The Vital Question.

Lady of the month's waist.
Lady of the month's waist.
Just to keep your form ensue
In such garments as you use,
Most make some man wish to be
Get out ere the day is born.
Come and go with little rest,
Standing slight, and crowning morn.
Some man has to dig and sweat,
Studying the ways of trade,
Will his life with care and fret
But when you are done arrayed
You're a sight as you go by
To make male hearts palpitate.
I think you're looking simply great.
Would you know the thought that knots
At my mind some man's mind?
When I view your shining locks
I'm an eye as you're looking well.
In your hair I see the thought
That's in your heart's desire.
Thinking up the best way to
Hurry up to the door.
When I hear the siren wail
Of things the world sees not,
There is just one little wail,
Just one question I have put,
On my mind—I would not ask
You so much, your grace I beg,
But that that I would ask
Lady, can you hold an egg?

The Same Old Story.

After the lamp had been lighted in the cozy little sitting-room of the old farmhouse, Farmer Shelton leaned back in his arm chair and buried himself behind the pages of his newspaper. Usually, at this time the worthy man might as well have been in some distant land, so deep he went into the latest items of interest; but to-night, his eyes ran aimlessly down the columns and wandered inevitably to the closed parlor door. Several times he looked at his wife but she was so intent upon her knitting that she did not notice his questioning glances. Once he coughed to attract Mrs. Shelton's attention, and the clatter made by the hired girl, who was washing dishes in an adjoining room, entirely smothered the sound of his voice. Finally he folded the paper and tucked it carefully away in his pocket; then he leaned forward and touched his wife gently on the arm.

"Amy," he whispered, nodding towards the parlor, "they're mighty quiet in there. It must be awful hard for a girl to entertain a fellow like him."
"Margaret cares for him, John," she answered; "and that makes a lot of difference."
"Well, he will have a hard time getting her, or any other girl," he murmured. "Or rather," he corrected, "she will have a hard time getting him."
His wife laid her knitting in her lap and began stroking gently the hand he had laid on the arm of her chair. Her own hand was soft and smooth and, with her bright, un-inked face, bore eloquent testimony to the loving care of her husband.

"I believe you are afraid of losing Margaret," she smiled.
"Well, not exactly," Shelton said, hesitatingly, looking earnestly at the flickering flames of the open fire place; "but the fact is he is so eternal-y bashful. Why, imagine him sitting in there holding hands, like we are now."
"That comes easy after living together twenty-five years," Mrs. Shelton laughed back. "And I remember that you first knew me. When you called at the house you always asked for one of my brothers."
"Yes, but that galoot doesn't ask for anybody," Shelton defended himself.

"When I opened the door for him to-night he just stood there and fingered his hat, and gazed. And when I showed him into the parlor he put his new derby in a chair, folded his gloves carefully beside it, and then set his feet down on top of it. I could hardly keep from laughing at the way his face turned red when he found what he had done."
Mrs. Shelton leaned back in her chair and laughed until the tears came; then she rubbed her eyes on one corner of her white apron and said:
"No, Robert," she cried, "you did not come to say that—you told me that last night. You came to say you loved me, and to be your wife, I love you, and if—"
A bashful young man became a very bold one and crossed the room with extended arms; and the confession was finished against his heart. Shelton closed the door noiselessly and stole away, coughing hoarsely to make believe that the mist of tears in his eyes had been caused by a sudden cold. He knelt down by his wife's chair and bowed his head in her lap. "You're right, Amy," he whispered. "It's the same old story, after all."

When Sleep Fails You

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD will bring rest, comfort and vitality by building up the nervous system.
Mr. Jas. Wesley Weaver, a veteran of the Fenian Raid, Fort Dalhousie, Ont., writes:—"For years I was afflicted with nervousness and dreaded insomnia, so that I never knew for three years what a full hour's sleep was, never more than dozing for a few minutes at a time. Heart pains and headaches almost drove me wild. I had spells of weakness and cramps in stomach and limbs.
"Though I tried several doctors, it was money uselessly spent. Finally Dr. Chase's Nerve Food was brought to me and eight boxes cured my insomnia. It is simply wonderful what benefit I have obtained from this treatment."
Sleepless ones, headaches, are warnings of approaching nervous collapse. You can positively remove these symptoms and prevent prostration of the system by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50 cents a box, or $2.50 at all eight boxes cured my insomnia. Write for free copy of Dr. Chase's Receipts.

