

WAR RELICS SHOWN ON KING ST. EAST

An Intensely Interesting Collection of Field Trophies Here.

WILL AID RECRUITING

General Logie Hopes Every Toronto Citizen Will Visit It.

An exhibition of seven hundred war trophies and relics, representing practically the largest, most authentic and interesting display of its kind ever shown in Toronto, was formally opened by Major-General W. A. Logie in a private exhibition held under auspices of Major W. S. Dinick and officers of the 10th Regiment at 95 East King street Saturday afternoon.

Proceeds of this exhibit, which includes trophies and relics representing the life of every nation involved in the conflict, will go to the funds of the 10th Regiment. The exhibit will be held in the room on East King street for two weeks, and the display will be open from 9 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night. A nominal fee of admission will be charged.

As General Logie declared in his speech, delivered before invited guests at the exhibition on Saturday, each article on display has an interesting story. The largest exhibit is that of a warplane used in the early part of the war, and other exhibits are trophies taken from German soldiers, those used by the soldiers of the allies or in other ways having a direct association with the struggle. Nothing is shown except authentic articles which have been used in overseas service.

Gen. Logie predicted that the exhibit would prove a stimulus to recruiting, and expressed the hope that everybody living in Toronto would take the opportunity to attend. In praising the officers of the 10th Regiment in providing the display, Gen. Logie said: "Military regiments all over Canada have rendered a remarkable service in recruiting or aiding in recruiting for overseas service. One, two or three of them have formed complete battalions, while others have contributed a great deal to the make-up of others. Unfortunately, at first these regiments were without funds to carry on their work. Major Dinick had taken this means of increasing the funds of the war chest of the 10th."

"This district has sent a large number of men overseas. We who couldn't get away are doing our best to train others that they may go. We have some satisfaction in knowing that they are not trained along wrong lines. "I have learned that abroad they are practising the same tactics we have been using here in High Park and Cedarville. We have the satisfaction of knowing that our training is not only of some usefulness, but is carried out with the least possible loss. I have every reason to believe that the government will provide funds to aid these regiments in recruiting."

Will Help Recruiting. Gen. Logie spoke at some length on the belief that the exhibit would aid in recruiting. "I can hardly see how a man with red blood in his veins could view this display and not have an enthusiastic desire to don the uniform of his country," Gen. Logie said. This exhibit, which is officially known as the British exhibit of war trophies and relics, is explained to spectators by L. C. Whitney, who is connected with the display. He will give periodical talks explaining the history of each relic, and answering questions of visitors.

Among the 700 exhibits is a weather-beaten French monoplane of the Caudron type, which was used by the allies in France and Belgium. It made 289 flights until it was rendered unusable.

for service, and was used as a fast scout. A summary of its history is conspicuously posted.

A pathetic article is a little headless doll picked up by an English marine after the evacuation of Antwerp. It was probably dropped on the roadside by a child in the mad rush of Belgian refugees. There is a zeppelin incendiary bomb which was dropped at Southend, 30 miles from London, which killed a woman and seriously injured her husband. It was one of the 70 which were dropped during the attack on May 10, 1915. A rosary taken from the neck of a German sailor who was drowned when the Blucher was sunk in the North Sea is also on display.

A kodak which saved the life of Pte. Perry of the Australian Signaller Corps at Gallipoli, shows the bullet holes in the lens and the pocket of the tunic in which it was carried. The roses from the wreath placed by Queen Alexandra on the coffin of a soldier who lost their lives with the E-13 off the Danish coast are also to be seen.

An unusually interesting exhibit is a sweater worn by the 7th Battalion, 2nd Brig., Canadians, who were wounded in seventeen places by a bursting shell behind Ypres, April 29, 1915. Napoleon wars are recalled in the inspection of a old pistol which was dug up in a trench during this war.

Many Iron Crosses. Several German Iron Crosses of the first class are shown. One of these was taken by Philip House, a Belgian, from the body of a German officer whom he killed on the bank of the Yser Canal at La Bassee.

Among the pieces of shells is a fragment of one fired by the Blucher at Harbord Dec. 1914. This piece of shell went through a house and imbedded itself between two children, who were sleeping. Neither was hurt. None of the exhibits are more interesting than that of the famous French 75 millimeter gun which fires this shell is known as the most efficient gun made. The dress coat of a German officer's dress coat is also on display, which before they were demolished by German shells were considered impracticable.

Included in the pieces of uniforms of different soldiers are the trousers worn by Philip House, who was mortally wounded while opening the flood gates 7 miles from Nieuport, which flooded 80 German guns and drowned 2000 German soldiers. There are also a German officer's dress coat and a German officer's cap.

These are but a few of the many interesting trophies and relics which form this exhibit. There are helmets and caps of various kinds, daggers, bayonets, medals, patriotic buttons, proclamations translated into English, knapsacks, tube helmets for protection against gas attacks, pipe made in the trenches from fuse heads and other souvenirs made by soldiers from cartridges, fuse heads and bullets.

Among those present during the private view Saturday were Sir Edmund and Lady Walker, Hon. and Mrs. T. W. McCowan, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Lucas, W. J. Gage, Mrs. Mortimer Clark, J. S. Englehart, J. C. Larkin, Col. and Mrs. H. C. B. Lorne, Lieut.-Col. John H. Moss and Mrs. Moss, D. A. Dunlop, E. C. Goodhart, Sir Frederick and Lady St. John, Lieut.-Col. Henry H. Brook, Justice and Mrs. Hodgins, Mrs. and Mr. E. B. Johnston, Lieut.-Col. Ryerson and Mrs. Ryerson, John Firstbrook, Lieut.-Col. J. Cooper Mason and Mrs. Mason, and O. C. Cochrane, aide to Gen. Logie.

