LIBERALS NOW HOLD POWER

Bassermann to the Fore.

This was the National Liberal, Ernst Bassermann, a commanding figure in the Reichstag. He will be able to swing avowed National Liberals who, under proper inducements, would probably be prepared to co-operate with the government on most questions. The hostility of other progressive groups to the so-called reactionary "bloc" apparently is too great for any working understanding, except on questions of national defence and the increase of the army and navy.

The Socialists return as the strongest individual party, bringing their total 105 to 110 by winning 11 of the 21 ballots in which they participated to-day. This is more than double their strength, which was 53 at the time of the dissolution, and 29 above their previous maximum in 1903.

Clericals Lose Ten.

The Reichstag centre or clerical is the strongest of individual parties, with 93 seats of their own, a falling off of 10, the result of widespread resentment at their share in the unpopular financial reform of 1909 and the prevalent high cost of living.

Having accomplished what the utmost efforts of Von Bismarck and the government were unable to effect in 1907, the Poles return with 19 of 20 former mandates. They had hoped to play a big role and obtain important concessions for the Polish policy as an essential factor to the new government majority, but the extent of the opposition victory dashes their expectations.

Assize Cases.

Non-jury assize court to-day: Spence v. Moore, Clarkson v. Allan, Clarkson v. Allan and Allan, Clarkson v. Francis, Clarkson v. Francis and Allan.

English Turned Down.

33 ITALIANS TAKEN ON

At the conclusion of last night's session of the investigation into the charges of discrimination of workmen on civic jobs, Vice-President Brown of the British Imperial Association, declared that his association had put in all the evidence it intended to. Commissioner Starr will continue the enquiry, but none of the members of the British Imperial Association will be present unless specially requested.

McCormick told a story of having been refused a position on the civic car line three days before thirty Italians were taken on. Others had similar tales to relate, while two or three tried to explain the calibre of the foremen by repeating some of the language which they used in directing the workmen.

The investigation will be resumed this evening at 7.30.
