Manne THE COURIER FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1851. States Tressury Department, on the Communical Wavigation of the Republic for the last We have from this document, that the trade with the lightles North American Provinces is the only one which the United States energy on with profit to themselves, in their acceptation of the word. The Esperis from the States energy In 1848-49, the total value of man de Exported by the United States was $13,-In the last year the Imports into the United States were $178,138,318, the Exports $151,295, 720; leaving a balance against them of $26,230, 598. The United States Government is eager to 41,929 of these the B. N. American Colonies ok $2,013,161, or nearly one-sixth. In 1849which the British N. American Colonies took 84,671,081, or nearly one-fourth of the whole, an How far the domestic industry of the saffected by the merchandize sent into the United States from them, may be judged of by this fact; In 1849-30, the Imports from the Colonies into the States were $5.644,472-of this there was:— $4,922,808. The leading articles of this Expect Trade from the Colonies are enumerated in the following table, and against them are placed the total Exports from the United States to foreign countries of the same articles, in order to show how little influence they can have on the domestic trade of the United States;— | DESCRIPTION | inrindiction, is leading to the adoption of a variety of regulations on the subject. In Toronto, the City Council has, at one stroke, cut down the mber of taverns to two hundred; and adopted ringent segulations in regard to these. Some of the Township municipalities, in this County, have resolved to refuse all licenses. The Township of Markhaus has adopted what appear to me to be sensible regulations. They determine what they consider to be the legitimate object of hours of entertainment, and how they ought to be kept; and, having provided for the proper conduct of e, they grant licenses to all who show themselves prepared to keep a house in strict accordance with the requirements of the muniipal regulations. Intemperance is undoubtedly great and fearful evil; but, it seems to me. here is a great deal of cant and wronghedeless about many of the proposed remedies. To expense to cure a great moral and physical eril by the mere force of restrictive enactments, a since folly. For who does not know that every secuted custom always triumphs? Did not all the Sovereigns of Enrope attempt to put doug the use of tobacco 1 Did not Popes anathemalize those of their flock who used tobacco? And ad not the Grand Duke of Moscow prohibit of strance into the Russian dominions, under the sity of the knowt for the first offence, and death for the second ! Did not England try to exclude it by a prohibitive duty? Did not France; for a like purpose, make the article a Royal monopoly? And did not some of the Cantons of Switzerland make the use of it a capital offence? Well, in spite of all these becile restrictions, prohibitions, and death malties, the use of tobacco is now almost giversal in all these countries. Does not every nan, who knows anything of human nature know that intemperance is often an effect, and not as ignorant declaimers on the subject suppose, a rause, of all the follies that even the intemperate commit. Does a man become unhappy from the occurrence of some sudden calamity, he fires to the bottle. Here, intemperance is the result of a peculiar and pre-existing condition of the mind. There are thousands of cases of this nature, where intemperance is the unhappy result of a pre-existing derangement, and was not induced as the vulgar notion supposes, for a like he strong drink gradually acquired. Do not the neglected , our and the wretched fly to drink to frown the horrors of actual existence! The causes of intemperance lie far below the ken of that superficial quackery which proposes, as an all-sufficient remedy, mere repressive measures. If you would destroy intemperance effectually. you must go to the root of the evil. Remove the physical sufferings, and alleviate the metal anguish, which are the cause of intemperance. A Civic Dinner is to be given by the Mayor a Saturday. The question of Free Schools is just coming up for decision in this Province. By Free Schools, understand Schools supported by a tax on propesty, with the assistance of the Legislative grant, which all children, whether of rich or poor parents, are allowed to enter without the payment fany fee. Such Schools can now be established Western Canada in the discretion of the Trusees. In the town of Niagara, the principle has een practically applied. It is expected that the same course will be taken in this city, and no doubt in a few years we shall have a general system of Free Schools throughout the whole of Upper Canada.
