broidered with colored grass or porcupine quills. The chiefs shook hands with the Prince and the Governor, the others bowed, and to each His Royal Highness gave a medal with the likeness of Her Majesty on one side and the Royal Arms on the other. The chiefs medals were as large as the palm of your hand. The other Indians received smaller ones about the size of half a crown. Then the red men brought forward a box and gave it to the Prince; it contained a tomahawk, bows and arrows, wampum pipes of peace, and other Indian curiosities.

This over, the Prince ment through Sarnia, passing under three very fine arches. He was driven in a carriage and four, and attended by a cavalcade of gentlemen and ladies on horse-back, to Point Edward. Here a splendid lunch was prepared, and the Royal party partock of it. The usual toasts were given with enthusiasem, and the Prince proposed prosperity to the Grand Trunk, which was enthusiastically bonored He then went to the balcony of the depot, whence a fine view of St. Clair was obtained, and embarked on the Grand Trunk steamer Michigan, running up the Liviver into Lake Heron, which was studded with sailing craft.
