Derogate Action Taken to Shut Off Inquiry

Regarding the Gift to Sir Hector Languevin.

Jack Larkin Does Not Know Who Are "Our Friends."

OTTAWA, Aug. 1.—At the Committee on Accounts Mr. Dan O'Connor, an attorney who has drawn $8,000 or $9,000 a year as Government solicitor, was asked by Mr. Mulock regarding the Languevin block. He told Mr. Mulock that it was he who went to New York and purchased the plate which was given to Sir Hector Languevin in 1889 in connection with the block. This was a gift before the block was finished. The cost of the plate was $1,837. Mr. Wood of Brockville objected to going into this matter of the testimonial, and the House was adjourned.

Mr. Mulock—It is charged broadly that Minister was influenced more or less by contractors. It has been shown in the past that Mr. Mulock was in the direct of this block whereby Charles, a contractor, was enabled to extort from other contractors considerable sums. It has been charged that the whole management of this contract was in the hands of Mr. Mulock, and that it resulted in a heavy loss to the public treasury.

Mr. Wood said he did not see any connection between the public accounts and testimonial to Minister.

Mr. Mulock said he intended calling witnesses to show Sir Hector Languevin's interest in Le Monde newspaper and to show that one of these contractors has been charged with the power to influence the Minister. He thought the committee was clothed with power to inquire into the relations between a favored contractor who subscribed to gifts to the Minister and the Minister who gave out the contracts and gave extraordinary favors to that contractor. It is a judge on the bench who is to judge of the propriety of the gift of 800 pieces of plate from one of the million who would be thought of? There was law and precedent to prevent a judge from doing what was done by the Minister was supreme. There was appeal from him except to Parliament, and now that appeal had been taken, Government were blocking the inquiry. Mr. Foster thought they must consider themselves to the order of reference. There was no precedent for such an inquiry by the committee.

Mr. Mulock—There is no precedent for the Minister's action.

Sir Richard Cartwright, who had been appointed by Mr. Foster, warned the committee against crippling themselves. It was a point for the Government to consider whether they were not advising in standing on strict points of order.

Mr. Foster said he did not wish to lay any onerous burden on the committee. It was a point for the Government to consider whether they were not advising in standing on strict points of order.

Mr. Mulock immediately took Mr. Foster's own argument by pointing out that in this case a foundation had been laid for inquiry into this testimonial. The evidence already given warranted them, and, indeed, imperatively required them to ascertain what led the Minister to the action he took in giving out the testimonial. Mr. Barron said the committee had been going into gifts from contractors to Sir Hector, and what in the name of common sense prevented them from going into the gifts to the Minister? The committee allowed evidence which cut off the heads of inquiries, but the moment they proposed going into a gift of a similar nature to the Minister, objection was raised. It was not the propriety of the testimonial, but the gifts regarding it they wanted to investigate, and then, as jurors and judges, they could draw their own conclusions.

The Chairman—I rule that we cannot go beyond the order of the reference, and that Mr. Mulock is going considerably beyond it. If Mr. Cartwright was here he might be asked to move much he subscribed. Mr. Lister—Then Mr. O'Connor, who receives large sums from the Government, is asked what he subscribed, and I am asked to question.

Mr. Foster objected and Mr. Bowell asked him up.

Mr. Mulock (to witness)—Did any contractors for the Languevin block contribute to the testimonial?

Mr. Donnelly—Object to that question. Mr. Landerkin was asked to refer to the reference to the committee when the Minister-General laughed.

Mr. Landerkin said: "The Postmaster-General laughs. Is there anything to laugh in this?"

Mr. Mulock—It is none of your business. I am not laughing at you. Mr. Landerkin—Mr. Chairman, I fear his laugh is not his own.

Mr. Foster threatened to close the committee.

Mr. Landerkin taunted the Government by being afraid of a full inquiry.

Mr. Cartwright—We might ask the House to inquire into the question of the testimonial. There is no objection to going into that if it is referred to us. Mr. Landerkin was in possession of the building when the Minister-General was there. It was a strange act. I was at the Cabinet at the time and my position was that it was wrong. I saw the Minister had no right to be master of a building which did not belong to him but to the Government.

Mr. Mulock called for the ruling of the House to the particular question, "How did you subscribe to the fund?"

Mr. Cartwright—I rule out all questions relating to this testimonial.

Mr. Mulock—Then you can discharge the witness as accordingly discharged.

Mr. Cartwright—In accordance with this, the House being the Secretary of State I move the House be asked to authorize this inquiry to inquire into the matter of the testimonial in connection with the accounts of the Languevin block.

Mr. Foster took objection.

Mr. Barron—We have here the case of a testimonial to which contractors contributed.

Mr. Foster—You have not shown that they contributed.

