

Who's that knocking at the kitchen door?

Why, it's Mrs. Edwards round again—she's always ready to lend a hand with the cooking. That nourishing home-made Irish soup of hers is a real dish-of-all-work—useful in a hundred ways.

It's fine and tasty by itself. It's the secret of a savoury sauce. It's the making of a made dish. And, to bring out the goodness of your own scup and gravies and hashes and meat puddings there's nothing like adding

EDWARDS' SOUPS

Prime beef and the finest of Irish vegetables—that's what Mrs. Edwards puts in it; nothing but what's pure and delicious. As there is no strong added flavouring, it will blend perfectly with any other soup. Remember to boil it for an hour.

REV. DR. MORISON INDUCTED INTO CARLETON PASTORATE

The induction of Rev. John A. Morison, Ph. D., as pastor of the Carleton Presbyterian church, took place last evening. The attendance was large and the ceremony of induction was very impressive. The feeling of good will and harmony that appeared throughout the proceedings was taken as a sign that the work of the church would be carried on with the greatest efficiency. Rev. Dr. MacVicar presided and devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. W. N. Townsend.

The induction ceremony was carried out by Rev. Dr. MacVicar, after which Rev. Gordon Dickie addressed the new minister. Mr. Dickie spoke of the great changes in modern life and the need for a minister to adapt himself to these conditions and to combine preaching with service. The minister of today needs to be a man

Twitching of the Nerves

A Distressing Symptom of Nervous Exhaustion Cured by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. John McKellar, 11 Barton street east, Hamilton, Ont., writes:— "I was injured some years ago, and that left me with a broken-down nervous system. I could not sleep, and suffered from twitching of the nerves and disagreeable nervous sensations."

"I then began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say that I never used any medicine that did me so much good. In fact, I am entirely cured of my old trouble. The Nerve Food not only strengthened the nerves, but also built up my system in every way." Under date of Aug. 29, 1912, Mrs. McKellar writes, confirming her cure, and states that she has had inquiries from many people who had heard of the great benefits she obtained from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. LECTURE BY MR. EMERY

Last night, Prof. M. H. Emery gave his second lecture, Hints to the Young Picture Lover. The lecture was interspersed at appropriate periods with violin and vocal music. In the course of his lecture Mr. Emery gave much advice to the picture lover, and while he presented throughout the atmosphere of the artist, the points he made and inferences he drew were convincing and simple from his method of comparison. He touched on many points that concern pictures and painting, and showed the connection that lies between the artist and the picture.

Art, as well as other things, he said should begin at home. And in choosing pictures for the home, good taste is essential, as inappropriate settings or positions may very well destroy the value of a picture.

Mr. Emery compared photographs and paintings, showing in what manner a photograph was merely a likeness of the subject, while the painting, which if it was carried out in the true spirit of the artist, that is with an insight into the character of the person being painted, was different. The one was colorless while the character of the other shone forth. The artist, he said, must get at the human heart of the subject, and penetrate to the centre of his being.

The lecturer then spoke of the early morning and its effect on the artistic sense, and how that might be developed by constant study of the wonderful effects of sunrise.

The musical part of the programme was chosen with Mr. Emery's usual good taste, and was in keeping with the air of his lecture. The following took part: Mrs. Carleton Lee, Mrs. Williams, Miss Holder, Miss Greighton, Miss Froehman, Miss Cullen, Mrs. Henry, and Miss Olivia Murray, violinist.

The programme followed: Break, Break, Break—Trombone; Ave Maria—Angela Macchioni; Sunrise Song—Hrschel; The songs were splendidly sung, the latter two were accompanied by a violin obligato, of Mr. Emery's composition, which was played with fine taste and feeling by Miss Murray.

The audience was fairly large but the lecture and musical programme merited greater attention.

MAY GET A LEGACY.

J. W. Clarke, of Moncton, was in receipt of a telegram yesterday from Harry McCleary, barrister in Los Angeles, stating that an uncle of Mr. Clarke had died leaving an estate of $25,000. The telegram said it would be to the interest of Mr. Clarke to communicate with the barrister.

TITANIC WIDOW, MARRIED AGAIN, IS AT LAW WITH FIRST HUSBAND'S PARENTS OVER BABY

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 15.—The legal struggle for the possession and control of 9. Ross Clark II. will be resumed here Nov. 20, when the question of the permanent custody of the boy will be taken up. Pending that trial an order of the court has placed the boy, who is two and a half years old, in the custody of a nurse. After the Titanic was lost Mrs. Miller returned to this city and remained until early in October, when she left on a visit to New York. In that city she married Jack Tanner, and they went on a honeymoon trip to Europe. When her first husband's parents, the grandparents of the child, learned of this second marriage they gained possession of the baby and kept him until the mother returned from Europe and instituted court proceedings to get her baby. She denied neglecting the boy and said that he had received the best of care. The child's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ross Clark, are wealthy and are eager to care for the boy.

TELLS HOW J. B. McNAMARA BLEW UP TIMES BUILDING

McNamara's Astonishing Story on Witness Stand in "Dynamic Conspiracy" Trial

Indianapolis, Nov. 14.—For the first time since the twenty-one persons were killed in the blowing up of the Los Angeles Times building on October 1, 1910, James B. McNamara's detailed confession to having caused the explosion, with his motive for doing it, and his comments on the fact that so many people were killed, was related on the witness stand in the "dynamic conspiracy" trial today.

Orlie E. McNamara testified the confession was given to him while he was hiding in McNamara in the woods five miles from Cuverville, Wis., both of them having gone to the Wisconsin woods on the pretext of hunting.

