

FRIEDMANN GIVES OUT STATEMENT; CAME TO DEMONSTRATE CURE

Is Paying His Own Expenses; and Talk About Reward of $1,000,000 Is Bunccombe

New York, April 4.—Dr. Friedmann tried last night to risk himself of embarrassment and to avoid further harassment in his tubercular culture clinics by dictating a formal statement. He began:

"I shall stay in this country as long as I deem it necessary to complete the work I have undertaken."

"No man in the world has paid me a cent since I left Berlin. When I was in Europe Mr. Finlay (Chase Finlay), president of the Aetna National Bank, offered me $1,000,000 to come here and prove my cure. I did not know about his offer until I came to this country."

"I have paid all my own expenses and those of gentlemen who accompanied me."

Mr. Friedmann was interrupted by a question as to whether he thought it was to those reports which I had been given that I had come here. He said he had no control. The matter of the $1,000,000 offer was most unfortunate. You can well believe that no one had the right to represent me here. I came here upon the desire of hundreds of American doctors, who wrote and called me at Berlin, asking that I come to teach them to cure tuberculosis."

"When I had already decided to come, I received an offer from Mr. Finlay to come here to treat his son-in-law, Mr. Parka. But in that there was no offer of money, I have not treated him because I have not been able to practice privately."

"Now, regarding the supporting statements of my associates, supporting my actions, I have no associates. You might say my culture is my only associate. I stand alone with my culture. And I am not responsible for what any one except myself says about me or my work or my plans."

EIGHTY-SIX BUILDING PERMITS IN THE HAT DURING APRIL

Exceeds Permits of One Year Ago by About $40,000; Many Residential Permits

Medicine Hat, Alta., April 3.—During the month of March a total of eighty-six building permits were issued in this city, having a value of $150,000, notwithstanding that the month was backward and not suited specially at the beginning of active operations for the year. This total compares with March a year ago favorably, when permits to the amount of $115,500 were issued. For the first three months of this year the total was $265,275, as compared with $201,285 for the same period last year, or an increase of about 30 per cent.

Most of the permits thus far taken out this year have been for residences, of which the city is in great need at present, owing to the rapid increase of population—so rapid that there is not a vacant building or residence in the city. With the weather settled, it is likely that building permits will grow in number and amount, as it is known that an extensive program of this nature is mapped out by a large number of builders and contractors. Thus far, for the first two days in April, the number of permits is increasing, as it did in the latter part of March, and when work starts on some of the factories, the volume will be very largely increased.

ANOTHER CHAPTER ON HOW TO MAKE BANK AUDITS PROPERLY

But No Information Has Come Out as to How to Successfully Approach a Bank Manager for a Loan Without Giving Up One's Right Eye

AUDIT MIGHT HAVE SAVED FARMERS' BANK

One Financier Objects to Bank Charters Expiring Every Ten Years, and Said It Influenced Investors Abroad Who Did Not Understand Procedure

OTTAWA, April 4.—G. Clarkson, of Toronto, who was liquidator of the Farmers' Bank and of the Western Bank, was the first witness before the banking commission today. His experience has been chiefly in the liquidation of banks. "A bank undertaker," Mr. Ames facetiously termed him.

Mr. Clarkson said he believed that the shareholders should appoint the auditors subject to approval of the directors of finance, though it made little difference who made the appointment so long as it was a reputable firm of auditors.

He was of the opinion that inspection would not have prevented the failure of the Farmers' Bank, but it would have made the condition known in time to save much that was lost.

"Would an independent audit have disclosed at the end of six months or a year the true state of affairs in the Farmers' Bank?" he was asked.

"The audit would have disclosed the state of affairs, but it would not have disclosed the nature of the bad loan that soon," said Mr. Clarkson. "The men at the head of the Farmers' Bank were utterly incompetent to run a bank."

"Was it not criminal negligence if there was knowledge of this state of affairs on the part of the bank officers to let it go on?" asked Mr. Thorburn.

Mr. Clarkson believed branches were always well checked up by the head office. In the case of the bank failure the loss has always been at head office, but an auditor should have knowledge of operations at the branches.

The cost of winding up the Farmers' Bank would be heavy, Mr. Clarkson said, probably $75,000, for there was not a single asset that was free of litigation or trouble.

"As to the duties of the auditor running down accounts, it is a watching for a shoddy loan," Mr. Nickle.

"An auditor would not want to go to a bank and wing everything away wrong. But when he went in he would want to know that everything was right," said Mr. Clarkson.

Hon. Mr. White: "A man from Missouri."

Mr. Joseph Henderson, formerly president, and now a director of the Bank of Toronto, with which he has been connected for 44 years, was the next witness. He did not think it just to call all bank failures about equally near years. He distinguished between shoddy and sound procedure. He agreed, however, with the deontological revival of the bank.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE POWER QUESTION

Editor Albertan:

At the present time, when there seems to be a general feeling of worry and unrest in civic centres regarding the power question for the city, it may not be out of place to give all those at all interested a few facts regarding the question of power generation anywhere, and in Calgary in particular.

The known primary powers in the engineering world are four, i.e., water, steam, gas, oil. For practical purposes these can be reduced to two headings, liquid and vapor or gaseous, water coming under the first heading, and steam and gas oil under the second.

At the present time, and from the general outlook for many years to come, water and steam are, and will be, the only absolutely reliable powers. I would place oil next and gas last. A moment's thought will show clearly the reason why water and steam are the more satisfactory. They are in their application for motive power steady and yet pliable. They come with moving metals causes no shock, and has no corrosive action, therefore there is freedom from strain and consequent breakdown.

Next on the list is oil, and only in one type of engine is this satisfactory, i.e., the internal combustion engine. This must not be confused with the most commonly in use type, the explosive type. As far as I know, there is only one internal combustion engine on the market, and that is the Diesel. Last we come to gas. This as a motive power for large engines is an absolute failure. Again the reason for this is clear. It gives out its energy by means of explosions, and there is yet to be made the engine, or even the metal, which can stand up against the continuous shock of the explosions and the terrific heat necessary to generate even 200 horse-power.

Briefly, then, in large, slow moving units, with the above exception, gas or oil are unsatisfactory, unreliable, and costly in maintenance. Units would have to be erected in duplicate, and this one fact alone puts this type of plant out of consideration at all by any practical central station engineer.

Let us now consider Calgary's position. Water is apparently monopolized; oil water, at the present time, have to be shipped in, gas is entirely out of the question. There remains, then, the old faithful steam, and it is safe to predict that, failing the city coming to terms with the Hydro Power company, they will be well advised in installing steam turbines and gas-fired boilers. Furthermore, that will be the sum total of Engineer Ross's report from the East.

I have had no opportunity of going into the costs of production in this city, but it seems to me that $45 per annum is a very high figure, and could be materially reduced.

Time and space does not permit a more comprehensive letter on this important question. I have avoided technicalities and been brief purposely to interest the lay reader. D. ALGAR-BAILLY.
