Special Values Blue and Black SERGE SUITS

The wisest men are those who grasp good opportunities. Here is a suit we are proud of—a blue and black serge, English cloth, with a finish that doesn't glaze and is very easy to keep clean. The suit is made for service. And at the same time it is made to retain its shape and original elegance. It is exceptionally well tailored by the skillful craftsmen of the famous 30th Century factory. Now here's the point: This same suit sells at Montreal for $22. But a few years ago WE started selling them for $18, and although the manufacturers have since then increased THEIR price to us, we are still offering the suit at the same old price. Perhaps the best possible proof that the suit is as good as we think, lies in the fact that several of our customers have ordered again and again, also advising their friends to purchase this remarkable value.

BRINGING RESCUED CREWS OF FORTY FISHING VESSELS.
One Steamer Has 300 Newfoundlanders and Families Wrecked on Labrador Coast—Worst Storm in Years.
ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Aug. 3.—The crews of the forty fishing vessels which were wrecked by a hurricane off the northern Labrador coast in the early part of last week, have been taken aboard the steamer Flona and the tourist steamer Virginia Lake and are now on their way south to their homes in Newfoundland. The Virginia Lake has 300 fishermen and members of their families who were "on Labrador" for the summer fishing season, while the government cruiser has 113 others. Many of the wrecked men suffered greatly from exposure and hunger at isolated points along the barren northern shores before rescuers reached them. The reports of the disaster which have thus far reached here are still meagre, but it is evident that the loss in vessels and fishing gear was greater than in any storm in recent years. As far as known here only three lives were lost.
Sir William MacGregor, governor of Newfoundland, who was on board the Flona, on an official tour of the Labrador settlement when the disaster was reported, is returning south on the cruiser.
Mrs. Wm. McVay and Miss Allie McVay, of St. Stephen, who have been visiting Mrs. A. C. Smalley at Padenec, returned home yesterday.

WAR SECRETARY HALDANE.
Earlier in the day, Mr. Haldane, Secretary of War, and Viscount Falkland emphasized the need of Great Britain keeping up her armaments, especially her navy, which, they said, should be maintained at such a standard as would enable her to command the sea against any probable combination of hostile powers. They said that these were not the days when any nation could prudently lessen its national defenses, nor that there were any signs of war. On the contrary, they believed that Great Britain, France, all understood each other and were on better terms. Still it was the tendency of all peoples to scrutinize their defenses, and Great Britain must scrutinize hers.

Special Cars for Women are a Failure.

Men Jammed in and Proved Their Right to Slay—Caravanning the New Suffragette Fad.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—Owing to the crowded state of the electric cars from the southern part of London to the city, the County Council decided to begin running a special car for women, as typewriter girls, clerks, etc., were sometimes injured in the struggle for places. Men insisted upon getting aboard the women's car, however, claiming that they had the right to stay on board. When the matter came before the Commissioner of Police he decided that the men had the law on their side. So no special women's car will be run in the future and the women will have to take their chances with the men.

CARAVANNING AND PAGEANTITIES.
Those suffragettes who are not working for the next by-election are combining business with pleasure by going about the country in caravans conducting a propaganda. It is no uncommon sight on the country roads to see a large caravan filled with pretty girls who while enjoying country life are also talking to farmers' wives, interesting the women of the outside world in the cause of woman suffrage. Caravanning is becoming a popular way to spend the summer. Many teachers and other women workers are hiring caravans for this month to travel slowly from place to place. The nights are spent in the caravans, but the days are passed out in the open.
Pageantitis is indeed becoming a disease in England. Now society is affected by it, and this coming week titled "The Suffragette Pageant" will be given at Serby Hall. It will be called King Harry's Revels, and lords and ladies of King Edward's court will impersonate lords and ladies of the court of King Henry VIII. In many cases their own ancestors. As Henry VIII. once visited Serby Hall the pageant will be given on the very terraces where he walked.
When the Duchess of Albany visited the Dover pageant this week the royal standard was run over the hotel where she took luncheon. Presently an Admiralty official called and had the standard hauled down, informing the hotel management that an order had been issued that the royal banner could be flown only when the King was present. Consequently the King's sister-in-law finished her luncheon under the Union Jack.

ELBOW BANGLES FOR ENGAGED MEN.
The newest vogue for engaged men is the wearing of gold bangles above the elbow. The bangle is given by the girl and is locked on. The summer sports of golf, tennis and rowing have revealed just how many athletic youths wear a gold bracelet. Their president was set by the King, who since his marriage has always worn a heavy gold bangle on his wrist.

