

Provincial News

HOPEWELL HILL, Sept. 29.—The three-masted schooner Ruth Robinson came into the river by this morning's tide, taking the berth at the plaster maters, and who has been living the less exciting life of a farm hand here during the summer, left on the schooner Sakata for Boston, intending to go south before cold weather.

Charles King of Boston, owner of the plaster quarry near here, was in the village yesterday.

John N. Rogers, who has been at sea all summer, has returned to his home here.

At a meeting of the members of the agricultural society here on Saturday evening, it was decided to hold no fair this year, and contribute $100 to a fund for a new hall, and the balance of the year's fund to stock buying.

Miss Celia Peck returned on Wednesday from St. John, where she spent several weeks with relatives.

Mrs. Conlon, wife of Capt. Conlon of the schooner Sakata, left yesterday for home in Parrsboro.

WHITE'S COVE, Queens Co., Sept. 27.—The death took place at the residence of his son-in-law, John F. Wright, on the 14th inst., of William B. Farris, an aged and much respected citizen of this place. By his jolly and youthful manner all through life the deceased had the good-will of everybody, and was known as "Uncle Will." In his early days he followed the woods and stream-driving for a vocation. Later he ran a woodboat on the river, but of late years he settled down to farming. He was always the possessor of a good stock, and he was ever ready to impart it to any company he might be in, much to their entertainment. The late gentleman was a member of the Baptist church, having embraced Christianity when a young man, and through his life-time was an active worker in the church.

His wife, who was Miss Elizabeth Knight, daughter of the late Rev. Peter Knight, pre-deceased him some years. The late Mr. Farris left a family of nine children to mourn the loss of a kind and loving father. The sons are: Fred S., inspector for the Sun Life Insurance Co., St. John; Burton A., also of St. John; Henry B., of St. John; Washington, and Wm. A. of this place. The daughters are: Mrs. Willard G. P. Reece of Central Cambridge, Queens Co.; Mrs. Arthur Cameron of St. John; Mrs. Edmund H. Farris of Mill Cove, Queens Co.; Mrs. Edward R. Cook of McDonald's Cove, Queens Co., and Mrs. John F. Wright of this place. The funeral, which was largely attended, took place on Sunday morning, the 17th inst. The remains were laid to rest in the family plot at Mill Cove, after which a fitting sermon was preached by Rev. A. B. MacDonald in the Methodist church. Rev. C. C. Bell (Methodist) also took part in the service.

The members and attendants of the Mill Cove Baptist church, who ran an excursion to Chipman, May Queen on Saturday, the 16th inst., intending to return by night, were somewhat disappointed, the night shutting in so dark and cloudy that Capt. R. Weston was unable to take his boat out of Salmon River. Consequently the party were forced to stay till Sunday morning, when the captain returned them to their homes. As a result the proceeds were much below what was anticipated, but nevertheless there was a profit of $20, which goes towards the repairs the church is now undergoing.

The re-dedication of the Baptist church at Upper Jemseg, which has recently undergone extensive repairs, took place on Sabbath last. Rev. Dr. Joseph McLeod of Fredericton presided at the dedication sermon, the pastor, Rev. H. D. Worden, assisting in all of the services of the day. The house was filled to overflowing at every service. The Upper Jemseg people have one of the finest country churches in the province. Those who promoted the work are certainly deserving of great praise for the effort and the result.

The excursion gotten up by the people of the Baptist church at Upper Jemseg on the 22nd inst., from Jemseg to Fredericton exhibition by steamer Aberdeen, was not the success that had been expected. The proceeds were for the repair fund of the church.

The excursion from Cole's Island to Fredericton by steamer Aberdeen, on Monday last, was very poorly attended.

Last week Benjamin Palmer of this place trapped a large bear on the Den stream. This is the second one Mr. Palmer has taken this summer. The bear brought him $12.

Mrs. Vernon Kildred and children of St. John, who have been visiting Mrs. C. W. White, have returned home.

Mrs. James W. Scribner of St. John, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Mary Farris, returned home on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Scott of St. John spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. C. W. White, returning to the city on Monday by steamer Mr. Queen.

Miss Edith Mawer of St. John spent Sunday with J. E. Austin.

Mrs. Maud White and friend of St. John, who have been spending some days at James W. Stephens', have returned home.

J. A. Molarsky and Mrs. Geo. Alward of Portland, Maine, who have spent two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Austin, left for home on Monday. They were accompanied as far as St. John by Mrs. J. E. Austin and daughter Edith.

Mrs. Fred Hunter of Stowe, Mass., spent Sunday with friends here.

Several persons from here are attending the Fredericton exhibition.

ST. ANDREWS, Sept. 29.—Miss Mary, and Miss Edith, after an enjoyable visit to St. Andrews, during which they stopped at Mrs. Main's cottage, the Anchorage, left yesterday by steamer for their home in Washington, D. C.

