Largest Stockholder in Street Railway Expires.

Charles Currie, president of the London Street Railway Company, who has been here for some days conferring with the employees of that company, relative to their wage grievances, today received word that Henry A. every meeting of the directors. Since that time, his health has been precarious, and he retired from active control of the railway. Three years ago, he attended the February meeting, but resigned as president, being succeeded by his partner, E. W. Moore, Cleveland. Mr. Moore had to relinquish the office last February, Mr. Currie, a former Londoner, succeeding him.

Mr. Everett was a wealthy man, and mad all his carerr in traction company matters. He was practically owner of the Cleveland street railway, which he sold. He was interested at the time of his death in many suburban lines running out of Cleveland, and a heavy shareholder in the D. U. R. at Detroit. He had many other large financial interests. Last fall he went to California to spend the winter. His health was better then than it had been for some

Death Was Unexpected.

"I have lost one of my very best friends," said Mr. Currie to The Advertiser. "I have been associated with him for 24 years, and I must say that no finer man ever lived than Henry Everett. When I last saw him, just before he left for Pasadena, he was in very good health, better than for some time past, and I was surprised to hear of his death.

lieved that no news meant that he was dead.

Miss Winifred Ashplant, a daughter of Henry B. Ashplant, and niece of Major Ashplant, is in training in Victoria Hospital. Six weeks ago, a young woman patient heard the name and wanted to know if Major Ashplant was a relative of the nurse. On receiving a reply in the affirmative, the patient stated that she had shortly before received a letter from a young man friend a member of Major Ashplant's company, who told her that the statements in the papers that the major was killed were a mistake; that he had been badly wounded and was a prisoner in Germany. The name and address of the young man were given to Miss Ashplant with the suggestion that in writing to him for information, the name of the patient be used.

Mr. Ashplant wrote immediately and is expecting a reply shortly, though he has only slight hopes of good news.

is expecting a reply shortly, though he has only slight hopes of good news. One fact is known which indicates that Major Ashplant was carried away and not blown up the day he was wounded. He was discovered in a shell hole by a stretcher-bearer who already had a man on his back and could not carry any further load. In order to mark the place, the stetcher-bearer stuck a rifle in the ground beside the wounded officer. When a return trip was made, the rifle was still standing there, but Major Ashplant had disappeared. The theory is that had he been buried by an explosion, the rifle would also have been buried or shattered.

Shrader was neid last evening in Wesley Hall, Mrs. W. N. Manning presiding. Two violin solos by Miss Clara Brennan were much appreciated, as were also the vocal solos contributed by Mrs. Arthur Little and Miss Lola Stevens. Mrs. Barnard read an interesting paper on the Italian mission work in Toronto, the active interest taken by the women and children in the welfare of the soldlers, being mentioned. Mrs. Harrison gave an exceedingly fine address. Miss Green was elected to represent the circle at the district convention at Petrolea. A splendid offering of $190 was received.

Dozens of farmers in this vicinity have applied for this kind of help and unless the cities are able to supply it the acreage under cultivation this year will be great-

The absorption of the world's food surplus and the alarming shortage of skilled farm help, competent authorities assert, threaten a world famine. Sixteen nations are not only short of food, but are on the verge of starvation, and approximately forty millions of men are temporarily removed from productive pursuits.

Canada's opportunity, Canada's duty, is clearly to secure maximum production this year. Of all the great food producing nations she can most quickly, and with less risk of submarine loss, supply Great Britain and our Allies.

The call for skilled help on the farms of Western Ontario-to help during the few weeks of seeding-is urgent and unmistakeable, and is commended to your earnest attention as a patriotic demand, which is none the less important because it is thoroughly sound from a commercial point of view.
