Details of the Impressive Ceremonies -Eloquent Tribute by Archbishop O'Brien.

HALIFAX, Jan. 3.—All the homage that can be bestowed having been paid to the mortal remains of Canada's late Premier, the body was to-day committed to its tomb.

Seventeen feet high, and was covered with demonstration for several days against the black silk draped with black velvet and Mahdists. He had with him a force of the most solemnly impressive ever seen or heard of in Canada, and were a fi ting termination of the obsequies held in Great Britgood sleighing, and from a very early hour the principal thoroughfares of the city were thronged with people desirous of obtaining a view of the procession. Many people wore memorial badges and nearly all were attired in black. The public and private buildings were heavily draped in black and in nearly all the tradesmen's windows were pictures of the late Premier. Thousands of strangers from all parts of Canada were present. Among the visitors were many members of parliament, senators, judges and other high officials. Early this morning the body was conveyed privately from the council chamber, where it had been lying in state, to St. Mary's cathedral and placed in front of the altar, under the direction of Rev. Dr. Murphy. Accompanying the casket were the wreaths presented by the Queen and her representative in Canada. St. Mary's cathedral was completely draped in a funeral hue. Lord Aberdeen, General Montgomery Moore and Lieut. Governors Daly, Dawdney and Chapleau occupied seats in the chancel. Lady Thompson occupied a position near the catafa que specially provided for her, The chief mourners included Lady Thompson, her two sons and two daughters, J. Pugh, Lady Thompson's uncle, his daughter, Joseph Chisholm, Mrs. Joseph Chisholm, sister to Lady Thompson, and Sister Lena of Sisters of Charity, who is also Lady Thompson.

son's sister. In the pew to the right were Lord and Lady Aberdeen, Lieutenant-Governor Kirk-patrick of Ontario, Sir Frank Smith, Hon. G. E. Fester, Sir Charles Hib-bert Tupper, Hon. T. M. Daly and other cabinet ministers. The magnificent white marble altar had a cross of gold, festooned with incandescent lights. Two pyramids of ficral offerings from all parts of the world made a picture in the sombre draped cathedral long to be remembered. Archbishop O'Brien preached an impressive and elequent sermon from the text:
"Having the conversed with you from my youth used the day, used and before His anointed whether I have taken any man's ox or ass, if I have wronged any man, if I have oppressed any man, if I have taken a bribe at any man's hand, and I will despise it this day and I will restore it its you.

day and I will restore it to you, and they said ' thou has not wronged us nor oppressed us, nor taken aught at any man's hand." "_ Samuel, chapter xii. v. 2 The Archbishop referred in elequent terms to the great loss Canada had sustained in the death of Sir John Thompson, In him, as in Samuel of old, the people recognized the integrity of life and the conse entious fulfilment of onerous duties. Vast interests were in his keeping, but though many subtle influences were at work to render him untrue to the commonweal, he remained true to his trust. No duty was neglected, no obligation to the public shirked. His character, his graces, he said, were an unbound. Sir Mackenzie Bowell became public pro-ed success, and from a modest position of humble style he rose rapidly from one height to another of public importance, until he finally reached the highest office in the gift the dead Premier's life as a lawyer, politician, judge and statesman, and said that his splendid intellectual gifts had enabled him to take the foremost position in every. thing that he undertook. A life such as that of the late Premier, he declared, was not indeed to be written in a family register, to be perused only by intimate friends. The music was supplied by a picked choir of one hundred forty cents on the dollar. Hon. Augustus quartette sung the hymn Now the laborer's task is o'er." While the requiem mass was being sung the fun-eral procession was formed in the vicinity

The mass was concluded at 12 o'clock sharp and the coffin was borne from the church and placed on a handsome funeral carriage specially built for the occasion, to which were attached aix black horses cov ered with heavy palls with the initial letter "T" on each side. The procession began its march to the cemetery. The horses drawing the funeral carriage were led by the undertaker's assistants. The two sons of To on each side. The streets through which the procession passed were guarded by soldiers from the King's regiment and the Sixty-sixth and Sixty-third battalions, who kept the immense throug in perfect order. The striking robes of the priests, the sombre garments of the mourners and citizens, with the bright uniforms of soldiers and marines, the blue uniforms of soldiers and marines, the blue jackets of the sailors of the warship Blenheim, the Indian chiefs, the palatial funeral car and the beautiful floats of floral offer ings helped make a picture for the eye that far surpassed anything of the kind ever witnessed in Halifax.

The funeral carriage, specialy built by the department of works and mines, Halifax, was fourteen feet long, seven feet wide and twenty four plumes.

A tremendous crowd assembled in the Holy Cross cemetery, where the Kings regiperial government. The weather here to fixed bayonets lined the fence all around the orming. The inhabitants fied in panic from their houses, and but few had returned the cemetery and a special guard of picked this evening. men stood sentry at the vault. The vault was only fifteen or twenty yards from the gate, and the funeral procession virtually stopped at the gate, each society counter-marching into place behind the corpse. At the grave Archbishop O'Brien conducted the funeral service, and the coffin was lowered into the vault. A firing party from the 66th battalion fired the usual three volleys over the grave, and the band played a bar of a funeral bymn between each volley. After the granite slabs over the vault had been placed in position the floral efferings were arranged on the grave and a guard with fixed bayonets was placed at the tomb

The day of the funeral of the late Sir John Thompson was observed in Victoria by a solemn pontifical requiem massat St. Andrew's Roman Catholic cathedral. The chancel walls were draped in black, the sombre trimmings rising far above the high altar. Here and there the sombreness was broken by wreaths of white immortelles, while apon the altar shone the light of many and a massive gilt cross, stood in front of the chancel rails; on either side of it were three tall wax tapers. The effect produced was impressive and everything had the appearance of a funeral ceremony. Bishop emmens performed the mass, assisted by Rev. Fathers Nicolaye, Van Nevel, La.
