Brings Disgrace and Sorrow to a Prominent Washington Politician and Family

BY HIGHWAY ROBBERY AT NOME

Son of Ex-Senator J. B. Allen in Hold-up Business

TOMMY DOLAN HIS PARTNER

Manager of N. A. T. & T. Co. the Victim—Each Robber Got 15 Years.

From Tuesday's Daily.

From parties who have recently arrived from the outside, word is received of an incident which transpired in Nome last winter which had a disastrous termination for those connected with it, one of whom is well known in Dawson and another is one of the oldest and most respected families of the state of Washington.

The incident referred to was a hold-up of a typical Jesse James order which took place on the streets of Nome late one night during the month of March. The brigands taking part in the affair being "Kid" Hawkins, Tommy Dolan and George Allen, the latter being a son of ex-United States Senator John B. Allen, of Washington. Dolan is well known in Dawson. He is a brother of Eddie Dolan, the comedian, and was a partner of Dave Evans in 418 below discovery Hunter, who killed his mistress and then himself during the winter of '98. Of Hawkins nothing is known here.

On the night of the holdup a Mr. Elton, superintendent of the N. A. T. & T. Co. at Nome was returning to his cabin some what under the influence of liquor. As he rounded the corner of one of the principal streets he was suddenly confronted by three men wearing masks who pointed guns at his head and commanded him to throw up his hands. He did so and was promptly relieved of $350 in cash and a few nuggets he carried as pocket pieces. It was some hours later when Remelton reached his cabin most dead than alive from the fright he had received while in the manful condition and it was several days before he fully regained his mental equilibrium. He at once gave the alarm, but his assailants had long since made their escape. For some reason suspicion attached itself to Hawkins, Dolan and Allen and they were arrested. Each protested his innocence and when the case came up for trial an alibi was sworn to in the case of the last two named. The case of the prosecution was principally circumstantial evidence, which, however, was substantiated by the testimony of a man named Cherry, who swore to having witnessed the entire affair. The jury found the culprits guilty and all three were sentenced to 15 years at hard labor. They will be confined at either McNeil island, near Tacoma, or San Quentin, California, both being United States penitentiaries. There is a strong belief among many of the residents of Nome that the men are innocent and a concerted effort is being made on the part of their friends to secure their release.

It is said that when Senator Allen, now a resident of Seattle, first learned of his son's disgrace and the ignominy thrust upon his family he was so completely prostrated that for a time his life was despaired of.

O'BRIEN CLUB RAIDED LAST NIGHT

When All Paraphernalia Including Bank Roll Was Taken.

FIRST IN HISTORY OF DAWSON

Manager of Club and Several Other Persons Found Therein Heavily Fined in Police Court Today.

From Tuesday's Daily.

If the O'Brien Club had been filled with old time sports last night shortly after midnight they would certainly have been reminded of home, sweet home, when the establishment was inside the apartments engaged in various occupations, some leisurely reading and others lost in profound thought as to what was coming next. In addition to the manager of the club and his bartender, were J. C. Douglas, C. A. Ingram, Harry Miller, John Anderson and Harry Woolrich.

At the time no game was in progress though there was ample evidence that several had been dallying with the fickle maid a short time prior to the intrusion. The fare layout was in position, check rack and cases were evidenced and scattered about were checks and coppers. The officers confiscated everything in sight pertaining to gambling, seized the bank roll containing $1000, and ordered all hands to appear in the police court this morning at 10 o'clock.

When the cases came up before Inspector McDonnell today, Capt. Scarth appeared as prosecutor and Wm. McKay for the defendants. Two charges were laid against the manager of the club, one that of keeping a common gambling house, and the other with having permitted gambling on the premises of which he was licensee. To the former a plea of not guilty was entered. Capt. Scarth, Sergeant Beys and a constable testified to the raid and what and who were found in the rooms at the time. The only contention of the defense was that the O'Brien Club was not a common gambling report as charged in the information, nor had it been formed for any illegal purposes whatsoever, and the charter issued to the club was submitted in evidence. The court announced that a private club was no more immune from arrest for infractions of the law

EXECUTING THE ORDER TO CLOSE GAMBLING.

WHERE IS J. W. ROGERS?

He Has Not Been Seen Since Last Wednesday Night.

J. W. Rogers, who at one time was interested in 34 Gold Run, has recently disappeared and there are several parties who are seeking his whereabouts. Warrants have been issued for his arrest on charge of obtaining money under false pretenses by getting bogus checks cashed on the Bank of British North America. John Moe, of the Dominion saloon, holds one check for $100, Murray and Ross, of the Bonanza, another and Powell, of the Monte Carlo, a third, each for the same amount.

Several other parties are also anxiously waiting for him to turn up and settle accounts which have long since become due and payable. The last seen of Rogers was last Wednesday evening, when he was interviewed by one of his creditors and he then promised to call the next morning and settle his account. During the night he disappeared like the mist before the wind and has not been seen since. Wires have been sent to Fortymile, Eagle City and Whitehorse for his apprehension should he attempt to pass any of those places.

