

Amusements.

Damon and Pythias at the Grand last week enjoyed a successful run.

Bartley Campbell is rapidly growing worse. He no longer recognises his intimate friends. The end is not far off.

Mrs. Langtry is negotiating for a site for a theater for herself in Shaftesbury avenue, a new and popular London thoroughfare.

Rhea is to make a "farewell tour" of America in the fall. This is as it should be, as she didn't fare well on her recent tour.

Mrs. Langtry is going to convert her lawn at Meadow Bank, Twickenham, into a circus ring, where her trained horses will perform.

Rhea is a stage name, but it is the only one the actress uses except when legal contracts force her to sign herself Hesterance Levst.

An English actor being one evening in the front of the house, and seeing a gentleman putting on his coat preparatory to leaving, exclaimed: "I beg pardon, sir, but there is still another act." "Which is precisely the reason," replied the other, "why I'm going."

"I'll engage you," said the theatre manager to the actor in search of a job, "but times are hard just now and I can't give you any Patti prices. How would $1000 a week suit you?" "No, only," said the actor, "that won't do at all. That isn't enough. Say, see here! Supposing you give me $10 a week and pay it."

Sir Arthur Sullivan, the World, of London, says, is hard at work composing his Leeds oratorio. It is for this that he has laid aside the opera that he began writing for the winter season at the Savoy. With regard to the title, "The Khedive," announced here and there, the book itself is not at all finished, the music is only half written, no title whatever is as yet given to the piece, and there is nothing Egyptian in it.

THE GRAND UNION HOTEL.—Everybody who goes to New York city by rail, and who wants the best and most handy hotel to stop at, should try the Grand Union. It is located on Park Avenue just opposite the Grand Central depot, and all one has to do is to step across the street, leave his baggage checks on the office counter, and in ten minutes his trunk are in his room, free of expense, and without trouble or annoyance. When he gets there he will find the very best of beds, the cleanest of linen, the most courteous attention, and as good a table as can be found at any hotel in the country—and by this we mean as good as the Windsor in New York, the Continental in Philadelphia, or Young's in Boston, and prices a third lower than either. Baggage returned to the station free of charge, special attention is given to ladies who visit New York without escort. The third Avenue elevated road has a station opposite the corner of the house and the horse-car to the door. The manager is Mr. W. D. ... who spares no pains to make satisfied with his accommodations. Give this commendation of ...