Olaf A. Twitmore and Eugene L. Clancy, San Francisco labor leaders, McNamara testified, were named by McNamara as having made arrangements for the Los Angeles explosion and as having furnished the two men, F. A. Schmitt and David Kaplan to assist in buying the high power dynamite, because Schmitt and Kaplan had been regularly employed on the coast by the building trades council in California. Twitmore and Clancy are among the forty-five defendants now on trial.

"Leading up to the Los Angeles explosion J. B. said he found you could get all the money you wanted on the coast. He said Twitmore was the big paymaster and there never was anything to fear from Twitmore as a friend of Mayor McCarthy, and in fact Twitmore was the mayor of San Francisco. He said McNamara was ready to take to Los Angeles he had a talk with Twitmore, telling him either he or Schmitt would have to do the job alone, not both of them. For Schmitt was too much of a talker and had a woman friend in Los Angeles, that he (McNamara) didn't want to get mixed up in the job."

"Then he told me how he had set the bomb in what is known as Ink Alley, in the Times' plant among some ink bottles and old paper. Going in he was stopped by the night watchman who asked him what he wanted there. He replied that he was going to the composing room, the watchman let him pass. He was again stopped by a boy, but he also told the boy he

SUGGESTS NEW ASSESSMENT SYSTEM FOR CITY OF ST. JOHN

E. W. Doty Presents Matter to Commissioners and Assessors—Lauds Rather Than on Buildings

E. W. Doty, an expert on assessment problems from Cleveland (O.), met the city commissioners, the assessors and other city officials last evening in city hall and discussed with them the features of the Somer's unit system of realty valuation. This system is said to give a basis for assessors to work upon and also place the true value of property according to its location. The working out of the valuation of the corner lot is another problem which the Somer system seems to solve.

To illustrate the system, Mr. Doty took a King street block as an example. Those present at the meeting were agreed that the northern side of King street was the most valuable in the city. The block next to Charlotte street was selected and the unit section midway between Charlotte and Germain streets, in King street, was selected and valued. In order not to hurt anyone's feelings the value of this unit was said to be X. The unit midway between King and Union in Charlotte was also valued as a percentage of X. The units similarly located in Union and Germain streets were also valued in the same way.

With the value of these units designated the value of any part of the block can be worked out from the tables invented by Mr. Somer. These tables are mathematical and are used much the same as logarithms. Even the corner value is arrived at with mathematical precision.

In order to arrive at the unit value the value of the assessors are required. Mr. Doty pointed out that in the cities in which the system has already been introduced the assessors get the opinion of the citizens on the value of the lands and the assessments were made up from this.

"The value of land is all a matter of opinion," said Mr. Doty, "and it is the habit of nearly everyone when he hears of a piece of property being sold to make a mental valuation and express approval or disapproval of the price. One person will take a lot on one street and say that it is worth so much and another will put a different valuation on another lot but these two cannot argue as to which is the more valuable until they know the dimensions of the lots and their shape."

"The corner also presents another problem and the presence of alleys and lanes complicates the matter. Taking every lot and valuing it individually makes a great amount of work for the assessors and even then the memory of the assessors is called upon to do too much work."

In some of the cities where the unit system has been introduced the assessors had first had a meeting of real estate men and they drew up plans for the city and set values on the different parts. These were printed and scattered among the citizens. A public meeting was called and the property owners came armed with the diagrams and with the value they would put on the property. The discussion of great benefit to the assessors and when the valuation was fixed upon the citizens agreed to give them the value of a square deal. In one city it took three weeks of public meetings before the value was fixed upon.

"It is in conflict of opinion that we get consensus of opinion," was one of the ideas set forth by Mr. Doty. After the unit of value had been arrived at there was no further trouble as to assessment as the Somer system then stepped in and took up the work. Even the corner problem, which has embarrassed assessors through all time, has been solved by this system, Mr. Doty said.

After the assessment has been made on the land the buildings are considered. The first thing in this connection is to get the cost of putting up the structure and completing it as it stands. Then the deterioration is considered and it is taken according to the age of the building. Some buildings have been wrongly located and these present separate problems.

The system is now being used in Cleveland (O.), and ten other cities and has given every satisfaction, Mr. Doty said. Mr. Doty estimated the cost of establishing the system in St. John at about $5,000 and an expense of about $200 annually to keep it going.

MRS. E. A. SMITH'S LECTURE

Last night in the school room of St. David's church, Mrs. E. A. Smith gave her lecture on Canadian Heroines, in aid of the Home for Incapables. Dr. Thomas Walker, president of the home, was in the chair, and a large audience listened with enthusiasm to Mrs. Smith's inspiring address in which some of the bold and heroic spirit of the Canadian Heroines was told.

Mrs. Smith told in well chosen language of the deeds of Canadian women, some of which had been done far from civilization, where only the inspiration of duty had carried them through. Others, who said women of more standing in the world, had received greater praise, but the inspiration of these almost unknown women still lived, and had a strong influence on their descendants.

The lecturer spoke of those Loyalist women who had come to New Brunswick, and suffered great privations for their families and principles, but their spirit still lived, and was being felt today. Canada, the brightest jewel in the imperial crown, was being built up by the descendants of these heroic women.

At the conclusion of the address, Dr. Walker complimented the lecturer on her splendid handling of her subject. He acknowledged with pleasure the presence of Mrs. Smith to give her aid in the good work for the Home for Incapables.

Dr. Walker moved a cordial vote of thanks to Mrs. Smith, and to the singers who had contributed, referring also to the Loyalist women who had fought for the empire in South Africa. The vote was heartily seconded by C. E. Macmillan.

The following was the musical programme: Mrs. Douthwaite, Thou the Vale, and encore; Mrs. Bell, To the Good-bye; Miss Louise Knight, Away in a Breeze; Fred McKean, Veteran Song and O Canada. The accompanist was D. Arnold Fox.
