In Kildare County, the "Chapel Bell," to ther districts the sound of which has soften called the people to scenes of riction, has at last done something. The La Trouche has offered his tenants reduction of twenty reactions.

Wicklew.

The most mean and bigotted tyranny ever heard of within living memory, by a landlord towards his poor tenants, has recently been exercised near Rath sellagh. Notices to quit, it appears, have been served on tenants in the neighbor hood by Mr. Pennefather, their landlord, because they did not give their votes last year to the candidate for the Poorlaw Guardianship of their landlord's selection! It is possible that for this species of intimidation Mr. Pennefather, if he were a tenant, might get his six months under the Coercion Act. In other places such intimidation of the free and independent voter by his landlord is like the tradition of a dream. In Dunlavin it seems to exist without a protest from the people. More serious still are the disclosures in the Land Court regarding the operations of the Land Act around Baltinglass. The case was heard in the Land Commission Court, on March 15th, of Harman v. Dennis, It was a landlord's appeal from a fair rent fixed at £15, being a reduction of 40 per cent. on the old rent.

Longford.

On the morning of March the 14th, a force of two hundred police, under command of Mr. B. Hill, R. M., left Long ford, and proceeded to the parish of Newtownosshel to evict five families living on the townland of Pollah, which runs along by the Shannon and is about the wildest spot in the country. Fearing opposition, twelve car loads of police were dispatched the previous night to prevent the roads being cut or blockaded. The rent due by the tenants amounted only to thirty pounds, but owing to law costs in the superior courts the exonly to thirty pounds, but owing to law costs in the superior courts the expenses bring the amount up to ninety pounds. Everything passed off quetly, and the police returned in the evening. The tenants offered to pay the rent less the cost, but it would not be accepted, and as they are all small occupiers no settlement could be arrived at. The highest rent due by any of the tenants was nine pounds for three years, and the law costs amounted to nineteen pounds. The unfortunate people were brought into the superior courts instead of taking action before the quarter sessions. The sheriff was represented by T. Gill, sub-sheriff, and some bailiffs.

The action of the county Cork Grand Jury in awarding £1,000 compensation to Leahy, the Mitchelstown policeman, has aroused all classes to indignation. A large meeting of ratepayers, convened by the Very Rev. Dean O'Regan, P. P., V. G., was held in the Town Hall, W. G., was need in the lower hair, Mitchelstown, to protest against the injustice of the imposition, and devise means for their protection. The determination of the meeting seemed to be that if the award is flated, and all legal measures fail, the district must be again plunged into turmoil, and the levy of every penny of the tax will be stoutly resisted by the ratepayers.

Early in the morning of March 16th, Mr. J. C. Flynn was released from the Gounty Cork Jail, after three weeks' imprisonment, for advocating the "Plan of Campaign" in Dunallow. After his release, Mr. Flynn, accompanied by some friends, went to his residence in imprisonment, for advocating the "Plan of Campaign" in Duhallow. After his release, Mr. Flynn, accompanied by some friends, went to his residence in Sunday's Well, and subsequently repaired to the Jail Cross, where he was enthusiastically received by crowds of friends and sympathizers, who had gone up there in anticipation of his release. Mr. Flynn delivered an address, in which he thanked those present for their reception of him. He said that Mr. Balfour must know now that in attempting to put a stigms on his political foes he gave them a higher place and a higher reward in the affections of their fellow countrymen.

In a few days the people of Kerry will have an opportunity afforded them of finging back this mendacious statement in the teeth of the person who uttered it. Eviction notices, for over 80 families in the parish of Keelcgues, have been served on the Castlebar Guardians. Over 40 on the Fitzgerald estate; close on 30 are at the suit of George A. Moore; and the balance at the suit of Harry Blake Kuox.

That pair of old barpies, Miss Gardiner and her familiar, Pringle, did not feel content with getting about 100 ejectment processes served on the Belcarra tenants; but that they might further endeavor to satisfy their brutal desire for persecution, they have decorated the pillars of Castlebar Courthouse with civil bill ejectments against a large number of other victims in the same locality.

The Coercion machine is about to get another trial in East Mayo. Four men and Martin McDonagh, Peter McDonagh, Pat Rodgers, and James Shrihane, residing in the parish of Kilmovee, near Ballaghaderreen, have been served with "intimidating" a family named Brennan who live in a village called Eastlawn.

onward, and virtue can never be the offspring of mere innocence. If we are to progress in the knowledge of good, we must also progress in the knowledge of evil. Every experience of evil brings its own temptation, and according to the degree in which the evil is recognized and the temptation resisted, will be the value of the character into which the individual will develop. Innocence may be beautiful, but can never be strong, while the whole essence of virtue lies in its strength to resist and power to while the whole essence of virtue lies in its strength to resist and power to endure. If the innocence of childhood be replaced by the firm principles of integrity and honor, the loss will be really a great gain. It is only where the knowledge of evil is unattended by appreciation of ite nature, where temptations are yielded to and not resisted, that we are induced to grieve over the departure of that innocence which was so beautiful in earlier years.

Into what darkness and dreariness of

Into what darkness and dreaviness of epochs and of ages, of minds, and of souls, the convent throws its salutary, beaming light! What marvels it has worked in the development and improvement of the human race! The convent was the sacred vessel which collected the dews of heaven, and poured them out upon the earth in pure and healthy streams; it was the fountain which sprang from life dedicated to God, and its sparkling currents called down a blessing upon the earth. It promoted the material, the mental and spiritual welfare of mankind. In the present age people think they perform miracles when was in a satisfactory condition.

Mr. P Murray, of Rossestown, near Thurles, was evicted, lately, from his house and farm by sheriff's bailiffs, who were protected by the Royal Irish. There was a crowd assembled but nothing the control of the control of the convent took all in itself—various onward, and virtue can never be the was a crowd assembled but nothing. In the present age people think they perform miracles when they further either of these interests.

The convent took all in hand? They cultivated the barren soil and made the dessert land put forth its fruit; they directed the parren soil and made the dessert land put forth its fruit; they directed the thirst for knowledge, which urges forward the daring human spirit to its proper end; they guided the impulses of the soul, and led her either to the fulfill-ment of her duty in the active life which the soul, and led her either to the fulfillment of her duty in the active life which was sanctified by the holy exercise of the works of mercy, or they provided for her the peaceful retirement of the silent cell for contemplation and devotion. They did all, they answered all purposes, understood all, and supplied the necessities of all. On the long ladder which the innumerable wants of man have raised, there is not a step on which a convent had not stood to fill a gap, to supply a want, to remedy a defect. The convents drew the most miserable and the most sublime creatures into their holy sphere. They offered a crown of penitence to the sinful. They nursed the sick, fed the hungry, released the imprisoned, sent missionaries into distant climes, wrote and collected books, taught the young, protected the old, cleared forests, cultivated deserts, and were indefatigable in the cure of souls; in short, what is there of useful, merciful, and philanthropic work that they have left undone? And they performed all out of love for God, and the desire of serving Him faithfully; out of love for Christ, and the longing to follow that example He had left to them; out of love for those immortal souls for which the Saviour had died—their own and their neighbors. They asked for nothing from mankind but leave to serve them; nothing from the world but the epimission to save it; nothing from the whole earth but liberty to renounce it; nothing from fortune but the right to despise it.