Mr. Barron—No, that's exactly what you are trying to prevent us showing. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Foster said they had been sitting there for weeks, and a few trifling things were the only results of all their boasts of corruption.

Sir Richard Cartwright said it would be a matter of opinion as to whether the committee had been wasting its time or not in discovering the gross irregularities known to exist under any constitutional government in any English-speaking country. He differed from Mr. Foster in saying that the committee had failed to discover a system of improprieties. The whole course of the inquiry had been to show that the discipline and even the morale of the public departments had been extensively wrecked. He thought it was quite proper to request the House to direct an investigation into this testimonial.

Mr. Mulock—I much regret that Mr. Foster thinks the disclosures before this committee have been trifling. The prospects are bad for the country. It is trifling that public servants obtain money contrary to law? Is it a trifle for public servants to accept bribes under such circumstances as to warrant the dismissal of those officers? Yet the Minister of Finance says those are mere trifles. The disclosures ought to have shocked the Minister and he holds out very little hope to the country, so long as the standard of public morality prevails he sets up.

The motion to obtain the authority of the House to inquire into all matters concerning the testimonial of plate to Sir Hector Languevin was put and lost by a vote of 13 yeas to 18 nays, a strict party vote.

THE LANGUEVIN TESTIMONIAL.

The list of subscribers to the Languevin testimonial, which was secured yesterday by the press, includes such names as those of Cartwright, with whom Arnoldi did business for the Public Works Department; Foote, of the Quebec Chronicle, who has had a profitable connection with the public treasury; cash, $1,000; the contribution of Larkin, Connolly & Co.; Reamer, $1,000; Senecal, $1,000; Ouderdonk, $500; collected in Quebec by McGreevey, $1,800; Robitaille, $250, and so on. Total, $23,731.

When Patrick Larkin was on the stand yesterday before the Tarte-McGreevey Committee certain of his letters in which he had written to "our friends," "another $5,000," and an "agreement" were turned up in the evidence, and Mr. Larkin was asked to explain the mysterious phrases. He could not. Mr. Murphy, however, who "our friends" were the donations were, but the witness did not and had never asked who they were although he knew the firm had paid $25,000, $22,000 and $25,000 to them. The committee pressed him with persistent questioning, but elicited nothing more than disclaimers of any knowledge of where the money went to.

NOTES.

A rumor is current that Mr. Abbott and Sir John Thompson are insisting that Sir Hector Languevin must withdraw from the Cabinet. But Sir Hector is still solid and defiant. It is said that Uncle Thomas will absolutely refuse to say what was done with the money that came into his hands from Larkin, Connolly & Co., or how the election funds were distributed. Arrangement has been made for his appearance on the stand on Tuesday next.

RUTH, THE CLEANER.

Lessons from an Oriental Harvest Scene.

How Trouble Tends to Develop Character—
The Beauty of Unfaltering Friendship—Dr. Talmage's Discourse to a Colorado Audience.

GREEN MOUNTAIN FALLS, Col., Aug. 2.—

Dr. Talmage preached here to-day to an immense audience. His text was taken from Ruth, ii, 3: "And she went and gleaned in the field after the reaper; and her hap was to light on a part of the field belonging unto Boaz, who was of the kindred of Elimelech." No season can be more enchanting in any country than the season of harvest. The time that Ruth and Naomi arrive at Bethlehem is harvest time. It was the custom when a sheaf fell from the load in the harvest field for the reapers to refuse to gather it up, they were left for the poor who might happen to pass that way. If there were handfuls of grain scattered across the field after the main harvest had been reaped, instead of raking it, as farmers do now, it was, by the custom of the land, left in its place, so that the poor, coming along that way, might glean it and get their bread. Boaz owns a large farm, and he goes out to gather in the grain. Coming there, right behind the reaper, and he beholds a beautiful woman gleaning—a woman more fit to bond to a harp or sit upon a throne than to stoop among the sheaves. Ah, that was an awful day! It was love at first sight. Boaz forms an attachment for the womanly gleaner—an attachment full of undying interest to the Church of God in all ages, while Ruth, with an ephah, or nearly a bushel of barley, goes home to Naomi to tell her the successes and adventures of the day. That Ruth, who left her native land of Moab in darkness, and journeyed through an undying affection for her mother-in-law, is the harvest field of Boaz, is advanced to one of the best families in Judah, and becomes in after-time the ancestress of Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory! Out of so dark a night did there ever dawn so bright a morning!

OUR FRIENDS.

I learn, in the first place, from this subject how trouble develops character. It was bereavement, poverty and exile that developed, illustrated and announced the genuineness of Ruth's character.

