IMPERIAL THEATRE TODAY

Present the Six-Part Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature

"THE FOOTLIGHTS OF FATE"

From the Novel "Joan Thursday" by Louis Joseph Vance

CAST: NAOMI CHILDERS, MARY MACDERMOTT, ROBERT WHITWORTH, CAROLYN BIRCH, JOSEPHINE BARLE, TEMPLE Saxe, KATHERINE LEWIS

"THE SECRET OF THE SUBMARINE"

Raging, tempestuous scenes in today's chapter are of the most pulsating, exciting character. The brilliant beauty of wonderful sea-scapes—veritable photographic gems in scenic art—are in sharp contrast to the terrors of treacherous waters filled with death-dealing floating mines.

JOE PAGE TO TELL TIMES READERS ABOUT BIG GAMES

Joe Page, noted baseball expert, scout and writer, is now in Boston for the first of the world series championship games and he will follow the series in both Boston and Brooklyn.

PATROLLING IS DANGEROUS SPORT

Sometimes a Scout Officer Gets Mixed Up With Exasperating Results

Patrolling plays a prominent part in trench warfare. The sporting instinct peculiar to nearly every British soldier to undertake his dangerous work with unbounded enthusiasm. Indeed, so seriously do some divisions apply themselves to it that they would be grievously offended if one spoke of the ground separating their own trenches and the hostile ones as "No Man's Land."

ward inch by inch. With every movement forward his hopes rise higher. Then his quick ear detects a movement in the trench, followed immediately by a gruff challenge: "Halt! Hands up!"

The wire prevents him lifting his arms, but, able to use his tongue, he pronounces a certain word—as only a Briton can—with such extraordinary gusto that it probably saves his life.

With natural exasperation he forces his way through the remaining wire and enters his own trench.

"One should always—er—creep under one's own wire when—er—returning from a patrol," he remarks naively to his men: "It's—er—good practice."