A. R. Macdonnell of Montreal arrived yesterday. He with Mrs. Macdonnell, children and maid, went out on the evening train. Mrs. Macdonnell enjoyed her visit to St. Andrews, during

Dear Mother

Your little ones are a constant care in Fall and Winter weather. They catch cold. Do you know about Shiloh's Consumption Cure, the Lung Tonic, and what it has done for so many? It is said to be the only reliable remedy for all diseases of the air passages in children. It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. It is guaranteed to cure or your money is returned. The price is 25c. per bottle, and all dealers in medicine sell it.

SHILOH
This remedy should be in every household.

which she occupied Chestnut Hall, Kings street.

Campobello was very much in evidence yesterday in town. About one hundred of its male population were here to attend the examination before Police Magistrate Geo. H. Lamb of John H. Thaurer, who was charged with causing a disturbance on the highway on the night of the 18th Sept.

Owen A. Batson was the complainant, for whom Mr. McMonagle, K. C., appeared. Mr. N. Cockburn, K. C., was for the defendant. The witnesses sworn said that John Thaurer had nothing to do with breaking the glass in Batson's store. One of the witnesses said that he understood the object of the crowd was to destroy the rum supposed to be in the Batson building.

Mr. McMonagle applied for an adjournment to enable him to get the witnesses who had been summoned and did not appear. Mr. Cockburn opposed the application unless Mr. McMonagle would get bench warrants issued to compel attendance. This he declined to do. Thereupon the magistrate dismissed the case and discharged the prisoner.

B. M. Pike of Lubec, Me., as an evidence of his sympathy with the movement to suppress the sale of rum on the island of Campobello, sent up his steamer Lubec to carry free of charge the persons who came to St. Andrews back to Yelapouo.

Fred McCurdy the other evening, while assisting Mr. Budd in fitting up the barber shop recently vacated by Rooney, walked out of the back door and fell into a trench and injured the back of his skull. Several stitches had to be taken in the wound.

HARCOURT, N. B., Sept. 30.—Two homes in this community are very sad today, and have the sympathy of all. Yesterday word came that John, son of William Livingstone of Montserrat, had died in England (the hospital of) of typhoid. He was a young man well known and highly respected here. He was unmarried.

This morning a dispatch announced the death in London of Isaac, son of the late James Starrak. Deceased went to Halifax hospital on the 8th inst. having been afflicted with tuberculosis. Finding no improvement, he left for St. John, dying of exhaustion induced by the disease, in Montserrat. Deceased was 31 years of age and leaves a widow and two children. Mr. Starrak had been ill for several years. He was a highly honored and well-to-do farmer.

Two large moose were shot a day or two ago on Big Forks stream, Salmon River. Isaac Brown, of this place, secured the larger, whose antlers measured 58 inches. The other was secured by J. S. Douglas of Uniontown, who took his trophy home yesterday.

Moody MacMichael of West Branch visited Harcourt this week.

Yesterday William Hutchinson and Robert Hutchinson of Boston and St. John respectively, who were visiting relatives here, returned home, accompanied by their friend, Mr. McLeod of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Call of Pine Ridge visited Robert and John Wellwood this week.

Rev. R. Hensley Slavers returned day before yesterday from his three weeks' vacation at his old home in P. E. Island.

Miss Rita Lutes, who has been visiting at her home at Berry's Hill, returned yesterday.

Miss Margaret M. Curran is visiting her home at West Branch.

On Tuesday, Capt. MacDonald, who had been visiting a cousin here, returned to Cambridge, Mass.

Angus M. Dewar of Milltown, recently principal of this school, visited Harcourt this week, leaving yesterday for a course in arts in Victoria University. A reception in his honor was given at St. M. Dunn's on the 27th.

Wm. M. Sullivan, Pine Ridge, sold most of his personal property at auction yesterday.

Yesterday a harvest supper was held at Beersville in aid of repairing the Presbyterian Church.

On the 27th at the home of the bride, John River, Miss Mary Edith Ward was married to Archibald Hutchinson. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. M. Townsend.

OLIVILLE, Sept. 29.—Alexander Elder and Miss Anna Belyea were united in marriage on Wednesday. They have the good wishes of the community.

Mrs. Edward Lyon of Boston left for home yesterday.

Edmund Darrah and wife of Portland, Me., passed through here on Tuesday.

Mrs. James Walker is visiting friends in Caverhill.

A number of the young men from this place will shortly leave for the lumber woods.

ST. ANDREWS, Sept. 29.—Miss Mary, and Miss Edith, after an enjoyable visit to St. Andrews, during which they stopped at Mrs. Main's cottage, the Anchorage, left yesterday by steamer for their home in Washington, D. C.

A. R. Macdonnell of Montreal arrived yesterday. He with Mrs. Macdonnell, children and maid, went out on the evening train. Mrs. Macdonnell enjoyed her visit to St. Andrews, during which she occupied Chestnut Hall, Kings street.