He is a very unfortunate man who has no trouble. It was sorrow that made John Bunyan the better dreamer, and Doctor Young the better poet, and O'Connell the better orator, and Bishop Hall the better preacher, and Haywood the better soldier, and Kitto the better evangelist, and Ruth the better daughter-in-law.

Greecian mythology said that the hero of the Trojan war was struck out by the foot of the winged horse, Pegasus. I have often noticed in life that the brightest and most beautiful fountains of Christian comfort and spiritual life have been struck out by the iron-shod hoof of disaster and calamity. I see Daniel's courage born by the flash of Nebuchadnezzar's furnace. I see Paul's prowess best when I find him on the founding ship under the glare of the lightning of the breakers of Melita. God crowns his children amid the howling of wild beasts and the chopping of blood-spattered guillotines and the crackling fires of martyrdom. It is the persecution of the Roman Empire that developed Polycarp and Justin Martyr. It took the Pope's bull and the Cardinal's curse, and the world's anathema to develop Martin Luther. It took all the difficulties of the Reformation to develop John Calvin, and the fury of Lord Claverhouse to develop James Renwick, and Andrew Melville, and Hugh McKail, the glorious martyrs of Scotch history. It took the storm and the Desolation of the desolate New England coast, and the war-whoop of savages, to show forth the prowess of the Pilgrim Fathers—

When amid the storms they sang,
And others hushed, always all pain, cures and cold, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

How it is Extending East and West.

Port Stanley has blossomed out with more vigor than ever as a summer resort this season. The charming suburb to the east—New Orchard Beach. This locality was almost unthought of a couple of years ago, but now is dotted with neat cottages, and here a full and rapid growth of budding youth. Its drawback last season was the difficulty of access now the beach forms a convenient and pretty avenue, a decidedly superior suburb than over the big hill, however pleasant that may be. For six or seven years the lake has been unprecedently high, but seems to have now resumed its wonted level with the above water, and people frequently exercise their horses on its smooth surface.

Another favor which nature has bestowed upon this locality is its excellent bathing privileges. The beach forms a magnificent sloping gradually that one may walk out nearly 200 feet. This is a great advantage for the children, and relieves the parents from any fear of drowning accidents. The residents thus have at their doors a luxury impossible of attainment by sweltering Londoners at home, who are debarked from the River Thames by very cogent reasons, and must confine themselves to the Sulphur Baths on the more limited tub. Boating, of course, is open to all, and it is intended to erect a dock for the purpose next year.

Inland residents are subjected to so many irksome restrictions during hot weather, that it is no wonder so many of them flock to the banks of Lake Erie in order that their families may enjoy a healthful residence for the time being. And it is doubtful whether it costs a Londoner much, if any more to reside at Port Stanley than at home, such are the railway and other facilities—old clothes may be worn with impunity for instance.

If we could only get the desired train service to and from morning and evening, to suit business hours, said a Beachite, "you would find that summer residents at the Port would be still more numerous, and that the number of passengers in time would pay the railroad authorities well. Of course I can understand that, with the present uncertainty as regards the re-release of the road, the G. T. R. naturally had some hesitancy about inaugurating the service this season. All we want is that accommodation and everything is perfection."

New Orchard Beach boasts of a first-class waterworks system. A crystal stream, pure and cold, flows from the hill, and its channel has been diverted into pipes, branching into the cottages. The altitude of the spring affords plenty of pressure. This is a great boon, a statement which will be corroborated by many a house-traverse the desert, and we are pounded and failed of misrepresentation and abuse, and we have to urge our way through 10,000 obstacles that have to be slain by our own right arm. But, blessed be God, the day of rest and reward will come. On the tip-top of the captured battlements we will shout the story; if not in this world, then in that world where there is no gall to drink, no burdens to carry, no battles to fight. "They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more, neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat, for the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall lead them to living fountains of water, and God shall wipe all tears from their eyes." It was very hard for Noah to satisfy after it had been of the people in his day, while he was trying to build the ark, and was every morning quizzed about his old boat that would never be of any practical use, but when the deluge came, and the top of the mountains disappeared like the backs of sea monsters, and the elements, lashed up in fury, clapped their hands over a drowned world, then Noah in the ark rejoiced in his own safety and in the safety of his family, and looked out on the wreck of a ruined earth. Christ, hounded of persecutors, denied a pillow, worse maltreated than the thieves on either side of the cross, human hate and vilest of crimes, "Hallelujah, for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth! Hallelujah, for the kingdoms of this world have become the kingdoms of our Lord and Jesus Christ!"

That song of love, now low and far,
Ere long shall swell from star to star;
That light, the breaking day which tips
The golden-crested Apsolos.