J. W. Rogers was formerly a partner with Nelson A. Soggs and others in 34 Gold Run, and the trouble that existed between them is still fresh in the minds of Dawsonites nearly all of whom were in sympathy with the latter.

raided by the police. The only things missing in order to have had the remembrance made complete would have been a number of blind exits, ladders and scuttles holes by which an escape could have been effected via the roof to the adjoining buildings. In the gaming houses in the states where gambling is prohibited and where a raid is periodically expected there is generally a foyer to be traversed between the outer and inner doors and the latter are built so strongly that by the time the police have battered them down all the birds have flown and the officers when an entrance is effected are greeted with nothing but empty chairs and ethereal space.

Last night's actions on the part of the police have demonstrated conclusively that when gambling was ordered to cease on June 1st it was intended that the order should be permanent and the strict letter of the law was to be carried out. It was contended by many on the street this morning that the raid was expected and a test case would be made; that a nominal fine would probably be administered, then gambling would again open up, removed, however, from the view of the street, and that hereafter periodical fines would be imposed similar to the way in which such affairs were conducted a couple of years ago. The pessimists who made such predictions know better now.

The raid was conducted by Inspector Scarth underwritten authority from the commanding officer. At 12:30 this morning Capt. Scarth accompanied by Staff Sergeant Beys and five constables mounted the stairs leading to the O'Brien Club over the Dominion saloon. The door leading to the room was found locked and upon the officers knocking, some one was heard to approach from within, but they failed to shoot back the bolts barring the entrance. With a drop kick acquired only through long practice with the pig skin, Capt. Scarth caved the door in, splitting it from top to bottom. Seated than a public gambling room. The defendant was found guilty, the sentence of the court being that he should pay a fine of $100 and costs or serve two months at hard labor, and that everything seized in the rooms should be confiscated, including the bank roll of $1000. To the second charge, a plea of guilty was entered and a further fine of $100 or one month's imprisonment was imposed. Those who were rounded up in the raid had a little of the same thing handed to them. The charge as contained in the information was that they did play at a game of chance in the O'Brien Club, the same being a common gambling resort. J. C. Douglas was first up. He admitted being present when the raid took place, but denied doing any gambling. The court said that presence was sufficient for a conviction in such cases and one did not necessarily have to be caught in the very act of gambling. He was found guilty and assessed $25 and costs or 14 days at hard labor.

C. A. Ingram had gone there to meet a man from Gold Run and was not playing. The making of the club a rendezvous cost him $25 and costs. Harry Miller and Harry Woolrich were sitting in a room adjoining the club and as it is an apartment merely used as a reading room, they escaped the fine. The cases against them were dismissed.

John Anderson pleaded guilty to being present, but not gambling and he, too, was fined $25 and costs. The present is the first raid of the kind ever made in Dawson and from the vigorous punishment administered it is likely the lesson will have a most salutary effect upon those who have a penchant for the high card. The fines imposed were all paid.

POSTMASTER HARTMAN

Thinks Dawson Preferable to Outside for a Home.

Postmaster Hartman, of Dawson, accompanied by his wife and youngest son, were passengers on Monday evening's train on their way inside. Mr. Hartman has been enjoying a three months' vacation and is now anxious to get back to his post of duty.

He has visited Eastern Canada and has spent a lot of time in the states of Washington and Oregon. In an interview with a Tribune reporter he said "Americans in Dawson have done so much talking about the poor roadways to the mines and the slow Canadian methods of development. Why I have in the past month traveled quite a little in Washington and Oregon over roads that are far worse than the roads in the Klondike have been at any time, and roads on the outside can be built so quickly and at comparatively little cost." He says the people in the east have a very vague idea of the country, and do not understand why it takes so much to accomplish so little, but the visit of the ministerial party about the middle of this month, he feels, will greatly facilitate matters in the way of appropriations.

Speaking of the new buildings that have been erected in Dawson within the past year, he says the finest, from his point of view, is the postoffice and he hasn't found anything on the outside in that line quite as good. Mr. Hartman is a very enthusiastic Yukoner and says the outside is all right to visit about once a year, but for a desirable place to live he prefers Dawson.

Mr. Hartman has endeared himself to Dawsonites by his conscientious fulfillment of duty as a postmaster and as a man of superior executive ability. He says he is going in now with the determination to remain there for at least five years.—Whitehorse Tribune.

A Judicial Trip.

Some time during the latter part of the month Mr. Justice Dugas will make a trip to Whitehorse, partially for the purpose of establishing a territorial court at that point and thus save to the territory and to litigants the expense of bringing cases and witnesses to Dawson for hearing. None of the officers of the court at Dawson will accompany the court, it being within the power of his lordship to appoint such officers for the various duties at the point where the court is convened. It is understood there are several cases ready for trial and final adjudication at Whitehorse as soon as the court is organized and ready to hear them.

More Mascots.

The fireman of fire hall No. 2 are anticipating the arrival of a couple of pet bears from Fortymile, which they propose shall be their future mascots. With the experience gained in their heretofore futile efforts to bring up cubs, they hope these latest importations will not so soon be cut down in the very flower of their youth as the others have been.

Small Fire.

Last evening the fire department was called to the new office of the Ladue saw mill where a fire had started in the roof. The chemical and hose cart from the fire hall opposite the N. A. T. & T. Co. responded quickly, but the fire was put out by a few buckets of water so that the chemical was not needed. It is thought the fire was caused by a spark from the mill alighting on the roof.
