Basin and Great Slave Lake district securities, handling only such as will bear the closest investigation. If you are not at present interested, no doubt you will be later, and if you will send us your name and address we will put you on our mailing list and send you from time to time important news items from the new Canadian oil fields relating to the activities of the various companies that are operating there.

Please remember that you do not obligate yourself in any way in requesting this information.
