WOODSTOCK—A PLACE OF HUSTLE

Founded by the Loyalists in the Year 1783—The Early Settlers
The Town Has Been Swept by Fire on Several Occasions, But Always Came Up Better and Brighter
It is Now One of the Most Progressive Towns in the Province—Some Leading Features.

Woodstock, the capital of Carleton county, beautifully situated on the west bank of the St. John at the mouth of the Meduxnekeag, is the most enterprising town in northern New Brunswick. It is the third city in size and commercial importance within the St. John river valley. It is the trade centre for the rich agricultural districts of Carleton, and its progress has been steadily upward. Woodstock is not a boom town, but a town of steady growth, and its front in the general growth of the province. It resembles St. John city in two respects: first, by reason of its main streets being largely up and down hill; second, because it has been frequently and severely scourged by fire, and has on each occasion rebuilt on a better and larger scale. It takes more than a century to build a town, and it takes more than a century to build a town, and it takes more than a century to build a town.

active interest in all that pertains to the prosperity and advancement of Woodstock, in which he is an extensive property holder. Among his other activities he is president of the newly formed Press Printing Company, which has purchased the Woodstock Weekly Press, installing George E. Balmann as secretary and treasurer, and engaging John P. Maloney, an all-round newspaper man, for many years one of the leading spirits of the Carleton Sentinel, as editor and business manager. With new blood and new brains Mr. Lindsay expects the Press to thrive and prosper and to become a power for good in the Upper St. John region. Mayor Lindsay, accompanied by his son, A. Hollis Lindsay, a distinguished graduate of the Halifax School for the Blind, will shortly leave for the St. Louis Fair. The young gentleman, who is a pianist of much more than ordinary ability and genius, proposes entering a leading musical institution in Chicago and there spend the winter pursuing his studies.

Woodstock is well supplied with newspapers, there being in addition to the Press, above referred to, the veteran Carleton Sentinel, which claims to be New Brunswick's oldest weekly, is now in its fifty-seventh year and is published by the Carleton Sentinel Co., and is ably edited by N. Foster Thorne, who is also its managing director. Then the Dispatch, also weekly, is a bright, new, well printed sheet, that has made a name for itself not only in the town but throughout the length and breadth of Carleton County. The three papers appear to enjoy a liberal advertising patronage, which is well supplemented by the time of job printing that steadily flows in from town and country.

The annual Woodstock exhibition, which is to be held this year on September 18, 20th and 21st, is sure to be well patronized from all the region tributary to the town. Expert judges have been secured from Ontario, Maine and other points, and every possible preparation is being made to put the coming fair on a plane far above that of its predecessors. Carleton county is rich in all things that go to make up an attractive and successful agricultural exhibition.

"WOODSTOCK" AND "MEDUXNEKEAG." The origin of the name given to the capital of the garden of the province, as Carleton County is styled, is unknown. Rev. J. Raymond, who it might possibly have been so called by the early settlers who were impressed with the "stock" of wood everywhere greeted their eyes, but is inclined to believe it was more probably named by its nearness to Northampton, which was then the northern parish of York County. The visitor, however, has no difficulty in ascertaining the origin of the name Meduxnekeag, which is from the Maliseet word Medux-ne-keag, signifying in that Indian tongue, rough or rocky at its mouth. In this instance the title was applied to the bed of the river, and its junction with the St. John being composed of rough, rugged rocks, and the river in the winter being a granite bed that crosses the St. John below the river and flats at Woodstock. The land granted to and occupied by the first settlers is embraced in the following order: Captain B. Griffith, who died in 1784, was the first to settle on the site of the present town, and his descendants are still in the possession of their land. Captain Smith's property extended from William Smith's upper line to the mouth of the river, and was known as the "Meduxnekeag." Through the liberality of Colonel Ketchum in presenting to the county of Carleton, a site for the erection of county buildings the site town was established at Woodstock. The site of the town was the best at that time could be desired, the growth of the former site was inconvenient, and not long ago it was deemed expedient to secure a large lot in the heart of Woodstock, on which a modern brick building, also brick, were erected. The court house at Upper Corner is still used, but the time is not far distant when a new and modern court house, such as the Carleton should have, will be erected by the municipality.

The first place of business was opened by the Messrs. Bedell at Bedell's Cove, about three miles below the present town of Woodstock; next in order were Captain Phillips' at the old Sisson place, Col. Ketchum's at the Upper Corner, and Perley & English at the Lower Corner. The first grist mill was erected by Captain Smith near the mouth of the Meduxnekeag, and later on Mr. Fletcher put up a saw mill on the opposite side of the stream. There being no bridge, the creek, so-called, was forded at low water near its mouth, and in freshet time or when high water prevailed, near Elisha Baker's, and thence by the only highway road past Doherty's farm to strike the present main road about a mile above the town.

