Macdonaid, Gibbs, a Grabam, Hill and Carlyle (St. Andrew's). Before regular business was commenced the Chairman returned thanks, to his committee for re-electing him to the honorable position of head of the department and gave a short review of the changes and improvements contemplated in the coming year.

The first of the applicants was Ald. Thos. Davies, who appeared on behalf of his company to obtain a rebate on 1,375,000 gallons of water, which had been charged against it, but which subsequent investigation had shown had been wasted in the sewers through a defective pipe. The committee refused to give an opinion, but ordered Superintendent Hamilton to report. The question of fushing sewers was brought up in the shape of a report from the Superintendent showing its cost. Mr. Hamilton explained that the outlay in this direction was simply money thrown away, I It was no use to pour water into a sewer at sixty to seventy pounds pressure, the only result being the hardening of the sand sediment at the bottom. If a chain could be run shrough the swer and kept in agitation it might be of some use. Mr. Hamilton was instructed to report more fully on the subject.

A sub-committee, comprising Ald. Hill, Gilbert, Gibbs and Baxter, was detailed to discuss the question of purchasing the right of way for the laying of a main to Rose Hill reservoir from Summer Hill-avenue to the reservoir. On motion of Ald. Baxter, Ald. Graham, Hill, Gilbert and the mover were made a sub-committee to purchase horses, was one and harness for the department. Ald. E.A. Macdonald moved that the Superintendent's report was carried.

According to the Superintendent's report and be thought city water would be an advantage to the neighborhood. The motion was carried.

According to the Superintendent's report 222,834,938 gailons of water had been pumped and 501 tons of coal consumed for the three weeks ending Jan. 19. The number of services put in this year up to date was 153. Mr. Hamilton recommended an inferim appropriation of $50,000 in advance of the estimates for general maintenance.

In the matter of new work for 1889, Mr. Hamilton reported that the question of a turther supply of water and a further expension of the pumping plant at the high level pumping station would have to stand until the experts, Messis. Hering and Gray, be heard from But the following work, which was outside their report, was urgently required: the continuance of the repairs to the engines at the pumping station, the removal of the present dwelling house at the station, and the substitution therefor of a workshop for the singineer, a new fountain, in front of the engine house, the enlargement of the coal shed to the capacity of 10,000 tons of coal, the completion of the west wharf and filling in of the space inside thecribs, a block-paved roadway to be laid down from the raifrond tracks to the different sheds and the engine rooms; that the station and wharf be fighted by electricity, the waste, atam from the present boilers to be utilized to run the dynamo.

Trade Members.

Around the commission offices, where business is not unseemingly brisk, the general discussion is on the topic of the Board of Trade Presidency. Friends of both candidates are canyassing in right good earnest and meet with all sorts of excuses and arguments. The general feeling is that if Mr. Matthews had made up his mind to run and had announced that fact some time before nomination day, there would not have been any opposition from Mr. Wilkie. Some peculiar things are said about both gentlemen. Mr. Matthews comes in for a share of disfavor "trying to shoulder all the honor of the Board of Trade and refusing to drop out and give others a show." Then again, "He's a director of the C.P. R., and now that that railway is getting an eastern entrance to the city, they want his help and influence as President of the Board of Trade."

Some say, "He's a grain man and I don't see canvassing in right good earnest and mee not as good a right to the presidency as the grain section."

Now then it comes Mr. Wilkie's turn. Says one, "He's a public servant as manager of the Imperial Bank and he cannot attend to the Board of Trade like Mr. Matthews did. Don't you know that last year Mr. Matthews actended over 500 meetings of that board? Now, that's over two a day, ain't it? Well, can Mr. Wilkie do that? No, of course he can't. Why can't he? Why, because his bank business won't let him. That's why!" The next objection heard is that Mr. Wilkie will oppose and delay the crection of the new buildings, but that objection doesn't carry any weight because the council have all the "say" and the "say" weight because the council have all the "say about that. Both Mr. Matthews and Mr. Wilkie hav Both Mr. Matthews and Mr. Wilkie have large circles of personal friends who on personal grounds will vote for them; both have warm admirers who appreciate the work they have done, and will support them on that ground; both have good local and outside connections; and after all is done and said, the betting is 2 to 1 on Matthews by his friends and 2 to 1 on Wilkie by his supporters.

When life looks gloomy and my mental sky
Is overcast by some confounded blunder,
All things are awry, and 'tis then that I Get mad as thunder!

When on the other hand I'm feeling well, And great good luck my efforts seem to Then upwards steadily my drooping spirits I own the town!

Tis so with most; when we are strife,
And health is keeping pace with fortune's

We calmly reason o'er the ills of life

We do not feel.

—Mr. Ruey. The Witty Q.C.,'s Ron Mot. Crown Counsel Samuel Lount, Q.C., was exam a witness in an assault case in the Criminal A yesterday and gave birth to a clever bon mot most improupt unamer. The witness was for defence, and had previously said that he saw the plainant lying on the ground. To Mr. Lount he the man was in a sitting posture.

"Come. come, now," said the Crown Counsel, "cannot lie down and sit, but he can generally sit and lie!"

A general laugh went up at the timely wild whoreupon Mr. Justice Rose, all that if any such manifest were made again he would clear the cours of thosing no business there, and would take other mea