MAKING GOOD TIME

ST. LOUIS, N. Y., Aug. 4.—T. J. McCaughey, the runner from the West End Y. M. C. A., of Toronto, Ont., who is endeavoring to reach New York with a message to Mayor McClellan, from Mayor Oliver, in 15 days, reached this city last night after a 31 mile hunt from Geneva. He is in good shape and is confident he will accomplish his purpose. He will leave for Rome this morning.

ARMAMENTS ARE NOT ORNAMENTS

Premier Asquith's Plain Talk at Peace Congress.

These are Not the Days When Any Nation Can Prudently Lessen Its National Defences.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—At a government banquet to the delegates to the Peace Conference, Prime Minister Asquith, while cordially welcoming and approving the efforts of idealists in the direction of peace, from which he augured the best results for the future, said he could not indulge in the hope that the youngest person now alive would witness the event of the day of universal armament. He was not impressed by the contention that the complete disarmament of the world would be the best way to prevent war. The expenditure of civilized nations for armaments was now roughly $2,000,000,000. These nations did not buy these things for ornaments, they were intended for use, and some day they would be let loose upon the world. So long as man's nature continued what it was, it would be necessary for prudent statesmen to provide for war. National security must always have first place in the thoughts and plans of the government of any country. Nevertheless, no enterprise was worthier than trying to minimize the risks of war. Real progress in that direction already had been made, first, by the growth of international agreements, such as Great Britain had made in the last two years.

NO HEREDITARY ANTAGONISMS.
He did not advocate alliances for the defensive or offensive. They were sometimes hindrances of peace rather than helps. The second step in the progress made was the substitution of international litigation of war, and, lastly, moral changes. The main thing was for the nations to get to know and understand each other. It would be grossly understating the case to say that half of the international quarrels arose from a lack of understanding. The notion that there are hereditary antagonisms, which it is almost a point of honor to cherish, and national antipathies, which must from time to time find an outlet in carnage, was a pernicious superstition which needed to be eradicated, not only from the minds of children, but of men and of whole communities. Many forces were already moving in that direction. Travel, intercommunication, international trade and education helped, but the strongest hope lay in the efforts of international emissaries of peace, such as those gathered at the present congress.

WAR SECRETARY HALDANE.
Earlier in the day, Mr. Haldane, Secretary of War, and Viscount Falkland emphasized the need of Great Britain keeping up her armaments, especially her navy, which, they said, should be maintained at such a standard as would enable her to command the sea against any probable combination of hostile powers. They said that these were not the days when any nation could prudently lessen its national defenses, nor that there were any signs of war. On the contrary, they believed that Great Britain, France, all understood each other and were on better terms. Still it was the tendency of all peoples to scrutinize their defenses, and Great Britain must scrutinize hers.

A GREAT WELCOME TO BRITISH ENVOY

Remarkable Demonstration at Constantinople.

Italian Ambassador Has Become the Object of Popular Indignation—Recall Demanded.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 3.—The most remarkable scene since the demonstration in honor of the constitution last Sunday was the impulsive welcome given Sir Gerard Lowther, the new British Ambassador, when he arrived at the railway station here. A great crowd, headed by Ali Kemal, a litterateur, who had just returned from exile, assembled in the vicinity of the station with banners, and many of the demonstrators carried the station. There were shouts of "Long live England, liberty and the constitution!" when the Ambassador arrived. All Kemal addressed Sir Gerard extolling England's free institutions, and acclaiming them as an example for the liberated Turks. The Ambassador made an appropriate reply, after which the demonstrators surrounded his carriage, and, shouting and waving flags, escorted him to the quay, where he embarked for Thessalonica.
The Italian Ambassador, on the other hand, has become a victim of popular indignation for aiding in the escape of Selim Pasha, Mehemet, ex-Minister of Mines, who is the best-hated of the Turkish officials. The Mehemet family had long held a high and influential position. Their downfall, as a result of the revolution, is a matter of general rejoicing. Some of them have fled from the country, while others have mysteriously vanished, and probably are in hiding. Habib Mehemet was arrested by Young Turk officers at the Mustapha police station, as he was attempting to flee from the city. Selim Mehemet, two of whose daughters married German military officers, and another an Italian officer, asked the Italian Ambassador for the use of the Embassy's launch for his son, Nihad, who was going to Rome as secretary of the Turkish Embassy. The Ambassador readily consented, but Selim himself used the launch to board a steamer on which he fled, fearing popular hatred. This has now focused on the Ambassador.

