Friendship.

Hast thou a friend, constant when sorrow

fall,
As when around thee all is joy and mirth?
Oh! cherish him as God's best gift on earth,
For such a friend is not the lot of all.
Prize him, though humble—humble friends
are wise;
Prize him, though poor and lowly; dearer far The constant twinkle of the meanest star Than comet's transient blaze. And more we prize

The humble robin's garb who stays
To cheer our home through gloomy winter

Than the blithe, wandering cuckoo's richer

guise
Who only through the sunbright summer sings,
And when dark winter comes, outspreads his wings.
And speeds away in search of brighter skies.
C. S. a God, don't you?"

An Infidel Well Answered.

A citizen of Michigan who has something of a reputation for his infidel views and arguments, happened to meet seven or eight clergymen at a railroad station as they were waiting to take the train to at-tend a conference, and introducing himself to one of them, he said:

to one of them, he said:
"I want half an hour's talk with the smartest one of your crowd. Who is he?"
"Well, Brother White is pretty smart," was the reply.

The infidel walked up to the clergyman

A Test of Love.

"Is this the Rev. Mr. Mulkittle?" said a kind of out-of reason man, entering the library of a well know Little Rock minis

It was a vile imitation, and the one of the Christian schools in Cairo, "But how can I send him where he would hear his father spoken ill of?" She seemed the fence and laughed. The dollar had come to him in the contribution box.

A good name, good health, a good companion and a bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil are among the first requisites for human happiness. Yellow Oil cures Rheumatism, Sprains, Lameness, Bruises, Burns, Frost Bites, Croup, Sore Throat, and all pain and Inflammation.

OUR VOCATION.

God has a vocation for each one of us. We sometimes talk as if vocation were the privilege of a special few. This is a false mode of speech, a false thought. God cannot spare any one. He wants each single one for the carrying out of some part of His vast design. It is not merely the shapely stones that are necessary for a building, but those that are unshapely. The stones that are hidden from sight are just as needful for the compact firmness of the edifice as those that are in an honorable place. But we like to appear; we like to shine and be conspicuous. Perhaps this is not our call. If we are unnoticed and lost to outward view, we are not lost to the eye of God. We still form part of His plan. He has a use for us, and we have each of us a true vocation. Nothing happens by chance. Not a sparrow falls to the ground, says our Lord, without your Father's knowledge. The very hairs of our head are all numbered. The lilies of the field are under God's care. He clothes them; and He it is that feeds the young ravens when they call upon Him. And we who are of so much God has a vocation for each one of us. care. He clothes them; and He it is that feeds the young ravens when they call upon Him. And we, who are of so much more value than they, can He forget us? Are we not much more the objects of His loving, careful solicitude? We are never lost sight of yes for a box two markets. to a new house, large and dilapidated-looking and which Arabi was represented as having fitted up in luxurious style; in fact, at that time the crime most frequently alleged against him was that he had bought carpets to the amount of £120.
