ENEMY, UNDER TERRIFIC PRESSURE, RETIRES; FERRE-EN-TARDENOIS, SUPPLY BASE, TAKEN

Allies Cross the Ourcq and Constantly Harass the Retreating Foe—Enemy Had to Give Way or Die in His Tracks, Under Unrelenting Fire of Foch's Fighters—Magnificent Advance Continued

With the French Armies on the Marne, July 29. The magnificent move of Generals Foch and Petain, splendidly carried out by Gouraud, Mangin, De Goutte and Berthelot, is bringing results. The Germans, under irresistible pressure, are retreating all along the front. The information given out officially no longer covers the full situation. The incessant smashing blows night and day of the Entente Allies left the enemy nothing else to do but to retreat or die in his positions. Even their sudden retirement has not relieved the Germans from constant harrying. In addition to the slashing of the cavalry and the pounding of the tanks, the lives of the German rear-guards are being made precarious by Entente infantry patrols. Meanwhile, Allied aviators daringly fly a few hundred feet overhead, bombarding and machine-gunning the German batteries and columns on the march. MOPPING UP THE ENEMY. On the banks of the Marne, south of the centre of the salient, not a single live German remains. Their sudden retreat here was brought about by the constant pressure of the French, Americans and British. Allied troops have kept constantly on the heels of the enemy, and some patrols have advanced considerably farther than the line indicated. The method of retirement adopted by the enemy consists of first retiring one company from every two companies, then two sections from the remaining company. Then the last section withdraws, leaving only a few men with machine guns to cover the retreat. These men often are sacrificed, but sometimes they manage to rejoin their comrades and the manoeuvre is repeated. Entente allied patrols pushing ever forward have reached the southern bank of the River Ourcq. This morning was extremely quiet along the centre of the salient, where the Germans were not offering great opposition. Great Work by Tanks. The tank crews have been heroes in this chase, and ever since the commencement of the German retreat they have done remarkable work. After breaking up the enemy front line and preparing the way for the advance of infantry, the tanks have throughout continued to exploit the success gained. Some tanks have even attacked the enemy's artillery batteries and killed all the gunners, thus permitting the infantry to capture many of these weapons. There is not a tank in the section of tanks which has taken part in the fighting that has not from fifteen to twenty machine guns to its credit. Most of the prisoners declare that the losses caused by the tanks have been terrible. Narrowing the Pocket. The line where the German withdrawal has attained its greatest depth is northeast of Chateau Thierry. The depth from that point gradually becomes narrower until it is quite small on nearing the eastern pivot on the front southwest of Rheims. Both here and around Soissons, the other pivot, the ground is admirably suited for defence. In the vicinity of these two points the Germans have concentrated most of their artillery and large forces of infantry, knowing that if a breach be made at either place by the Allies the great majority of the German troops occupying the remainder of the pocket must be sacrificed. Enemy Guns Mashed. On both wings, however, the greatest activity prevails. The enemy has massed many heavy guns to the north of Soissons, on the heights around Juvisy and Chavigny, whence they bombard with an enflading fire the western wings of the Allies in the Ourcq-le-Chateau region. Notwithstanding this bombardment the Allies in the Ourcq-le-Chateau region are making some progress, although they are faced by the Germans' best divisions and the concentrated fire of numerous machine guns. On the eastern wing the Allies gradually are obtaining command of the whole road leading from Darmans to Rheims. On this side also the Germans have assembled a great force of artillery in the neighborhood of St. Thierry, northwest of Rheims.

Dogging Enemy. Paris, July 28.—Le Journal says: "We are dogging the enemy's steps, rendering his retreat extremely painful. Our cavalry has reached far beyond the points officially mentioned. We are two kilometres from Ferre-en-Tardenois, which is threatened on both sides. Our aviators are co-operating in the pursuit, and are increasing the severe losses of the enemy. It is now possible to re-establish famous Paris-Chartres line in the sector between Chateau Thierry and Chalons." A Great Advance. The Petit Parisien says: "We have advanced nearly eight kilometres along a front of forty kilometres. Our troops everywhere are overwhelming the enemy." Other newspapers declare that a considerable amount of booty and prisoners have been captured. Premier Clemenceau spent yesterday afternoon at the front, witnessing the French advance.

AMAZING CAREER OF ENGLISH BOY Wandered at Age of Thirteen—He Thirsted to be a Soldier

Few school boys have crowded into their short life more adventures than has George Harris, who appeared at a London police court, here in brief, in his record. At the age of thirteen was a confirmed wanderer. At the beginning of the war made his way to the front, where he was arrested by the Germans and released. Sent to industrial school. Donned naval uniform and went recruiting with Sgt. O'Leary, the famous V.C. Received gifts from titled ladies for his recruiting efforts. Accused of theft and attempted to commit suicide. A "Lloyd's" representative obtained some details of the adventures of this amazing lad when he ran into the Germans at Antwerp on Christmas Eve, 1914, he resolved to go to the front to see the fighting. His capital amounted to 10s., his earnings as a choir boy. This sum paid his fare to Folkestone, where by a happy chance he met a lady whom he had supported with meat while working for an Edgeway. This lady, who he boldly asked her for a Christmas box, and she gave him 5s. He earned a few shillings by doing errands, and got another box, this time paid his fare to Flushing.

On arrival at Flushing he helped passengers with their luggage, and received 10s. and time he fell in to the hands of the British Consul, who sent him to a charitable Belgian lady, who promised to care for him. But young Harris wanted to see more of life, and decided to run away to Antwerp. During the journey he met an English soldier, and endeavored to persuade him to get him into the army as a drummer boy, but was told that he was too young; the military authorities would only send him back to England. Harris arrived in Antwerp just before the Germans entered the town. He was great and handsome and brought before a German lieutenant who had been educated in England. He gleaned the boy's story, and told him that had he been a year older, he would have been made a prisoner of war and sent to an internment camp in Germany. As it was, he would be sent to Holland as a refugee. On crossing the border the lad again fell into the hands of a British consul and was sent to Tilbury. With other refugees he was sent on to Exmouth, where he was later transferred to a Church Army home at Stonebridge Park. His parents were communicated with, and his mother brought him back to his home. But he still hankered after more adventures, and presented himself at a naval recruiting station. His record was looked into, and he was told that if at the end of six months he could present a clean record he would be sent to the Warship, with a view to training for the Navy. Meanwhile he fell in with Sergeant O'Leary, V.C., and addressed public meetings in Hyde Park and elsewhere. Lately, Harris had fallen upon romantic days, and has been earning a living as an errand boy, and it was an attempt at suicide following a suspicion of theft that led to his appearance in court.

EVERYBODY NEEDS PURE, RICH BLOOD

Pure blood enables the stomach, liver and other digestive organs to do their work properly. Without it they are sluggish, there is loss of appetite, sometimes faintness, a deranged state of the intestines, and, in general, all the symptoms of dyspepsia. Pure blood is required by every organ of the body for the proper performance of its functions. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes pure blood, and this is why it is so successful in the treatment of so many diseases and ailments. It acts directly on the blood, ridding it of serofulous and other humors. It is a peculiar combination of blood-purifying, nerve-toning, strength-giving substances. Get it today.
