Hunt, of the Western Fair is the second largest in the whole of the Dominion, was carried on without asking the council for grants. Everyone knows how urgently more ground is needed for the future exhibitions, and there are only two ways feasible in which that necessary ground may be obtained.

The Two Ways.

"One is the purchase of entirely new grounds, and the other is the extension of the present site to meet the future requirements. In my estimation, the better idea would be the purchase of the new fair site. If the present grounds, are extended, then the future financial outlay will greatly exceed the present cost for the grounds in heat cost of new grounds, and, he addition, the extension of the present grounds would constitute a very poor ground, plan, for the race track would completely cut the grounds in heat, who attend the fair."
