BLACK'S HARBOR, N. B.

Private Trains With Thirty Servants.

Mr. R. H. Harriman, the railway king known as "Harriman the Wrecker," in his own country, has gone to Europe for medical treatment. He was born in 1848, the son of a clergyman, and his youth was spent in comparative poverty. Now, when he travels in the United States, he uses a private train that carries in luxury those of either King Edward or the Czar, and carries a staff of thirty servants. One leading New York journal has referred to him as "perhaps the most powerful individual in the United States, not excepting the President," and power, rather than wealth, is what he has always striven to gain. In appearance Mr. Harriman is short, and of a nervous and fussy demeanor. Few men have been more criticized for callousness in business, but his fondness for his own family is said to amount to a passion. He has a strong liking for sport, and delights in reading the works of great orators and preachers. Once an eager reporter called on him, anxious to get his view on an important topic. The millionaire was seated in his library. "Young man," he said, "I suppose you want the truth? You do. Very well, listen to this," and from the book on his knee he read, for half an hour a dissertation on "Truth" by William Eliery Channing.

Bread-making in Other Lands

Bread has almost universal use, although various nations like different breadstuffs, and the style of baking depends upon the locality where it is eaten. The Scandinavians soak the unmilled rye grains, pound them into a mash, and bake lightly in bread discs from one-tenth to one-seventh of an inch thick. There is a large hole in the centre of these cakes, and they are either suspended on strings or racked away on slender poles for future use.

Probably the most satisfactory and nutritious of all hardtack is the white ring bread of Siberia. No salt or yeast is used in making this bread, and it goes through a steaming process before the baking. While surveying the line of the trans-Siberian railroad the Russian engineers subsisted almost entirely upon this bread, and when the rings have been soaked in hot tallow and allowed to cool the "tallow bread" forms one of the finest heat producing foods that can be carried into the arctic regions. Such rings may be converted into lamps giving sufficient heat to warm a tent of boiled coffee, by the simple expedient of inserting wicks into nail holes punched into the bread. These wicks will burn for about an hour, the only disadvantage being a strong odor of toasted bread.

In Italy bread-making is truly an art; some of the loaves for family use are of immense size, shaped like cast wheels, and retaining sufficient moisture to remain edible for a week or ten days. There are at least a dozen kinds of Italian hardtack which the natives consider very fine when eaten with wine or soup, but which the foreigner regards with aversion.

The "staff of life" is used for many purposes remote from the primary idea of sustenance. Worked into the form of dough, it becomes an excellent cleanser of the delicate parts of watches for which purpose no better substitute has ever been found.

The Honest Newsboy

A newsboy was passing along the street when he chanced to discover a Purse full of Greenbacks. He was at first inclined to conceal it; but, repelling the unworthy suggestion, he asked a Venerable Man if "it was his'n?" The Venerable man looked at it hurriedly, said yes patted him on the Head, gave him a quarter, and said he would yet be president. The Venerable man then hastened away, but was promptly arrested for having Counterfeited Bills in his possession; while the honest Newsboy played penny-ante with his humble Quarter, and ran it up to $2.62. Moral--Honesty is Sometimes the Best Policy.

Proverbs for the Week.

SUNDAY.--There are none so wicked as they are represented, nor so good as they ought to be.
MONDAY.--Treat cowardice as an enemy, and you will soon find courage your friend.
TUESDAY.--A bad temper is an awkward thing to have, and yet it is extremely dangerous to lose it.
WEDNESDAY.--A truthful enemy is better than a lying friend.
THURSDAY.--A good heart is worth all the clever brains in the world.
FRIDAY.--He who would eat the fruit must water the growing seed.
SATURDAY.--Do not envy those who are better off than yourself, for probably they are no happier. Because a person has made a fortune it does not follow that he or she is fortunate.

Household Hints.

TO CLEAN WHITE ENAMELED FURNITURE.

Remove all dirty marks with flannel dipped in methylated spirit. Then wash at once with tepid water, to which has been added a little fine oatmeal. Never use soap or soda.

SWEDISH PIE.

Grease a pie-dish and sift bread crumbs over. Then put a layer of cold roast beef cut into small dice, then a layer of tomato slices, and a sprinkling of chopped onion. Three parts fill the dish in this way, and then cover with parboiled potatoes cut in thick pieces. Pour a little highly-seasoned gravy in, and bake for an hour.

BACON FAT.

Should always be saved, as it is most useful in cooking. Put every scrap in a basin, and when you have a good quantity pour boiling water over it, and let it stand till cold. Then take off the fat, put it in a sauce pan, and simmer till all the water is evaporated. Pour into a basin. When cold it can be used for frying, basting and for plain cakes.

MARCARONI A L'ITALIEN.

This is always popular and is really an easily made dish. Boil a quarter of a pound of macaroni in salted water for twenty minutes. Drain off and then put into a sauce pan, with one ounce of butter, one tablespoonful of cheese, two tablespoonfuls of tomato-purée (in bottles) pepper and salt. If necessary, put in also a little good stock. Stir well over the stove for a few minutes and serve.

WHEN CHOOSING EGGS.

Always select those that have a dull, opaque shell in preference to those with a shiny shell.

STRAW MATTING.

That has been laid some time is apt to get dull looking. Try washing it well with salt and water. Add a handful of salt to three parts of a bucket of tepid water.

Unique Surgical Operation

The extraordinary operation of grafting a section of a bone of a lamb into the right leg of Docaral Townsend was performed with complete success in Chicago the other day.

Townsend, who is an elevator operator is reported to be "getting along well and with all appearances of progression toward recovery."

He was suffering from a compound fracture of the leg when taken to the hospital. The patient's leg is still in a cast.
