

The Canadian Government considers that it should be the task of this Conference to seek to strengthen the application of the Convention in realistic and operationally practicable ways."³

At the UN General Assembly Canada co-sponsored Resolution 41/58 (A) which called upon all states that had not already done so to sign and ratify the Convention. The resolution was adopted without a vote.

Parliamentary Comment

The issue has not been raised in the House of Commons since the summer of 1986.

Current References

Bernstein, B. J., "The birth of the US biological-warfare program," Scientific American, June 1987, pp. 116-121.

Gizewski, P., Biological Weapons Control, Issue Brief no. 5, Canadian Centre for Arms Control and Disarmament.

Levinson, M., "Custom made-biological weapons", International Defense Review, Vol. 19, No. 11, November 1986, pp. 1611-1612.

Wright, S., "The Military and the New Biology", Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, September 1985.

Further Reading

Falk, R., "Inhibiting Reliance on Biological Weaponry: the Role and Relevance of International Law", paper presented to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences (AAAS) New York meeting, 24 May 1984.

Geissler, E., "Implications of Genetic Engineering for Chemical and Biological Warfare", Armament and Disarmament Yearbook 1984, London, Oxford University Press, 1984.

ACDA, International Negotiations on the Biological-Weapons and Toxins Convention, May 1975.

³ Ibid.