the difficulty. But who, then, is to meet it? We reply—the Canadian banks; they can do it, whenever they choose. The Canadian banks have it in their power to advance money enough to un-load Chicago of all the grain there avail-able for shipment to Europe, and to send it forward by what is really the cheapest route—the Canadian canals. There head be no speculation in the matter, but only buying at export prices on the Liverpool basis. For, be it remembered, even in times of "corners" in Chicago, grain can actually be bought there below market. And other parties besides the banks would have to be consulted.
