IN GENERAL

With the men's varsity basketball in the Northern Eastern Conference let us not forget the ladies. The ladies' varsity will also have a full schedule with 14 games on the board. The MIAU games, including the big roundabout road trip to Dal plus many exhibition dates, should make up an interesting season.

Though you may think it early, hockey is already in the air. Pete Kelly, Athletic Director and Hockey Coach, has notified the Brunswickan that the UNB hockey team is entered in the local Commercial League with the initial game coming up about the first week in November. Practice will begin in the latter part of this week and all blade men are expected to turn out. Actual practice times are to be posted later.

Get into those intramural sports guys and gals. The campus is equipped with a fine gymnasium and an even finer staff. Bowling, Basketball, Water Polo, Softball, Soccer and Hockey are some of the sports which make up the intramural list. If you do not wish to or cannot delve into varsity sports, don't dismay. Keep in shape and enjoy keen competition. Full information is free at the gym from any well informed student. Perhaps those helmeted laddies on the Red Bomber Football team think they had it wet in the first game of the season, but what about the Soccer team? Their first two victories have been played in steady downpours. The wet field has slowed the team down but they should fly when they meet the Mt. A squad again in Sackville this week end. Meet a few of the mudders: L. Taylor who tends goal cleared quickly and well against Mt. A last week end. Jim McKenzie foots the ball well and he helped to break opposing plays the other day with his aggressive action. Vic Randall is an established star who is always there whether attacking or defending, making those long distance kicks count a great deal. Will Barrell, up on the forward line is another established man ship is to be decided on won and line, is another established man. Quick with the toe, he is alway driving for the opposing goal.

New York, Oct. 14-Robert M. Hutchins, under whose presidency the University of Chicago abandoned football in 1939, has written an article called College Football is an higher education.

THE BRUNSWICKAN

"MOOSE" IN OUR MIDS

Acording to Hutchins, Chicago dropped football because the game hampered the university's efforts to become the kind of institution it aspired to be, one devoted to education research, and scholarship. "Intercollegiate footbball," he says, "has little to do with any of these things and an institution that is to do well in them will have to concentrate upon them and rid itself of irrelevancies, no matter how attractive or profitable.

Accepting sport in its proper place as attractive and valuable, he adds, "No other country looks to its universitys as a prime source of athletic entertainment . . . and anybody who has watched as I have, 12 university presidents spend half a day solemnly discussing the Rose Bowl agreement, or anybody who has read-as who has not?-portentous discussions of the "decline of Har-vard, Yale, Stanford, or Chicago because of the recurring defeats of its football team must realize that we in America are in a ten games. The league champion-ship is to be decided on won and lost percentage with a trophy emblimatic of team supremacy at stake. Practices are now in pro-gress with the fellows working into shape for the heavy going ahead. Interful difference in the form one; but we can grasp the figures on the scoreboard"

Decrying the fact that football has become a symbol of college life, even the spiritual core of the modern campus, Hutchins quotes the late Jeff Cravath: "Nearly all colleges still playing big-time schedules have been forced into the open market to obtain their raw naterial. They must bid for the verjurers, scalpers and football gigolos is ignored." He points out that a college president must know the corrupt practices that are being used to build his football squad, but if he tries to stop them he runs foul of prominent alumni on the board of trustees or board of regents, or alumni with endowment-available money. The president needs that money to keep his school going. Hope in Professional

Football

Hutchin's hope for a solution to the university's dilemma lies in the slow but steady progress of pro-fessional football, in the time when people will not pay to see collegiate ball.

"When professional football," he says, "has reached this point, we shall be able to disentangle sport and -higher education. Students can play (or not play) as they wish J. Benson their friends may attend and ap-plaud if they like. It will be clear that this is relaxation from higher education, not the main purpose of it. Students will come to college to study. Alumni will believe that this is something a normal, red blooded, young American can pro-perly do. Donors will understand that they are asked to support the institution, not because it has succeeded in attracting a few boys who are huskier and faster than those representing another collage out because when they give it, their money will be well spent in im proving education and advancing knowledge. The colleges and uni-versities will be set free to be as good as they know how to be. "This," he concludes, "happene at Chicago.
