The judges who officiated were: Mr. Frank C. Smith and Mr. D. G. Linsley. All present felt that the judging could not be in better hands. With business-like rapidity, the special coupons which were received during Saturday were emptied from the ballot box and were soon arranged into their various districts and the count was on. A triple check was made so that accuracy was perfectly assured. The votes were of such large denomination that although thousands were dealt with, in a very short time the names of the winners were read. Great astonishment was expressed amidst all the congratulations which followed, at the extraordinary large vote. When Miss McLeod's vote of 286,290 was read out a great sigh went up and general astonishment prevailed, especially as toward the last of the contest four of the candidates had hopes, and justifiable hopes, too, that they would be able to select the champion of the year.

It is difficult for The Standard to express its astonishment or its gratification at so unexpected a great success, but to place on The Standard books upwards of 1500 new subscribers in the last few weeks was something as unlooked for as inspiring.

Miss Nan McBrearty, of District 1, and we venture to say that it must have taken some planning on the part of Miss McLeod and Miss Nan McBrearty to bring this about. We promise that the duty will not be an arduous one, as the winners are all such charming young ladies that we can vouch for the office of chaplain will be easy to fill.

The Contest a Big Success.
In this age of progressiveness a newspaper generally shows appreciation to its subscribers in some manner besides printing a good newspaper; and in what better way could The Standard have shown such appreciation than by putting up prizes, such as the educational tours, to be contested for by representative young ladies?

A newspaper must have a big list of readers in order to give its advertisers what they pay for and the Standard of new readers added by reason of the thorough canvass made by the contestants will make The Standard all the more valuable as an advertising medium.

The features of the contest were so thoroughly noted during its progress that it is only necessary to state that the votes cast by the friends of the candidates during the last hour of the balloting contained developments as surprising to The Standard as to any of those interested in the outcome.

The question was asked many times at this office, "Who will win?" and each time the answer was, "It is impossible to tell."

The Judges Take Charge.
At 10 o'clock the polls were closed and as soon as all subscriptions then in hand had been recorded the judges began the final count. The result of their findings is given elsewhere.

Anxiety Now Over.
Shakespeare talks of the fallacy of "gilding refined gold or painting the lily," and any attempt to praise the winners of the tour would be almost as futile. What difficulties have had to be overcome by all who succeeded in a contest only the winners know, and glad is The Standard to be able to compensate for all their difficulties and worry incident to such an endeavor.

The past work—the weary, tired feeling—all now disappear, and in the delights of anticipation, and very soon realization—all the past will be forgotten.

All Share in Glory.
While The Standard congratulates the winners on their success and the other contestants for the excellent showing which they made, it feels that it cannot overlook its own share of success. It now has upon its list a largely increased number of new subscribers from St. John—the men and women of the town—the list of subscribers has been swelled most gratifyingly. The Standard certainly has reason to feel proud of its greatly increased advertising value, and there can be no doubt that its field of responsibility and usefulness is greatly enhanced.

After all, the business men and advertisers of St. John—the men and women of the town—the list of subscribers has been swelled most gratifyingly. The Standard certainly has reason to feel proud of its greatly increased advertising value, and there can be no doubt that its field of responsibility and usefulness is greatly enhanced.

To the Contestants.
The contest manager wishes to express his appreciation to the contestants for their thorough canvass, and diligent work during the contest period. The total vote exhibit is most pleasing to him, and too much credit cannot be given those young ladies of New Brunswick who entered into the contest with a spirit that carried it to such a successful termination; he wishes to express his thanks to the young ladies and their friends who have been instrumental in making this the greatest contest ever conducted in St. John.

The Judges.
The Standard wishes publicly to thank the judges for the kindly assistance at the close.

To Subscribers.
Owing to the great number of subscriptions received last evening, we ask all new subscribers to bear with us for a few days until everything be put in such shape that all will receive their paper regularly.

From the Contest Manager.
To The Standard Co., Ltd.,
Publishers of The St. John Standard.

Gentlemen,—In closing my work with your circulation campaign, and particularly with your voting contest, I desire to say that in my experience, covering many events, this one has been most successful. From a subscription point of view, the exceedingly large vote cast proves this fact. The net gain in The Standard's already large circulation must be very pleasing to you, and it is itself a striking tribute to the high esteem in which your excellent and up-to-date newspaper is held by the people of New Brunswick. I cannot help but feel that through the enterprise which prompted this unique contest, The Standard has been placed in a much stronger position with its readers, its advertisers and the general public. Please express my best wishes to those contestants and their supporters with whom I was for a few weeks brought in contact. I say the winners enjoy their trip and those less fortunate be consoled with the knowledge that the loss of such a well-fought and good-natured contest carries no disgrace, but on the contrary there is high honor in receiving the loyal support of so many friends and well-wishers.

Please accept my thanks for the manifold courtesies extended during my stay, and at this time I want to express my best wishes to you and the faithful employees associated with you.

Very truly yours,

REFORMS SUGGESTED IN SCHOOL SYSTEM

H. H. Stuart Believes Compulsory Act Should be Amended—Suggests Government Operation of Lumbering.

Newcastle, Oct. 7.—At the Teachers' Institute, yesterday afternoon, Principal H. H. Stuart spoke on "Some Ways of Improving our School System." His subject was (1) To teach a child he must attend school. Our compulsory education law, being optional for each district, is ineffective. Even in many places where the act is supposed to be in force, as in Newcastle, there is no attempt to enforce the law. The Factory Act, allowing children "whose labor is necessary for the support of their parents or guardians," to work in factories under age, kills the spirit of compulsory attendance. Poor children should not be condemned to ignorance because they are poor. The Compulsory Education Act and Factory Act should be at once amended, so as to abolish child labor and ensure equal educational advantages.

(2) There should be provision made for backward pupils. Special treatment should be given them.

(3) Manual training should be compulsory. Many a child that is a poor scholar in Latin, English or history, would take to manual work and develop into a good workman after leaving school. To maintain ourselves industrially the hand and eye must be educated in school.

(4) All schools should be graded. Let the smaller districts be consolidated. Make consolidation general. Give a pupil of a small district equal chance with the city child. This would cost a little more but would pay. The whole cost of such advanced education, as well as the rest of the public service, could be easily met without borrowing a cent, by the provincial government instead of alienating their forests and mines to private parties, working the lumber and pulp mills themselves for the benefit of the whole province. Out of the profits they could even pay off the provincial debt. Money could be easily found if the government wished to take the right means to get it.

(5) No class less than second should be licensed. If high class teachers are necessary for some pupils let all have them.

(6) The teacher's position should be permanent. Houses should be provided for teachers by the government, and equitable old age pension system.

Such reforms can only be got by continual pressure upon public opinion. To make their influence felt in greatest degree, teachers should revive their union and make it effective.

Inspector Mersereau said that, although Mr. Stuart's proposals varied strongly upon socialism, he could find nothing wrong with them. There was a plan by which, with full approval of intelligent voters, the government could provide consolidated schools, pensions, etc., and have an overvalued treasury besides. That was by properly conserving the forests as is done in Germany, where not a tree is cut but being marked by the government officer. German forests pay big for the timber they conserve.

He agreed that consolidation of schools should be compulsory. Our school system must soon take a step ahead or seriously retrograde.
