NOTICE IS SERVED ON WELSH MINERS

Government Will Not Tolerate Either Strike or Lock-Out

coal for the navy comes from South Wales, and before the trouble arose the supply was affected by the enlistment in the army of 50,000 of the young miners, which eventually made it necessary for the government to stop recruiting in the mining district of Wales.

166,000 Men Involved.
The Coal Miners' Union is the first to feel the potent power of the government created by the new munitions measures. The men's leaders protested before the passage of the bill that the miners should not be included in those subject to compulsory arbitration, and developments are awaited with the keenest interest, as upward of 166,000 miners are involved. Mr. Blandford, who is in charge of the effect of the proclamation was to make a strike or lockout a heavily fineable offence unless the differences were referred to the board of trade for settlement by some method provided by the Munitions Act.

Leaders' Appeal.
The executive committee of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain today decided to appeal to the South Wales miners to continue working until a satisfactory settlement was reached. The committee also decided to recommend that joint machinery should be set up between the owners and the workmen for settlement of all disputes that might arise in the industries. A Cardiff despatch says that the Welsh colliery engineers and stokers have pledged themselves not to cease work in case of stoppage pending further negotiations.

The coal situation was further complicated today by the publication of $6,000 Scottish miners for an advance in wages of 25 per cent.

Three Months' Controversy.
The crisis first threatened three months ago, when the miners gave notice to terminate existing agreements on July 1, and, in lieu of these, they proposed a national program giving an all-round increase in wages. The owners objected to the consideration of the new terms during the war and asked the miners to accept the existing agreement plus a war bonus. After a series of conferences the union officials agreed to recommend a compromise, which was arranged through the board of trade. The miners, however, voted yesterday against this, and the government was obliged to take action.

The miners assert that their demands would mean no more than six pence (12 cents) a ton, and argue that as the owners are receiving much more for their coal than previously they could well pay it. As a matter of fact, Mr. Runciman today also introduced a bill in the house to regulate the price of coal.