Great Demand Overseas for Women in Medical Profession

So great is the demand for doctors across seas application has been made for 50 more women for service with the doctors. The work of the women already with the R. A. M. C. has been "so conspicuously successful," says a despatch from London, that the request has come for this further increase.

Women in the medical profession, even in England, are still comparatively scarce when compared with the number of men. There are only 1100 women registered throughout the British Isles, while the number of men is 35,000.

Because of the need which has arisen, Cambridge is considering the question of admitting women studying medicine to the degree of bachelor of medicine.

EARLY CHRISTMAS SHOPPING PRUDENT

More Satisfactory to the Public and Busy Clerks in Stores.

THREE WEEKS REMAIN

Choose Gifts While There is Time and Not Wait Till Last Rush.

Just three weeks left before Christmas and so much to be done. Women have been working during the past year in things outside their homes as perhaps never before, and the aggregate of what they have accomplished would be something that may not be counted by figures. Yet for all this the next three weeks will be piled up with so many objects demanding their attention that it would almost seem as if the needs of the whole year were awaiting them.

Christmas shopping is always a task, and year after year everyone promises that another season will see things improved in the way of early shopping. Mothers and wives recognize that for themselves and the clerks of the stores, the wear of the season might be so much lessened if they would but shop earlier, and a vow is mentally registered that "next year" things will be different. But the days go by, everyone paved with good intentions "this time, until just a day or two are left and it may be Christmas Eve itself before the last shopping is finished.

This does not apply to all. Even now the stores are filled every day with busy customers, but unless the public takes a thought there will still remain a sufficient number of late shoppers, to make Christmas Day a very weary holiday for the men and girls who have been so busy waiting on an excited, and for the most part, a very uncertain public.

There are still three good weeks to the fore. Use them well; go shopping early.

John Ross Robertson, the president of the Masonic Hall Trust, said he was delighted at the prospects of seeing the temple of the kind mentioned, and he assured those present of his hearty co-operation and support in the undertaking.

These interesting souvenirs were framed and imbedded in a block of wax.

WORLD IS IMPROVED DESPITE MANY FLAWS

Rev. Dr. Ribourg Says Present Century Has Conscience Formed by Christian Ideals.

Rev. Dr. Ribourg, speaking last evening at St. Alban's Cathedral on Jesus Christ the greatest gift of God to the world, said in part: "To anyone who reads history it is evident that in spite of the flaws that mar our Christian civilization the world is better than it was. The very fact that the civilized world is showing its indignation at the outrages committed by the Teutonic hordes indicates that the 20th century has a conscience which has been formed by the Christian ideals. A century or two ago these abominations would have been considered as the inevitable consequences of war. Above the roar of the guns we hear the voices of the moral reformers and of statesmen calling the people to a better comprehension of life and of its issues, and in the midst of the frightful ruins and devastation of war we speak of building a new and better world of peace and brotherhood."

"At a time when our present civilization is being submerged in a sea of blood, we speak of giving the world a better, purer, and nobler civilization. Everywhere the political world is being purified. The church itself is passing thru the crucible and will emerge more Christlike."

Senator Belcourt Separates From the Bourassa Wing

Special to The Toronto World. Montreal, Dec. 2.—Senator Belcourt, at the Reform Club last evening, separated himself completely from the Bourassa wing by declaring that, following a visit to the western front, he had, from being a pacifist become absolutely convinced that the Prussian machine must be crushed beyond repair. In fact, the senator said it was inconceivable that any man would not have the same ideas on the present war. He said also that when he crosses the sons of England and France fighting in the trenches side by side our quarrels here seem mean in the extreme.

WORKING BOYS' HOME Has Fifty Representatives in Khaki—Col. Noel Marshall, Chairman.

The forty-ninth annual meeting of the above institution was held at Oakham House last Friday.

The secretary pointed with pride to the honor roll, which contained the names of over 50 boys belonging to the home, now in khaki.

The treasurer's statement, after meeting all expenses, exceeding $6000, showed a small balance on the right side of the ledger.

The recent death of the former chairman, Sir John A. Boyd, who for the last twenty years had been closely identified with, and deeply interested in this work among homeless boys, was feelingly alluded to.

Col. Noel Marshall was elected chairman of the board for the ensuing year; Rev. W. W. Merrill, secretary, and Walter Gillespie, treasurer.

Only Two Members of the Government Favored the Proposal in Caucus.

Special to The Toronto World.

Montreal, Dec. 2.—A prominent member of the Quebec Legislature and a supporter of the administration told your correspondent today that the hopes of the temperance people for a referendum or a straight prohibition measure were disappointed. The government cautioned the question, and altho no decision was reached, there were but two members of the party, Hon. Mr. Giguere of the upper house, and Dr. Roy of Lewis who favored prohibition as a government measure.

GREECE FILES PROTEST ON DEMANDS OF ALLIES

Note Handed to Washington Denounces Action as Serious Infringing of Sovereign Rights.

Washington, Dec. 2.—A note denouncing as a "serious infringement of sovereign rights," the allied demand for surrender of Greek arms and ammunition to the Anglo-French expedition at Salonica, and pleading for the sympathetic understanding of the United States in the "painful circumstances" surrounding the Greek Government and people, was delivered to the state department by A. Vouras, charge of the Greek legation.

The communication sets forth at length the efforts of Greece to maintain neutrality, and gives notice that the Greek Government "has rejected and will continue to reject this last demand." No official explanation of the causes which led the government to recede from that decision has reached Washington, but from the language of the note, officials infer that extreme pressure must have been exerted before the arms and ammunition were given up.
