

are responsible for the maintenance of international law.

It is also obvious that the success of the U-boat is almost entirely confined to its attacks upon unarmed merchant ships, and very frequently neutral ships. How many times have we heard of their success in real sea warfare? This is the heart of the whole matter, and it requires the most urgent consideration.

---