Campobello was very much in evidence yesterday in town. About one hundred of its male population were here to attend the examination before Police Magistrate Geo. H. Lamb of John H. Thaurer, who was charged with causing a disturbance on the highway on the night of the 18th Sept.

Owen A. Batson was the complainant, for whom Mr. McMonagle, K. C., appeared. Mr. N. Cockburn, K. C., was for the defendant. The witnesses sworn said that John Thaurer had nothing to do with breaking the glass in Batson's store. One of the witnesses said that he understood the object of the crowd was to destroy the rum supposed to be in the Batson building.

Dr. Wilson Tells the Story of Methodism in Hopewell

From the Original Founding of the Denomination in That District—Some Very Interesting Incidents of a Historical Character.

On the minutes of the Methodist conference, Hopewell was understood to include Hopewell Hill, Hopewell Cape, Harvey, Salmon River, Hillsboro, Albert Mines, Demolisse Creek, New Ireland and Caledonia. In this paper it is used in a much narrower sense, and is restricted to Albert, Hopewell Hill and Harvey—a tract of country magnificent in scenery, rich in its resources, and one that offers large inducements to the tourist in search of health and recreation.

Methodism in this region is not a thing of yesterday, it bears the century stamp, and has fully established its claim to respectful recognition. This has been done not only by reforming the admittedly bad, but also by the developing of a type of character which lends grace and dignity to its possessor. Illustrations of this have been neither few nor far between, men and women deservedly regarded as among the excellent of the earth. Instead of the parents are the children. Names of those who while living were held in high repute are still lovingly remembered, and the seed they sowed and the influence they exerted have told with favorable effect upon their successors.

METHODISM INTRODUCED IN 1770.

Methodism was introduced into Hopewell by neither the Rev. William Black nor any of his fellow laborers, but was taken there by a private family in 1770, to whom reference will be made later on. Whether Mr. Black visited the place in 1781 or not until 1782 we cannot say, but at the latter date there was a society in existence, of whose zeal and love he speaks in the warmest terms. But the principal part of the work was done by the Rev. Wm. F. Bailey, who spent the winter of 1782 there. He was an American, by birth, who had been sent to the country by the Methodist authorities in New York and who was well and favorably known throughout Nova Scotia.

He was a zealous and earnest and devoted minister. He eventually returned to the United States, but in order to obtain the funds necessary to cover the expenses of the voyage he left behind him a number of valuable tracts of land, which he had secured in the state of Delaware, where he died in 1821.

WILLIAM AND MARTHA DANIELS.

Two persons appear to have been Methodists before Mr. Bailey's time—William Daniels and his wife Martha. They came from New London, in Connecticut, about the year 1770, and for some years were the only bearers of the Methodist name in all Shepody. Hopewell was then called. Mr. Daniels was possessed of more than ordinary ability, acted as a local preacher, and made himself generally useful in religious lines. He died in 1811. His son, Joseph, married Esther, daughter of Marvin and Ruby Lord of Cornwallis, Nova Scotia, of whom the Rev. Peter Sleep speaks in the kindest terms, and the closing scene of whose life he describes in a very touching manner. This occurred on the 6th of December, 1841, he then being in the first year of his age. The writer of this paper was both at the funeral and the grave ministered to members of this family, and recalls one sad incident in its history. William Daniels, like many of the sons of Albert, followed the sea, and made one voyage to the west, and he left home one night in the autumn of 1865 or '66, but was never heard from after, and the fate of ship and crew will remain among the secrets of the deep until all has been given up.

Many an Albert home has been saddened by the absence of those who sleep beneath the dark waters, but undeterred by these frequent and painful disasters, there are those who are always ready to fill the vacancies occasioned by the absence of "the loved, the lost the distant and the dead."

THE DAY OF ITINERANT PREACHERS.

For a number of years after its introduction the Methodism of Hopewell was cared for, if the little attention that was given deserves to be so spoken of, by preachers who were indeed itinerants. They came from without, came irregularly, and often with long intervals between. Humusly speaking, inducements offered were not alluring, and the prospects of success not encouraging. The Baptists had largely emptied the ground, and as they were maintaining a considerable interest in the religious welfare of the people, the Methodist preachers felt they were more needed elsewhere. Their number was small, they had a broad field to cast for their circuit, including the counties of Cumberland and Westmorland—and Hopewell was quite remote from the more important Methodist centres. It must not be forgotten that these were not the days of railway tracks, of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushioned and fur-furnished sleighs, nor even of passable highways. Horses were not numerous, and the itinerants had to foot it. Imagine a man on a wild winter day climbing a New Ireland hill or the Caledonia mountains to preach to a handful of people, who were not in circumstances to remunerate him for his services, or with the way tracks of rubber-tired carriages and cushion