TO CIVILIZATION.

Will Stevens Writes He Has Once More Returned.

A Chatty Letter From Stratheona, N. W. T.—Having a Good Time.

From his son Will, who is with a surveying party in the Northwest, N.
H. Stevens, of the Kent Mills, has received the following chatty letter. It is probably the last Will will write before coming home:

Stratheona, Alta., Oct. 12th,
The Royal Hotel.

Dear Father,—Arrived here Saturday. We couldn't work because of the snow, so we thought it better to come to town, than to stay out there doing nothing. We left Friday morning and found the roads very bad. Two of the bronches were nearly played out at noon, so they were given lighter loads to pull in the afternoon. We made fourteen miles, and I walked the full distance with heavy boots on. It was a great sight to see civilization again, and to walk on a sidewalk was a positive luxury I assure you. I put the tents up hurriedly and then looked up town like so many boarding school girls, and though it is putting it strongly, I believe we evinced as much curiosity as they do when a stranger comes to town. The Strath-conans, as you know, are accustomed to seeing people in all sorts of dress, gazed at us curiously, and no doubt wondered what nation we belonged to. Rip Van Winkle compared to us presented a gentlemanly appearance.
Arch, and I went to get our photos taken, but the photographer must have been forewarned of our coming, as he was nowhere to be found. Rather than wait over Sunday with the superfluous hair on to have our photos taken, we made out way to hotel shop and after much scraping, chopping and cutting, the barber got the summer's shell off and found us

PERFECTLY SAFE
beneath it. It was cold in the tents, so we came up here and got a room.
It was good to sleep in a bed again, and be able to move without getting the blankets off and freezing.

We called on Mr. Rutherford, brother of Mr. J. A. Rutherford, Bismarck, Monday, and had a pleasant chat with him. I saw the mighty Saskatchewan for the first time Tuesday.
It changed completely the mind picture I had formerly had. It is wider than the Thames, and its banks are so steep and high that it is equal to half a day's work to climb up them.
The current is as swift as the Thames at high water. There were a great many gold dredges along its banks but none of them are working. They are built on the same principle as the Simon's saw saw, which sucks up the sand from the bottom of the Thames. A fine new bridge on three piers is built across the river. I thought Edmonton was just on the opposite side from Stratheona, but it's a good hour's walk between the towns.

I went to Morris' store, (sons of Postmaster Morris, Bismarck), store and found them very busy. They have a swell new brick store and warehouse, each two stories high. The store also has a basement. They deal in groceries and dry goods, and seem to be making money fast. They employ three clerks. Joe took me over to the Club House, and put me down on the visitors' book for a week so that I can go there whenever I wish. I went up to dinner with Jack.
He has just finished his new house, which is complete to the minutest detail and has all the latest improvements. His wife is simply perfect.
We had prairie chicken and duck for dinner. After living on pork and beans all summer, you can imagine what a treat this was to me. Something which struck me as

RATHER FUNNY
was their method of obtaining water.

It is delivered the same as ice. Two barrels a week are brought to each house at a cost of $1.50 a month.
In the afternoon Garn, Morris and I went down to Miner's coal mine. We lighted a miner's lamp and started in the main shaft. It is just large enough for a car to pass in, and some places we almost had to crawl. We would bump our Christies once in a while, but we had started, and determined to see the men working. We followed the shaft to the end, finding no person, so we went into a branch shaft, and after padding through water and grease, we finally came to the miners. They were working in a stooping position, as the shaft was not high enough to allow them to stand, and how they ever managed to stick it out for a day, I don't know.

They didn't take coal from either side but just kept taking coal from ahead, making a hole about four feet square and placing braces every two and a half feet. There is no gas in the mines, so that a match can be lighted there with absolute safety. The miner told us we were in about 600 feet. He said they were working at a disadvantage. They worked their mines summer and winter and went to some expense to keep them going.
Farmers, when there was ice, came and dug the coal where it was easier and at no expense, and the regular miners had to compete with them.
Coal is everywhere abundant, and any person can get it just for the digging and hauling. At present it is delivered for $2.75 a ton.

A LABOR SAVING FERRY.

I went home at night by the ferry and found here a great saving of labor that sometimes had been a serious drawback. A strong cable is fastened to either bank high up from the water. Along this two pulleys are run, kept apart by a wooden cross-piece. A long rope is passed through pulleys at each end of the ferry and the ends are fastened to the pulleys on the cable. Midway between the pulleys on the ferry the rope passes around a crank. When the crank is turned it shortens the rope alone and lengthens it at the other, thus allowing the ferry to change its direction.
When the ferry man wishes to cross he turns the crank so that the ferry is in the direction desired. The current and the water then push it along, just the same as the winds send a sail boat along, and the ferry shoots across in no time.

They were thrashing at Rutherford's farm yesterday, so I went out there to see it.
Garn, Morris and I were out shooting Wednesday, but the birds were evidently afraid of us. We only saw nine chickens and partridges, seven of which we got. Three ducks were housed, three miles away, and got it fixed so that we wouldn't get to town all right. We didn't have anything to eat all day and didn't get into town until seven o'clock. However, the soon made up for lack of food by finishing two prairie chickens between us.

I will return home as soon as we are paid. When in camp I didn't notice so much what life in the country was, but here I do, and I don't think I would care to remain on a ranch for any length of time.

Affectionately your son, WILL.

The Only Home Package Dyes in the World That Give Perfect Results.

The scientific preparation of dyestuffs and putting them up in proper shape for family dyeing has been brought to perfection by Wells and Richardson Co., who are proprietors of the celebrated Diamond Dye.

These popular dyes have banished from the homes of Canada madder, fustic, logwood, cochineal and all other antiquated dyestuffs. The work or home dyeing is now done quickly and successfully by Diamond Dyes; the process is one that would astonish our grandparents.

To-day, millions all over the world use the scientific Diamond Dyes in preference to all others. Diamond Dyes commend themselves to all who use them, because they are the strongest, brightest and fastest, and the easiest to work with.

Diamond Dyes, like all other perfect and popular preparations, are largely imitated in style of package and the way they are put up. These imitations are worthless and adulterated dyes, ruinous to all kinds of goods and dangerous to handle. Great caution is advised when buying dyes for home use. Ask only for the "Diamond" and see that the name is on every package.

He has not learned the lesson of life who does not every day surmount a fear.—Emerson.

Just so sure as the celebrated black teas of Ceylon and India have displaced the China growth, just so sure will the new and superior uncolored teas. These new teas being introduced by the Ceylon and India planters supercede the teas of Japan, the British grown teas being full of strength, flavor and stimulating qualities, while the Japanese teas are all more or less adulterated with Prussian blue coloring, which is injurious to health.

The "Salada" Tea Company are offering these new green teas in the regular sealed lead packets.

A FINE INSTITUTION.
Three of the C. C. L. teachers, Messrs Paterson, Jewett and Black, made an inspection of the work done in the Central High School, of Detroit, on Thanksgiving day. In the school 60 teachers are employed, and there is an attendance of sixteen hundred pupils.
No expense is spared for the comfort of teachers and pupils and for the efficiency of the work. In a word, the school is splendidly equipped, and there is an abundance of money for the school expenses of Chatham, should visit this institution in Detroit, and see with what generous hand public money has been expended.
The auditorium for lectures, concerts and debates is as large as the Chat-Chatham opera house, and as well furnished. The appliances for teaching science in its various departments are numerous, elaborate, and complete.
The library is a special feature, as many as sixty copies being kept of certain books that are commonly consulted.
