Minnesota furnishes the extreme about grass-hoppers. As for heat damage, millers' advices tended to show an unexpected reduction of condition thruout Kansas and Oklahoma during May. Incidentially the bulls were helped by the fact that cash wheat was relatively firmer than futures, the result of buying on the part of elevator people and local mills. Speculators on the whole virtually ignored the splendid rains in the Northwest and the promise of heavy world's shipments for the week. Chicago Markets.

J. P. Bickell & Co., Manufacturers' Life Building, report the following fluctuations on the Chicago Board of Trade:

Chicago Gossip.

J. P. Bickell & Co. had the following from Logan & Bryan:

Wheat—For the day there was a net gain of \( \frac{1}{2} \) con the later months. Selbers appeared to have the best of the news during the morning, as the cable was not as strong as naturally expected after a sharp advance on this side Thursday. The northwest had good rains and the forecast about the time of opening favored showers and unsettled weather over a large part of the winter wheat belt. But there was no selier pressure expected and towards midday a few houses had good sized buying orders to fill and prices began to climb at once. Reports of grass-hoppers in the northwest and Hessian fly in Kansas, added to the upturn in prices. Strongest swell for the day in wheat was largely the result of weekly report of St. Louis Modern Miller, claiming considerable injury to winter crop from the extreme heat during May. Chicago Gossip.

Erickson Perkins & Co. had the following at the close:
Wheat—The market opened steady, the July holding firm, but the September showing a little weakness during the early part of the session. The entire list advanced later, and showed considerable strength, the basis for the same being further reports of insect damage in the winter wheat country east of the Mississippi River and reports of the appearance of grasshoppers in the northwest, especially in Minnesota. There was a decided increase in outside buying of wheat, and we believe that the conditions noted above should be watched very closely. We feel that the long side of the market on the weak spots is the profitable one for the present. the present.

Corn—The market did not show any particular strength tho a fractional advance was established early in sympathy with wheat. Weather conditions were very favorable and the shipping demand was poor. We are inclined to look for a little further setback in the market, but on any good break would favor purchases.

Oats Prices sympathized with the easy tone of the corn market and were fractionally lower. Cool weather and prospects of showers took the edge off the buying. We consider the reaction a natural one after the sharp advance the past few days, but we still feel that the market is a purchase on all weak spots.

Varying Sheep opinions are still held as to the ultimate effect of the decisions upon corporate activity, but in the stock market at least there is no longer evidence of depression on account of the findings of the court.

With some indications of better things in the steel trade the unsettle-ment which followed the adoption of the "open market" policy has disappeared. The favorable effect upon railroad reports of curtailment in ex-penses, as indicated in April state-ments, has strengthened the position of the railroad stocks materially. The government's first report on the cotton crop for the season, which was issued to-day gave further basis for expectotions of good crops. Altho no sub stantial improvement in general trade conditions is evident hope of speedy revival is perhaps stronger at present than has been the case since the early spring, when a temporary betterment in the steel trade led to expectations of a general recovery. The Hill stocks were again strong and active. Profittaking weakened the Chicago, Buriing ton and Quincy joint 4 per cent. bonds, which have been associated with Great Northern and Northern Pacific in the advance which followed the announcement of the Hill project. American Tob securities continued their decline. The common stock dropped 15 points on the curb, recovering part of the loss. Ann Tob bonds declined 2 5-8 to 86, virtually the price at which the bonds held before the supreme court decision was announced in expectation that the issues would be retired at par in connection with dissolution of the
