FEELS SURE DAIL WILL ENDORSE IT

Freeman's Journal Correspondent Sums Up Situation on the Irish Agreement.

(Canadian Press Cables.)
Dublin, Dec. 15.—The political correspondent of the Freeman's Journal summed up yesterday the situation at the opening of the Dail Eireann session for action on the Irish treaty. He said: "Opposition to the treaty of independence is evident in Dublin to much greater extent than throughout the country. That is, the amount of dissatisfaction in the capital should not be exaggerated, it being more vocal than powerful. Men just returning from the Midlands and the west are astonished to find a strong minority in Dublin opposed to harvesting the fruits of the struggle. In the west, particularly, including the counties of Limerick, Galway and Clare, the treaty is an accepted fact and the people are all looking ahead. They are discussing the political constitution of the provisional government which will immediately follow ratification and the date of the evacuation by the British army."

"Before yesterday's session of the Dail was finished, however, there was every reason to believe that the majority for the treaty will have been considerably augmented. The forty opponents which I gave in my calculation on Tuesday may yet be reduced when the full facts of the situation are realized. It is believed that even some of those who cannot vote for the treaty will refrain from voting against it."

BAGS FIVE GORILLAS FOR N. Y. MUSEUM

Cable Message Says the Akeley Expedition Has Obtained an Entire Family in Africa.

A family of five gorillas has been bagged for the American Museum of Natural History by the Carl E. Akeley expedition, which went to Africa for that purpose, according to a cablegram from Mr. Akeley, received by the museum.

Besides the gorillas the museum's collection has been enriched by the capture of a tamarin—a rare animal known as "the Chinese buffalo"—and a number of small mammals new to science, which are reported as taken by the American Museum's third Africa expedition, of which Roy Chapman Akeley is the leader. Mr. Akeley's messages tell of encounters with Chinese bandits.

Mr. Akeley's cablegram said: "Very successful securing family of five gorillas for museum. Largest specimen, male, 360 pounds; has span seven feet eight inches."

The message located Mr. Akeley in the Lake Tanganyika region of South Africa near the borderland between German East Africa and the Belgian Congo. The gorilla family, it was said at the museum, would probably reach New York some time in February.

Mr. Akeley left New York in July, accompanied by a party of five, two of them women and one a six-year-old girl, the daughter of Herbert Bradley of Chicago. The object of the expedition, it was said at his departure, was of immediate necessity, as a danger existed that the gorilla would become exterminated before there was anything like an adequate life history of the species.

While the Akeley party was plodding through the African jungles, Mr. Andrews party was beating its way into the roughest mountain country in China. The message just received from him says:

"I am on the train en route to Peking after the trip into Shensi for taking. It was the hardest trip I've ever had—fearful work in the roughest mountains of China—and we came as close to having 'adventures' as I have ever come. There was a good bit of fighting going on about us and we ran squarely into a crowd of two hundred brigands, but my medical kit came in very nicely. I patched up wounded men for an entire day, and they were very grateful. They treated us with the greatest courtesy, and even gave us a guard of honor until we were out of the danger zone. It was proves my doctrine that understanding of the people avoids adventures. We got the tamarin and a splendid lot of small mammals, many of which are certainly new to science."

The tamarin, it was said yesterday at the museum, is a curious animal of rather cowl-like appearance, distantly related to the chamois, the serow and our own Rocky Mountain goat.

SYNDICATE AFTER "PIECES OF EIGHT"
Spanish Gold on Ocean's Bed Attracts Many.
Hull, Eng., Dec. 15.—In an effort to recover relics and bullion from a Spanish galleon which lies in Robernary Bay, a syndicate has been formed. It is quite distinct from a previous syndicate called "The Pieces of Eight," except that Colonel Kenneth Mackenzie Foss, who directed the previous operations, is one of the directors. Investigations made by an expert diver during the last few weeks are reported to have been very satisfactory.
