

Salmon River Open Natural Wild Hay Meadow soil, climate and general conditions, it gives me great pleasure to write you my opinion of your lands in the Salmon River Valley.

"I found the major portion of this tract to be deep clay soil, with enough silt and sand to make it mulch easily and of a texture that will work to the best advantage.

"The 320 acres I purchased in Section 2634 can be easily cleared and put under cultivation, ~~as~~ can also the greater portion of the land you are offering.

"Next Spring I intend to plant oats, alfalfa and potatoes, and next Fall, turkey red wheat. It is my intention to raise pure seed to sell to other planters in this district. Later on I intend to add pure bred sheep, hogs and dairy stock.

"At the various farms I visited I found wheat, oats, potatoes and all kinds of garden vegetables, making as fine a crop as any in the Fraser Valley.

"On George Ovasco's farm potatoes run about 600 bushels per acre. On C. W. Moore's farm oats were over five feet and well filled and should thresh from 90 to 120 bushels per acre.

"Tomatoes were ripening on the vines.