Acadia Alumni in New York City.

On Monday evening, Nov. 21st, about fifty Alumni of Acadia College and friends met at the Aldine Association rooms, 300 Fifth Ave., for the purpose of meeting Dr. George B. Cullen, President of Acadia, and listening to a report of the progress of the work of their Alma mater.
Rev. C. A. Eaton, D. D., pastor of the Madison Ave. Baptist church, New York City, called the meeting to order and after introductory remarks presented Dr. Cullen, who was received with very hearty applause. In a straight forward and concise manner he presented the progress of the progressive aspects and told of the new Seventy-fifth Anniversary movement. At the close of his address a committee consisting of Dr. C. A. Eaton, chairman, Rev. J. L. Miner, Prof. Frank Morse, Mr. Chittick, Rev. J. A. Huntley was appointed to draw up a constitution for an Associated Alumni organization in New York City. After a hour and a half and after dinner speeches by Rev. W. R. Wallace, D. D., Rev. A. H. C. Moore and Rev. J. A. Huntley, of Brooklyn, and Mr. George Higgins, of Manhattan, the meeting adjourned subject to the call of the chairman of the Committee on constitution. Mr. Wylie C. Mergeson has been very active in getting together and aiding in the plans for the formation of an Associated Alumni Society for New York.

The Japanese Way.

The island of Formosa, situated off the coast of China, is now a Japanese possession, and Japan is setting about the work of pacifying the country in her own peculiar way. The interest in Formosa is not its peaceful rice growing tame lowlands, but a core of volcanic mountains, 4,000 feet high, inhabited by dwarf aborigines. They are few—not over 20,000—but they have bought Mausers, and they are the color of the gray granite on which they live.

to accept the tax-gatherer of Japanese rule. Force, active, able to climb anywhere, good shots, having no wants and few virtues but courage, they hold their mountain valleys against all comers.
So Japan has begun the task of conquest. The Japanese forces have brought 300 miles of barbed wire fencing, fenced in the territory, in a great loop from coast to coast, set up dynamo, worked them by water power from the streams and charged the whole 300 miles, so it is death to the touch. Around this is the Japanese force, with mountain howitzers and gatlings. Each day a section of barbed wire is moved inward, the jungle well searched, the natives gathered in and a junction made with the dynamo. The next day the electric cage moves again.

If you are suffering from biliousness, constipation, indigestion, chronic headache, neuralgia, or any other ailment, send to Chamberlain Medicine Co., Des Moines, Iowa, with your name and address plainly on the back, and they will forward you a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Sold by Rand's Drug Store.

The Value of Play

It is a strange thing that we have not awakened up to the value of organized play for our children. Long ago we conceived the magnificent idea of a free and complete public school system. Now we are learning that not education alone is important, but play as well. Play is an instinct with a child. Indeed, the instinct never departs from people who find their true calling in life. The work that counts to life is the work that is a man's play. The child must have it. But where? We have failed to ask this question early enough, with the result that the boys have found their amusement on the streets, in this way have organized gangs, and thus have cultivated many criminals. The supervised playground breaks up the gang and develops the boy properly. No boy plays on the street when there is better play to be had in a park or in the house.

Hence the wisdom of controlling play. Our educational system is very complete so far as the intellectual side is concerned, and in Nova Scotia we have achieved something unique in our system of technical education. We would no doubt be taking a position of leadership if our government were to adopt legislation providing for the addition of supervised play grounds in connection with our schools. It will be very advantageous, and the money for it would be wisely spent, if the usual field house were more elaborately constructed.

"IT HEALED MY SORES WHEN ALL ELSE HAD FAILED!"

This is what Mr. Edward Bingham, of 118 Brant Ave., Bramford, says of Zam-Buk. After an attack of typhoid fever, ulcers broke out on his right foot and ankle. "The foot and leg were terribly inflamed," he says, "and the pain was very acute. I did not wear boot or shoe, and could not move about at all. I used all kinds of ointments, salves and ointments, yet nothing seemed able to heal the ulcers until Zam-Buk was tried."
"The very first application of Zam-Buk relieved the intense pain, and as I kept on using Zam-Buk the ulcers began to look healthier and were less painful."
"By use of this healing balm the discharging was reduced and healing commenced. After a few weeks' treatment, the swelling and inflammation were banished, and the sores were entirely healed. I am so grateful for my cure through Zam-Buk that I consider it my duty to let others know of the merits of this great balm."