Again, I learn from my subject that events which seem to be most insignificant may be momentous. Can you imagine anything more unimportant than the coming of a poor woman from Moab to Judah? Can you imagine anything more trivial than the fact that this Ruth just happened to alight—as they say—just happened to alight on that field of Boaz? Yet all ages, all generations, have an interest in the fact that she was to become an ancestress of the Lord Jesus Christ, and all nations and kingdoms must look at that one little incident with a thrill of unexpressed and eternal satisfaction. So, as it is your history and mine, events that you thought of no importance at all have been of the greatest moment.

There are a few moments left worth the gleaning. Now, Ruth, to the field! May each one of you be a Ruth, full and running over! Oh, you gleaners, to the field. And if there be in your household an aged one or a sick relative that is not strong enough to come forth and toil in the field, then let Ruth take home to glean Naomi's sheaf of gleanings: "He that goeth forth and weepeth bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him." May the Lord God of Ruth and Naomi be our portion forever!

Growth and Improvement of New Orchard Beach—Advantages of a Summer Residence—Port—keeper who has probably been obliged once in a while to don a bathing suit, wade into the lake and then maybe draw a goodly proportion of sand with the bucket of water. In addition the necessities of life are delivered at one's door, thanks to the enterprising merchants of the village. United to all these home comforts are the beauty of the surroundings and the climatic advantages. "Why, it's like entering another world," an enthusiastic resident remarked, "to leave the cares of business and the hot city behind and spend the evening with your family, basking on the beach, bathing or quietly enjoying the scene. It braces a man up for business the next day. My Sunday walks around the vicinity are the most pleasurable things in life."

Most of the cottages have been given appropriate names. Mr. Broderick, of St. Thomas, has chosen "Broadview"; A. O. Jeffery's bears the drowsy title "Siesta"; F. W. Mathews' is called "Eastport Villa"; W. L. Graham and J. A. Nelles reside at "Glen Erie" No. 1 and No. 2 respectively; Alex. Gillean at "Windermere"; E. N. Hunt at "Idlewild"; Rev. Canon Smith at "Glen Willow" and H. E. Nelles at "Inglewood." Among other residents are Messrs. McKenzie, Rowley, McKay and Bell, of St. Thomas, and Ed. Meredith, J. Hamilton and W. McDonald, of London. Archbishop Walsh, of Toronto, has also a commodious structure on the grounds and spends a part of the summer there. A camping party from St. Thomas are having a merry time there under canvas. E. N. Hunt has been dubbed the mayor of the Beach, and a real social time is spent by the corporation.

THE WESTERN SUBURB.

The Mitchell property west of the Fraser Heights, over the pretty ravine, is also becoming popular as a residential locality. No less than five new buildings are now going up on this picturesque site. It is quite a distance from the village, but the walk is delightful and the situation unexcelled. Among those occupying cottages are Rev. H. C. Speller and family, A. J. Watson and family, George Bailey and family, Jas. Smith and family, W. J. Bryant and family, the Misses Hanson, E. Clissold and family and others. Besides the cottages there are a goodly number of campers on the Mitchell farm who occupy at least a dozen tents, several ladies and children enjoying the experience of living under canvas.

So it appears that Port Stanley is making extensions to meet increasing requirements. The village houses are well filled, but building operations are not on the move, as intending residents prefer erecting their dwellings near the beach.

FOUND OUT.

It takes a little persuasion sometimes to come to a right conclusion, but when we do, we know what's the right thing to do; as for example: 108 King street west, Toronto, Ont., "I was persuaded, through a friend of mine, to try some St. Jacobs Oil on an old running sore on my father's leg, and lo! it is a splendid medicine. It is wonderful the way it healed up his leg." A. D. TINGLEY.

Life is real, life is earnest, but with the thermometer at 98 degrees in the shade it is a great deal easier to sit still than to go out in the sun and say so.

FOR OVER FIFTY YEARS

Mrs. Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP has been used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, relieves all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

No one need fear cholera or any summer complaint if they have a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial ready for use. It corrects all looseness of the bowels, promptly and causes a healthy and natural action. This medicine is adapted for the young and old, rich and poor, and is rapidly becoming the most popular medicine for cholera, dysentery, etc., in the market.

MOTHERS

Castoria is recommended by physicians for children teething. It is a purely vegetable preparation; its ingredients are published around each bottle. It is pleasant to the taste and absolutely harmless. It relieves constipation, regulates the bowels, cures pain, cures diarrhea and wind, relieves feverishness, destroys worms and prevents convulsions, soothes the child and gives it refreshing and natural sleep. Castoria is the children's panacea—the mother's friend. 25 doses, 25 cents.

Nothing impure or injurious contaminates the popular antidote to pain, throat and lung remedies and general corrective, Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. It may be used without the slightest apprehension of and other than salutary consequences. Coughs, rheumatism, earache, bruises, cuts and sore succumb to its action.