W. F. Dibble has in his possession valuable historical documents, to wit: the manifest of the ship that conveyed the first settlers from the United States to his province. The paper is in fair preservation and says, Lieut. Col. Baird in his "Seventy Years of New Brunswick Life," the writing and orthography excellent. Its headline reads: "Return of the Families, etc.,

Embarked on board the Union Transport, Consett Wilson, Master, began Huntington Bay, April 11th and completed April 16, 1783. The lines are clearly drawn, showing the number of males, females, children and servants in each family; also the profession or trade. The first name given is Tyler Dibble, Stamford, Connecticut, attorney-at-law; wife, children over ten years, one; servants, two. The total number was 209, as follows: Sixty-five signers, thirty-five women, fifty-five children over ten years old; forty-eight children under ten years old; two servants. Business or calling: Farmers, thirty-six; blacksmiths, two; millwrights, eight; seamen, two; refiner of iron, one; mason, one; carpenter, six; wheelwright, one; joiner, one; cooper, one; weaver, one.

The greater number coming by this vessel settled in Kingston, and only two are known to have gone up the St. John river, namely John Baker and Seth Squires. Many of the names written in the manifest are familiar throughout New Brunswick at the present day: Perley, Raymond, Pickett, Bates, Blenden, Wade, Seem, Scribner, Ferris, Joiner, Marvin, Seem, etc.

EARLY GRAVES. In the old parish churchyard are the graves of numbers of those whose sturdy arms felled the giant trees and carved out a home for themselves and their families in the wilderness. Rev. Dr. Raymond has reproduced a number of the inscriptions on the headstones in this place, and has made a copy a few sides by side on a plain marble slab are the two following inscriptions:

SACRED To the Memory of The Rev. FREDERICK DIBBLE, Who Was Born At Stamford in Connecticut, On the 24th of December, 1738, and DIED On the 17th of May, 1822 In the LXXXIII Year of His Age, and XXXVth of his ministry. Erected as a tribute of Filial Affection By His Children.

SACRED To the Memory of NANCY BEECH, Relict of the late Rev. FREDERICK DIBBLE, first Rector of this Parish, Who Died at Woodstock, April 1838. Aged 81 Years. Was born at Stratford, Connecticut, and came to this Province with her husband, One of the Loyalists. Erected as a tribute of affection by her children.

Another old Loyalist founder of Woodstock, whose descendants are numerous and much respected was Captain George Bull, whose grave is marked by a simple grey stone slab with the inscription:—

Mr. Bull was Born in Ulster County, State of New York, and served as a Lieutenant in the American Legion and came to this Province at the close of the Revolutionary War, in which he continued to reside on Half-pay until his death.

A marble slab near the centre of the churchyard is erected in memory of the late James Upham, whose wife, a daughter of Capt. Jacob Smith, was the first white child born in the parish of Woodstock. The brief inscription reads:—

In memory of JAMES UPHAM, Esq. Brookfield, Mass., 1771. Died at Woodstock, On the 13th of October, 1833. Aged 68 years.

A handsome marble stone with elaborate Masonic emblems marks the last resting place of A. K. Smedes Wetmore; in memory of A. K. S. Wetmore, Esq., Clerk of the Peace for the County of CARLETON, N. B., who died AUG. 7, 1862. In the 69th year of his age.

Beneath a square marble monument repose the mortal remains of the late rector of Woodstock. The inscription reads:—

In 88th year of his age. "Go thou thy way till the end be, for thou shalt rest and stand in thy lot at the end of thy days." Daniel 12, 13.

A plain marble slab erected some years ago recalls the memory of one who was prominent in the early days of Woodstock: SACRED To the Memory of JOHN BEDELL, Esquire, Born December 9, 1735 At Bathurst, New Brunswick, In the then British Colony of NEW YORK He emigrated to this Province at the close of the Revolutionary War, and settled at Woodstock, N. B. He was appointed one of the first Justices of the Peace for the County of York and upon the division of the County

To commemorate the deep feeling of respect and attachment for the memory of the affectionate Parent, the honest and upright magistrate, the sincere Christian and the truly good man, This stone Is erected by his children.

No name was more prominent in the early New England days than that of Winslow. Two of the family, father and son, filled in turn the position of governor of the Colony of Plymouth. Col. Edward Winslow, a great grandson of Governor Edward Winslow, was a prominent Loyalist and afterwards Judge of the supreme court of this province, also at one time administrator of the government. His son, J. P. Winslow, the first sheriff of Carleton Co., is buried in the churchyard at Woodstock, and a handsome marble monument erected beneath the shadow of a lofty elm bears this brief biography:

Not far from the northwest corner of the churchyard an old head-stone preserves the memory of another sturdy old Loyalist, whose descendants are numerous and respected. The inscription reads:—
