

"We are living better and longer than ever before. According to the insurance table, we are longer on the average than people of a generation ago."

And we're dressing better with better style than ever before since hides and furs were fashion's favorite fabric.

In the years we have been handling 20th Century Brand ready clothes we have never been better pleased than we are with the garments we are showing this fall.

They are smartly styled, beautifully tailored and produced in the choice of the world's best fabrics.

To show them is a pleasure.

WHAT CITY CHILDREN LACK
The Companionship of Their Parents
Is Something They Miss

That the home, and especially the city home, is in grave danger is the contention of Margaret Woodward. In discussing the home life of the average city child, she says:

"There is little home companionship for the city-bred child. Father's business calls him downtown daily. With the lightning of stars, father finds time to engage in social, charitable and literary work outside his home. Oftentimes his children and his home become objects of secondary importance. The younger children are left in charge of irresponsible nurse girls and the older ones never expect to find either parent when they come home from school. A loss of sympathy grows out of this loss of companionship. The children select their friends and confidants outside the home circle. Both parents are usually out on evenings. Being members of clubs, their time is largely devoted to these functions and theatre parties."

HAYMARKET SQUARE FOUNTAIN RESTORED BUT IN NEW PLACE

The Loyalist memorial fountain, which was erected and presented to the city by the Polymorphian Club in 1882 and which was overturned when a runaway team collided with it last fall, has been restored and placed at the eastern corner of Haymarket square and the water was turned on this morning.

The fountain presents a somewhat different appearance as the figure which surmounted it has been replaced, temporarily, by a fancy granite urn. It is expected, though, that the statue will be repaired and again placed in position.

The appearance of the fountain has been greatly improved by the cleaning of the stone and metal and the addition of electric lights over the basin. The work was done by A. Kinsella and is very creditable.

The placing of the fountain at this end of the square was decided on in view of the anticipation of increased traffic following the extension of the street cars across the Marsh bridge. In its present position the teams can come and go without interfering with street car traffic.

A few drops of oil of lavender scattered through a book-case in a closed room will save the library from mould in damp weather.

CAUSES A DELAY

The excavation for the water main extension at the eastern end of Main street was completed yesterday and everything was ready to lay the pipes and make the connection this morning. The heavy rain during the night altered the situation, however, by loosening the earth and causing the sides of the excavation to cave in. Workmen started this morning to dig out the trench again, but it is not likely that the job will be completed today.

OAK LEAVES INDUSTRY

They are Gathered and Sold in Some Parts of New Jersey

In certain sections of New Jersey the gathering of oak leaves is a late summer and autumn industry. Many Jewish residents and other farmers of the foreign element are making money gathering small bunches of the leaves.

Passing through the section where the industry is carried on, one sees the sides of houses and barns or any other place out of doors, where the branches can hang to dry, filled with row after row of bunches of oak.

After drying for two weeks they are put into bales for shipment. Last year one man gathered more than 300 bunches a day and had over 12 tons for shipment.

The price is about $80 a ton, and there is a brisk demand in European cities for the oak branches thus prepared. There are 100 limbs in a bundle and 100 bundles in a bale. The leaves are free for the taking, mostly still, some owners of woodland are in the money-making game themselves and charge so much an acre for the privilege.

The gatherer does not have to sow or cultivate—it seems as if the crop were a gift of nature.—Philadelphia Record.

BIG SHIPMENTS OF POTATOES TO THE STATES

Fredericton Reports Thriving Business—Valley Railway Matter.

Fredericton, N. B., Oct. 25.—Farmers of this section are already reaping the benefit of the reduced tariff on potatoes entering the United States. The crop in this section is a heavy one and the quality is of the best. Since the new tariff went into effect the price has advanced from eighty cents to $1 a barrel and the chances are bright for a further advance.

Speaking to the Times correspondent this morning Ald. W. W. Boyce said his shipments of potatoes so far this month had totaled 100 car loads, which was a record breaker for him. He has made small shipments to Cuba, the balance going to New York and Boston. He has made no shipments to Ontario since the new tariff went into force.

Relations between the Hibbard Company, sub-contractors for the Fredericton-Woodstock section of the Valley Railway and the St. John and Quebec Railway Company are reported to be somewhat strained. The Hibbard concern has been making slow progress with their work and efforts on the part of Mr. Gould's company to stir them up have not been very successful. It is said that at least one member of the Flemington government is closely identified with the Hibbard company.

The Russian killed on the Fredericton and Grand Lake railway on Thursday has been identified as Andre Robiesauk. He belongs to the province of Minsk, where his wife and one child reside. The man who was last seen in his company was John Patch. He says that they parted at 9 o'clock in the afternoon and that the deceased had a bottle of liquor.

YOUR MEMORY CURVES

Expert Offers Data Concerning Man's Readiness to Forget

Two investigators, working at the University of Chicago, have found a new "curve of forgetting" or record of how fast the average person forgets something he has learned.

They found that two or three seconds after a thing has been very successfully memorized the process of forgetting begins, and that in five minutes about one-sixth has already been forgotten. In half an hour about one-third has slipped away, and two-fifths is forgotten at the end of a day, and one-half is gone by the end of the week. From then on the process of forgetting is slower, so that at the end of 125 days the pupil still remembers a third of the lesson.

That rapid learners are just as apt to remember well as slow learners, and that for most people eight o'clock in the morning is the best time for learning, are two other conclusions these investigators have drawn from their studies. Some persons have other hours for their best work in memorizing, but, on the average, the investigators found it requires thirteen per cent. more time to learn something at five o'clock in the afternoon than at eight in the morning.

The method of investigation used by the two Chicago men was to have some students memorize a list of nonsense syllables, or short words that have no meaning, and then see how long it took them to learn the same series again at later times. Investigations made abroad in the past have shown that the process of forgetting is slower, so that at the end of 125 days the pupil still remembers a third of the lesson.
