THERE ARE OTHER JUNE BRIDES

CORA OF KOREA AND THE HAPPY GROOM.

Cora isn't a Korean name, but for purposes of identification it will do as well as some of the Korean jawbreakers found over there. The Korean bride amounts to the proverbial "little potatoes," as you may see by the way the bride and groom dress. Her wedding dress is a cross between the groom's elaborate costume, which includes a pair of wide—very wide trousers and shirt, both spotlessly white, a scarlet vest worn in place of a coat and, to crown them all, a sort of a bird cage made of the hair of his ancestors.
