I care not how labyrinthine the mausoleum or how costly the sarco-phagus or however beautifully par-terred the family grounds, we want them all broken up by the Lord of the resurrection. They must come the resurrection. They must come out. Father and mother—they must come out. Brother and sister-they must come out. Our darling child-ren—they must come out. The eyes that we closed with such trembling fingers must open again in the radiance of that morn. The arms we folded in dust must join ours in an embrace of reunion. The voice that was hushed in our dwelling must be returned. Oh, how long some of you seem to be waiting for the resurrection! And for these broken hearts to-day I make a soft, cool bandage out of Easter flowers. This morning I find in the risen mortal! Immortal! on the say in regard to ask them. I do not pretend to answer them. I fall back upon the announcement of God's word. "All who are in their graves, shall come forth."

You have noticed, I suppose, in reduction that almost every account of the Bible gives the idea that the characteristic of that day will be a great sound. I do not know that it will be very loud, but I know it will be a great sound. I do not know that it will be very loud, but I know it will be a great sound. I the mansoleum where silence has reigned a thousand wears that votee must penetrate. In the corat cave of the deep that vote must penetrate. Hundreds of spirits hovering about the fields of Gettysburg, for there the bodies are buried. A hundred thousand spirits coming to Greenwood, for for the reunion of body and soul, All along the sea route from New York to Liverpool, at every few miles where a basteamer went down, departed spirits coming back, hovering over the wave. There is where the City of Boston perished. Found at last. There is where the President perished. Steamer found at last. There is where the Central America went down. Spirits hovering, hundreds of spirits hovering, waiting for the reunion of body and soul. Out on the prairie a spirit alights. There is where a traveler died in the snow. Crash goes Westminster Abbey, and the poets and the orators come forth; wonderful mingling of good and bad. Crash go the pyramids of Egypt, and the monarchs come forth.

Who can sketch the scene? I suppose that one moment before that general rising there will be an entire silence, save as you hear the grinding of a wheel or the clatter of the hoofs of a procession passing into the cemetery. Silence in all the caves of the earth. Silence on the side of the mountain. Silence down in the valleys and far out into the sea. Silence. But in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, as the archangel's trumpet comes pealing, rollcrashing, across the mountain. and sea, the earth will give one terrific shudder, and the graves of the dead wift heave like the waves of the sea, and Ostend, Sepastopol and Chalons will stalk forth in the lurid-air, and the drowned will come. up wring out their wet locks above the billows, and all the land and all the sea become one moving mass of life-all faces, all ages, all conditions, gazing in one direction and upon one throne—the throne of resurrection. "All who are in their graves shall come forth.' "But," you say, "if this doctrine of the resurrection is true, as prefigured by this Easter morning, can you tell us something about the re-surrected body?" I can. There are mysteries about that, but I shall tell you three or four things in regard to the resurrected body that are beyond guessing and beyond mistake. In the first place, I remark in regard to your resurrected body, it will be a glorious body. The body we have now is a mere skeleton of what it would have been if sin had not marred and defaced it. Take the most exquisite statue that was ever it here and there and then stand it out in the storms of a hundred years and the beauty would be gone. Well, Berlin, April 10.—Herr Eugene Richter, in the Freisinige Zeitung, says:

"The question whether the emperor can claim an author's rights, and thereby the publication of his speeches as been thoroughly discussed by the reichstage committee on copyright reform. The committee with the consent of the government adopted unanimously a resolution that such speeches were common property and subject to reprint as they always have been."

a thousand years. But in the resur-rection morn that veil will be taken away from the face, and the noon-day sun is dull and dim and stupid compared with the outflaming glories of the countenances of the saved. When those faces of the righteous, those resurrected faces, turn toward the gate or look up toward the throne, it will be like the dawning of a new morning on the bosom of everlasting day. O glorious, resurrected

But I remark also, in regard to that body which you are to get in the resurrection, it will be an important body. These bodies are wasting away. Somebody has said that as soon as we begin to live we begin to die. Unless we keep putting the fuel into the furnace the furnace dies out. The blood vessels are canals taking the breadstuffs to all parts of the system. We must be re-constructed hour by hour, day by day. Sickness and death are all the time trying to get their pry under the tenement or to push us off the embankment of the grave. But, blessed be God, in the resurrection we will get a body immortal.

malaria in the air, no cough, no neuralgic twinge, no rheumatic pang, no fluttering of the heart, no shortness of breath, no ambulance, no disbodies. In the resurrection which will come up?' You say: "A man will die and his body crumble into the dim resident to the di into the life of the vegetable; an animal may eat the vegetable; men eat the animal. In the resurrection, that body, distributed in so many directions; how shall it be gathered up?" Have you any more questions dim vision, but health, the time. Grand projects of mercy for other worlds. Victories to be celebrated. The downfall of despo-tism on carth to be announced. Great expeditions on which God shall do, but no fatigue. If you are seated under the trees of life, it will not be to rest, but to talk over with some old comrade old times—the battles where you fought shoulder to should-

Sometimes in this world we feel we would like to have such a body as done for Christ, there are so many tears to be wiped away, there are so many burdens to life, there is so much to be achieved for Christ, we sometimes wish that from the first of January to the last of December we' could toil on without stopping to sleep or to take any recreation or to could toil right on without stopping a moment in our work of commend-ing Christ and heaven to all the peo-ple. But we all get tired. It is a characteristic of the human body in this condition; we must get tired. Is it not a glorious thought that we are going to have a body that will never grow weary? O glorious resur-rection day! Gladly will I fling aside this poor body of sin and fling it into the tomb if at the bidding I shall have a body that never wear-

I heard of a father and son who among others were shipwrecked at sea. The father and son climbed into the rigging. The father held on, but the son after awhile lost his hold on the rigging and was dashed down. The father supposed he had gone hopelessly under the wave. The next day the father was brought ashore from the rigging in an exhausted state and laid on a bed in a fisherman's hut, and after many hours had passed he came to consciousness and saw lying beside him on the same bed his boy. Oh, my friends, what a glorious thing it will be if we wake up at last to find our loved same plot in the graveyard, coming up in the same morning light-the father and son alive forever, all the loved ones alive forever, never more to weep, never more to part, never

Mr. Clancy took exception to the provision that one half of any penalty imposed under the act, should be payable to the informant. The bill stands for a third reading.

The balls of the minister announced that a supplementary estimate would have to be brought down in addition to the $500,000 vote in connection with this year's rail purchase, after the deduction of the value of the old rails to be replaced.

Mr. Hagyart asked many questions in regard to the Intercolonial. Replying to him, Mr. Blair stated that the Clergue iron contained from 2 to 4 per cent. of nickel, but that the argument in regard to the rail purchase contained no pro-
