NERVOUS DEBILITY

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY The basis on which life rates may be safely cut down nearly one half in the interest of the masses.

A startling instance of a man weighing 225 pounds, frequently rejected by Life Companies, on account of the condition of his lungs and hereditary tendency to consumption; having only the breathing capacity of a child four or five years of age, and yet able successfully to battle with and ward off all disease, being now hale and hearty at 71 years of age—a better life risk now than the average man at fifty. A graphic recital of the facts in the case by ROBERT We are now being called on by active and enterprising life insurance men with a view of investigating the claims of an organization based on the "Wilford Hail" Health Pamphlet and Treatment.

As outlined last month by the editor, such an organization cowell afford to give a preference in price of life policies of twenty-per cent. discount to persons pledged to a regular use of this driess treatment as set forth in Dr. Hall's pamphlet. Indeed, it is the opinion of some insurance men who are aware of the effects of this treatment on the general health, that even 50 per cent. preference could safely be allowed and still show a better financial result for the company adopting it as the basis of their risks than that now scheduled and reported by any of the old companies.

As illustrated in the case of Dr. Hall himself, the proof is clear to demonstration. For more than twenty-five years he has persistently tried with the leading life insurance companies to obtain a policy on his own life, and has submitted to gumerous medical examiners, not one of whom would venture to recommend such risk after sounding and testing his lungs. Invariably they have assured him that his utmost lung power did not equal that of a child four or five years old. Yet, with his left lung nearly useless and the other inefficient, he has survived in good health all these years alone by the use of this marvelous remedy without medicine, and even now bids fair to live to see his name and his discovery at the head and front of one of the most successful life insurance companies in the world. at the head and front of one of the most successful life Insurance companies in the world.

I am writing this on the 18th day of August, 1890, the 7ist birthday of the editor of this journal, as the doctor sits happy over a congratulatory felegram from two very dear friends at Seattle, Wash., and I take occasion here to state my belief that he would even now-way past the age of eligibility in any existing company—be a safer risk than most of the average cases at the age of 50—who are gladly taken by every life company doing business,

All this comes alone from the treatment which is now creating such a furor all over the world.

Dr. Hall well deserves the credit which will be due him in after generations for the original discovery of a system of treatment for the promotion of health and longevity which bids fair immediately to work a revolution in the scale of life expectations and risks in all present insurance companies, and surely the renown of having founded the substantial philosophy and thus paved the way for the college of substantialism will need little more to make it complete when rounded out with the "Wilford Hall" Life Insurance Company, both of which will soon be accomplished facts."

Those who are interested in matters pertaining to physical health and the lengthening out of the span of our too brief existence here by overcoming disease—and who is not?—will surely desire to know something more of Wilford Hall's remarkable experience in his heroic struggle against consumption of the lungs so far developed that he was given up to die, now 41 years ago; and such will also be equally interested to learn by what means of science or art—or both—such a physical salvation was possible and whether the same means are capable of universal and practical application, and finally if so, what is the practical outcome in the personal experience of large numbers of people under widely different conditions of life, disease, climate and the infinitely various circumstances incidental thereto.

THE ANSWER TO ALL THIS

Is so notably unique, startling, and even thrilling that, for that very reason, we dare not formulate it in bold statements, unsupported by the collateral and evidential facts in the case; and we carried by the case in all its graphic entirety of history, incident, indices.

evidential facts in the case; and we carried by pay for the space here that it would require to present the case in all its graphic entirety of history, incident, indices. evidential facts in the case; and we cannot afford to statement, inference and fact, with the overwhelming

BREAKFAST "By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocos, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
