

LATE GLADYS E. BONGARD'S OBSEQUIES

Impressive Funeral Service of Young Girl Who Lost Her Life on Saturday.

All that was mortal of the late Gladys E. Bongard, who lost her life by drowning at Massasauga Park on Saturday last, was laid at rest in the family plot in Belleville cemetery on Tuesday afternoon.

The funeral cortege was followed up Bridge Street, by a large number of citizens on foot and in carriages.

Rev. Mr. Osborne officiated at the closing obsequies at the grave. The deepest gratitude of Mr. and Mrs. Bongard is expressed to all their friends for their kindness and sympathy in their bereavement and especially to those who helped so willingly at Massasauga Park in the recovery of the remains and in the efforts at resuscitation.

CUPID'S COURT

COWAIN-BATEMAN.

A pretty home wedding was celebrated at 1030 this morning at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bateman, Ponton street, when their second daughter, Miss R. Goldie Bateman was united in marriage to Mr. William Richard Cowain of South Porcupine.

The Rev. S. A. Duprau was the officiating clergyman. During the signing of the register, Miss Ferns Moran sang a nuptial song.

After the ceremony had been completed, the party which included a number of relatives sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner.

An interesting statistics from Ottawa show that the largest proportions of young men and women are found in the western provinces.

TO WATCH CHAUFFEURS.

Ten New Provincial Constables Will Be Sworn In.

TORONTO, July 15.—Ten more constables are to be appointed by the Provincial Secretary's Department on Friday to assist in enforcement of the Motor Vehicles Act.

While all infringements of the act will be watched for, what was especially provocative of these appointments is the boast of a good number of chauffeurs, some with much experience, that they have taken out no license and will not do so.

Other drivers have passed parts, but not all of the necessary examination, and are driving motor vehicles.

St. Clements Is Liberal.

WINNIPEG, July 15.—St. Clements was added to the list of safe Liberal seats by additional figures received from that constituency yesterday morning.

Three promising politicians are in the race for the seat of Hay (Con.) 66, and Ross (Lib.) 50. With one poll to hear from where there are less than 30 names on the list, the vote now stands: Hay 882, Ross 1,025, or a majority of 143.

This makes the standing: Conservatives, 25; Opposition, 21. There will not likely be any change unless such should occur through some recounts which may be demanded.

Books Law on Election Day.

WINNIPEG, July 15.—Election day infringements of the Liquor Act have resulted in nearly twenty prosecutions being instituted by the Provincial License Department against Winnipeg hotels for having their bars open on Friday last.

The act provides that bars shall be closed all day during federal and provincial elections, and contrary to this a number of local bars opened for business when the polls closed on election day last week.

Shortis Is Now Insane.

OTTAWA, July 15.—It is learned here that Valentine Shortis, the Volneylied, Que., murderer of years ago, now in Kingston Penitentiary, has developed insanity, though of a harmless form.

It was the commutation of Shortis' sentence to life imprisonment that nearly wrecked a Government once, as vice-regal and social influence was alleged as having operated to save him from the gallows.

HAS A REAL BACKBONE

ADAM SHORTT KNOWS WHAT HE WANTS AND GETS IT.

Head of Canada's Civil Service Commission Is In One of the Most Delicate and Difficult Positions in the Public Employment—His Native Village Has Disappeared From the Map.

There are not many men, even in this land of "mushroom" growths, who lived to see extinguished the village in which they were born. Villages are usually slow growing and usually are persistent as well. Especially is this true in the old settled Province of Ontario.

The village in which Dr. Shortt was born is one of the old mill villages of the early days of Ontario. It was situated on the River Thames, not far below Springbank, which again is not far below the City of London.

London was chosen the site of the capital of Canada by Sir John Graves Simcoe, who was Governor of Canada at the end of the eighteenth century, and this portion of the province was settled early in the century that followed. Kilworth consisted of a mill, a store, and a half dozen houses.

There is a tendency to consider university men as narrow. Dr. Shortt is an outstanding figure among university men in the Dominion. Yet, whatever justification there may be for the tendency just referred to, there is no justification for regarding Dr. Shortt as narrow.

He came into public notice first as an economist, and perhaps the dry-as-dust reputation of political economy may have attached itself to him. But Dr. Shortt was not one of those men who was a calculator and economist.

It was while engaged in this branch of university work that he became a public figure in the Dominion. Soon after the organization of the Labor Department by the Dominion Government he was chosen as chairman of commissions under the Conciliation Act, and later under the Lemieux Act.

In his capacity of conciliated mediator and judge, he showed keen insight into labor troubles, and won a reputation as a skillful adjuster of relations between employers and employees. He entered upon this work known only as a college professor. By his efforts he became a national figure in the world of practical affairs.

Dr. Shortt has always been a student, and he is a student to-day. He was a close student when he was attending high school. He was a student while he was teaching school and putting himself through Queen's by the extra-mural course which has made that university a blessing to so many men, who have had the zeal for knowledge, but not the financial help to attend.

When he was teaching philosophy, he was delving into economics, and when he was teaching economics he was studying the problem of labor and capital at first hand in Government commissions. Now that he is a civil service commissioner, he is devoting his evenings in the investigation of the history of the Dominion. As civil service commissioner, Adam Shortt is the cynosure of the eyes of all politicians and of all civil servants. He is also the head of a staff of public servants. The principle of competitive examinations may be pushed too far in choosing Government employees, and there must be allowance made for other qualities than come out on a written test. The Minister and his Deputy have points of view which require consideration. But after all, it is quite impossible to "take the service out of politics" if you have men with backbone at the head of the Civil Service Commission.
