Populace of Rome Disappointed at Seeing Smoke for Fourth Time.
THE CARDINALS IN CONCLAVE

No Election of a Successor to Late Pope
The XIII. has yet been chosen. The conclusion is drawn that the strength of the leading candidates remains unbroken, and that no compromise candidate has yet appeared. And there is no indication of how long this condition of affairs will continue.

Rome, Aug. 3.—No successor to Pope XIII. has yet been chosen. The conclusion is drawn that the strength of the leading candidates remains unbroken, and that no compromise candidate has yet appeared. And there is no indication of how long this condition of affairs will continue.

The scene at St. Peter's last night was by far the most impressive that has occurred in Rome since the late Pope became ill. After the fruitless morning ballot a belief spread that a new Pontiff would surely be elected last evening.

When the hour of 6 struck, a tremor of expectancy ran through the multitude, because, according to yesterday's program, the burning of the ballots, or the announcement of an election would come within a few minutes.

For a moment the crowd believed that the signal meant an election for there is a tradition that the cardinals are allowed to send up a little smoke as a notification of an election, and much smoke in the case of a disagreement. Any such hopes, however, were almost immediately dispelled, for a cloud of very thick smoke emerged and continued for five minutes.

With many speculations of disappointment the populace watched the last trace of the smoke disappear, and then dispersed.
