

MISS WYLIE ADVISES WOMEN TO DEMAND ALL THEIR RIGHTS

Should Send Delegation to Ottawa to Let Premier Borden Know They Are Prepared to Strike and Demand Equal Rights With Men, She Says.

Miss Barbara Wylie, the militant representative of the British Women's Political Union, now touring Canada, addressed a gathering at the Guild Hall last night under the auspices of the Toronto Women's Suffrage Association, which inaugurated its winter season last night.

With a stirring address and a convincing manner she declared that women would not get proper treatment until they forced the hands of the present administration, and after 45 years of ladylike action, no material benefits had accrued to women. Therefore, the time had come when militant tactics were absolutely necessary. She declared the terrible havoc being wrought by the white slave traffic, which was receiving very little notice from the governments, and ridiculed the tendency of present day politicians to meddle with domestic affairs, assuming the positions of authorities on such matters. She urged the women to fight for political equality, because it was the only way out of the conditions under which they have to live, and until they had obtained the electoral power which is their right, they should not hold their peace.

Serious Position. "The position of the woman of today is a serious one," declared Miss Wylie, "because she is forced into the labor market to compete with men, to do the same work, but for smaller salaries, and it is these unequal terms which makes it hard. Under these circumstances, we see the weaker being handicapped, whereas under normal conditions, the weaker should be assisted by the stronger.

"Since workmen have been enfranchised, their wages have gone up 50 and 60 per cent, while the remuneration according to the female sex has in many cases been lowered, and in the majority of instances never has been raised at all. If the vote is such a useless thing, why is it the men have used it to legalize their trade unions with the subsequent economic rise and the women have been forced to stand still.

Minimum Wages. "The made government employees have forced the government to insert minimum wages clauses in all government contracts, but they only apply to men's labor. Women who do the same work have to be content with lower wages, and it is on this account that we are demanding the vote in order to afford them the necessary protection and force the government to a proper sense of justice.

Miss Wylie also declared that women must have the vote in order to gain self-respect and are entitled to say who shall represent them in parliament. "We want to fight the white slave traffic because it is a question which makes every woman burn with shame and indignation, being either degraded and insulted in such a manner.

Away With Slums. "We want to do away with slums, because you in Canada have them, and give you going to allow that danger to increase to the dimensions to which it has reached in the older countries? We demand the vote because we want to help the little children and the aged, which we can only do by having equal rights with men. We want our interests to go side by side.

The speaker made a survey of female suffrage legislation in the old land, and how they had been foiled by the present administration through questionable strategy. She told of the assistance given by women in the general elections of the past, and how the political agitators had placed so much reliance upon them, but when they demanded the vote, were told that their place was in the home, but by their taking advantage of the women's assistance in a political fight, they had undeniably proved that a woman's place was also where she was doing something good for man outside it, and if the women who had engaged themselves in political fights only had held together, they would have had the vote long ago.

It Was Their Duty. Miss Wylie explained their reasons for bringing the shop windows, so-called innocent shopkeepers. She said: "They had used their vote to improve their own economic conditions. They have taken advantage of all the power the franchise has given them, but they have never turned a hair to assist women's suffrage, therefore they are accessories to the government's actions, and under these circumstances they are not innocent, and it was our duty to break their windows.

"The only way to secure peace, is to be prepared for war," she continued, "and every Canadian should be ready to strike, and let Premier Borden and his colleagues know it. You are going to have a redistribution of seats, etc. You should send delegations to Ottawa to demand other justice, and if the government resorted to subterfuge, such as statements that legislation stands in the way, demand that such acts be repealed, because practically the whole of the parliament's time is taken up in dealing with legislative measures null and void."

Hunger Strikes. She stated that the hunger strikes in British prisons were not resorted to merely to shorten their terms, but because it was the only weapon which could be used, to force the authorities to treat the suffragettes as political offenders.

"We have been sentenced to prison for inciting to violence, but such men as Sir Edward Carson and F. E. Smith have stated that if home rule is passed, they will convulse the country, and yet they have not been arrested. The Conservatives have made an unfortunate move in this regard, because when they return to power, they cannot remind us of violence without being acquainted of the work in the past. In closing, she urged that human qualities were human qualities and there could be no separation between men and women on this account, therefore they had a right to human treatment.

DIRECTORS SEEK TO IMPROVE THE FAIR

At Meeting Yesterday a Large Program of Changes Was Passed, Including a Recommendation for Electric Cars—News Stands Allowed to Remain.

Among numerous schemes for the improvement of the fair grounds next year the board of directors of the Canadian National Exhibition recommended that electric cars be operated on the grounds in order to provide a means of transportation from place to place. It was also decided that every effort should be made to complete the entrance and the roadways which would provide access to the gate. The dates for next year's exhibition were fixed as Aug. 23 to Sept. 3 inclusive. It is proposed to have the grounds more of a public park during the summer months and numerous improvements will be inaugurated next year for the convenience of picnic grounds. As a shelter for inclement weather it is intended to throw open the horticultural building to the public. Certain portions of other buildings will be rented as concessions during the summer period and the directors believe that the large number of pleasure seekers who visit the grounds justifies a good rental being charged. It is also proposed to put the grand stand field in good condition for polo, football and baseball games.