RECALL DEMANDED.
The Revolutionary Committee has telegraphed a protest to Signor Tittoni, Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs, and insists that the Ambassador ought to be recalled. The populace threatened to sack the offices of Turchi, the only Italian newspaper here, unless it denounces the Ambassador. The Italian colony shares in the native indignation, and expressed its anger at a public meeting.
The decree of amnesty has now been made effective, and political prisoners have been released, but to the widespread alarm of the law-abiding, there has been a general jail delivery. Why criminals should thus be set at liberty cannot be imagined.

NOVA SCOTIA'S GIFT TO THE PRINCESS OF WALES

The part that Nova Scotia played in the Quebec celebration reflects the greatest credit on the very thoughtful ladies who planned and carried out so successfully the gift that brought Nova Scotia so very prominently to the front in the great celebration at which more notable personages were assembled than we may see again in Canada for many years.

The gift seemed so appropriate, fashioned as it was from the native products of the province, and all made within the province, and the idea of presenting it to the Princess across the seas, was indeed a gracious tribute from the people of Nova Scotia to their future Queen. Then the magnificence of the royal gift would lend splendor even to a throne. A coat of the finest mink, with buttons of finest gold, pearls and amethysts.
The price was, of course, delighted, and well he may be.
G. W. Cooke, of the Dunlop Cooke Co., Ltd., who accompanied the gift to Quebec, returned on Saturday. The presentation was made by Governor Fraser, Premier Murray and Hon. Wm. Fielding.
After the royal party had ample opportunity of admiring the garment, the Prince summoned Mr. Cooke, and full particulars regarding the gift were rendered by the Prince's secretary. His Royal Highness also gave permission to place the garment on view, and notwithstanding that the Chateau Frontenac was crowded, a parlor was reserved for this purpose, and the royal garment shown to the great assemblage of distinguished personages, besides the governors and premiers and members of parliament of the different provinces, and their ladies. Among those who viewed the garment were Lord Strathcona, The Duke of Norfolk, Lord Leat, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, Vice-President Fairbanks, Lord and Countess Grey.
Byron M. Walker, president of the Battle Fields Association, particularly requests that all records of the gift be forwarded to him to be preserved with the records of the anniversary of the founding of Quebec.
The following address accompanied the gift, which seems particularly pleasing to His Royal Highness:—
To the Most Illustrious Prince, George Albert, Prince of Wales, Duke of Saxony, Prince of Coburg and Gotha, Duke of Cornwall and of Rothesay, Earl of Chester, Carrick and Dublin, Baron of Renfrew and Lord of the Isles, Great Steward of Scotland, Knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter, Etc. May it please Your Royal Highness: The people of Nova Scotia desire to take advantage of the opportunity presented by your visit to Canada as the central and august figure in the Celebration of the Three Hundredth Anniversary of the founding of Quebec, to present to Your Royal Highness an address expressive of their deep-seated loyalty to the Throne and Empire, now so fitly represented in your Royal Person.

While regretting that more important engagements prevent you from visiting us at this time, yet we gladly join with all Canada in a welcome which is now the less hearty on account of being denied this pleasure. We confidently look forward to another time when you may find occasion to visit our province, and view the scenes and places, which in the past have contributed so largely to the history of the Great British Empire, and mark as well the progress we are making in our endeavor to march with the times. We beg to assure Your Royal Highness that there is no corner in your Royal Father's Dominions where will be found a stronger attachment to the throne, and to British institutions, or a greater regard for the personality of the Blood-Royal than in the loyal old Province of Nova Scotia by the sea. We trust that this visit of Your Highness to Canada may afford as much pleasure to yourself as we know it will afford to all classes and creeds who owe allegiance to His Most Gracious Majesty King Edward VII. in this broad Dominion, and be the means of cementing more firmly, if that were possible, the ties which bind the new land to the old. We cherish the memory of your visit to this province in 1901, when you were accompanied by your Royal Consort, the Princess of Wales, whose engaging grace and pleasing manner shone then to all our hearts. In remembrance of that occasion we desire to give tangible expression to our feeling in some fitting manner. Herewith we bring a casket of native wood, steel and gold, containing a coat of mink fur, with buttons of gold, wrought with pearls and amethysts, all the product and workmanship of Nova Scotia, which we most humbly request your Royal Highness to present to the Princess in the name of her loving people of Nova Scotia, with an assurance of their fervent wishes, that all happiness may attend her.
"She openeth her mouth with wisdom, and in her tongue is the law of kindness."
On behalf of the people of Nova Scotia.

Grace Murray, Hon. Treasurer.
