200 MILES OF ROADS
BUILT IN MISSOURI

Kansas City, Aug. 21—Encouraged by the result of their efforts on Wednesday, when, according to Governor Major's estimates, 200 miles of new roads were built, Missouri's good roads army started forth yesterday to complete the work so well begun.

Although the number of volunteers who engaged in the first day's campaign, exceeded expectations, reports from nearly every county indicated that a large number were wielding the picks and shovels on Thursday. In some districts farming operations were practically suspended, the farmers having decided the road improvement was the most important work in which they could engage. Governor Major, who, with Governor Hodges, of Kansas, left Jefferson City early Thursday to resume active work in roads, was elated with the successes already achieved.

Bank Manager Optimistic.
Vancouver, Aug. 21—John Aird, assistant general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, arrived here today after an extensive tour of the prairie provinces, and said:

"The business outlook throughout the Dominion is very satisfactory, and I am decidedly optimistic regarding the coming year. The volume of trade and the money market are expanding at a phenomenal rate and thousands of new companies, many provided with ample capital, are flocking to the Canadian West. With a good crop almost assured and the present situation in Europe greatly relieved, I am expecting to see a decided improvement of affairs in Canada by the beginning of 1914."

SENT UP FOR TRIAL

Robert Dickson who was arrested several weeks ago for attempting to stab Adam P. Macintyre, the city comptroller, was sent up for trial at the county court by Judge Ritchie this morning. The county court begins its sittings next Tuesday.

"This is no court of law, it's only a vaudeville," said Philip Horne this morning when brought up on preliminary hearing in the case in which he is charged by his wife with non-support. He was not given a chance to speak at further length as he waived pleading for a higher court. After Deputy Chief Jenkins had testified to his arrest, Horne was sent up to the county court for trial.

HUMORS OF BAD WRITING

(London Tit-Bits)
Sheridan's writing was a scandal to his school and puzzled the town. He once wrote a "pass" to Drury Lane and the doorkeeper stopped its bearer and immediately pronounced it to be a forgery, because he could decipher it! To make matters worse, Sheridan was also uncertain in his spelling. A "which," a "where," and a "whether" in his hands, for instance, were as often as not deprived of their "hitches," and a "thing" was to him always a "think" and nothing more.

The atrocious writing of celebrities recalls the claim once made on behalf of Baron Brannwell that he wrote three hands: "one which he alone could read, another which his clerk could read and he couldn't, and a third which nobody could read," and the last named was his usual style.

Lord Curzon, when a young man at college, once found his bad handwriting stood him in good stead. Writing two letters, one to a relative, the other to a friend, he enclosed them in the wrong envelopes. It chanced that in the second letter he had made some uncomplimentary reference to his relative, and on discovering the mistake he had made he awaited developments with anxiety.

There presently came a letter from the uncle. "I have tried to decipher your scribble," it ran, "but your writing is so atrocious that I cannot make head or tail of it. However, I guess the drift of it to be that you need some money, you require, so I enclose a cheque."

Could Play It
Bad handwriting is not always a handicap in life. The late Lord Goschen once said that his father attributed the foundations of his fortune to the fact that he was obliged to found a firm because he wrote such a bad hand that no one would take him for a clerk. Of Goschen himself, Mr. Arthur Elliott records that "his handwriting got steadily worse, and in his latter years he wrote in a style which was almost illegible."

ST. PATRICK'S HALL, WEST END, AFIRE

Fire broke out this afternoon in St. Patrick's Hall, Carleton, where some shingling, painting and other work had been going on. The flames seemed to have had a fairly good start before the department arrived but they did very effective work and soon had the blaze in hand. The fire broke out through two of the walls and worked its way into the floor but the roof of the structure was untouched. The damage is estimated at upwards of $1,000.
