EFFECT OF COLOR.

Women Should Find the Shade That Sui's Them and Stick to It. Color has a marked influence on a highly sensitive nature. It is more than a simple matter of taste, which means that one color is liked better than another. There are some people who feel real physical discomfort when looking at a color they dislike. Uncongenial combinations of color affect me in that way. I could not sit comfortably in a room where a com-Color has a marked influence on fect me in that way. I could not sit comfortably in a room where a combination of purple and pink stared me in the face any more than if I were tete-a-tete with an uncongenial person. Why is if that one day our friend looks charmingly pretty and the next would be considered quite plain? Usually it is all a question of color. Really there are a very few women whe are faithful to the color of few colors that suit them. Unless, a woman is a thoroughly nondescript type, there will be one shade that suits her to perfection. Two or three others can be worn with indifference, and the great majority should be eachewed. By the way, it is generally thought that blue is exshould be eschewed. By the way, it is generally thought that blue is exclusively for fair people. Pink enjoys the same degree of favor with brunettes; but the truth is, nothing can be more charming for a dark person with a clear skin than blue, if the correct pale shade is chosen.—Exchange.

TO SAVE THE HANDS.

Use Mittens Made of Canton Flannel While Sweeping, Etc.

To protect the hands while sweeping I have never found anything else half so satisfactory as a pair of loose mittens made of extra heavy canton flantens made of extra heavy canton har-nel, fleeced side in. The strong points about these mittens are, first, the ma-terial from which they are made, un-less worn almost threadbare, is imper-vious te dust, thus keeping the hands clean and free from grit; the fleeced lining serves as a sort of cushion and affords double protection to the palms; being large and loose, they are easy to put on and prevent the hands from beput on and prevent the hands from be-coming red and swollen as they do when incased in tightly fitting gloves while sweeping; extending well over the wrist, they keep the dress cuffs clean; simple in shape, they can be made by even the most inexperienced needlewoman; they are chean one year. needlewoman; they are cheap, one yard of material being sufficient for two pairs of gloves; they are durable and wash both easily and well, considerations not to be undervalued. I have always used the white canton flannel aiways used the white canton hanner for the purpose, though, if preferred, the colored might be employed. Gray or brown would be very suitable.— Good Housekeeping.

DRESS HINTS.

Throughout your entire wardrobe avoid cheap, tawdry effects. If your shoes get very wet wipe off all dirt with a damp cloth, then rub them with sweet oil or cream. Alcohol diluted with water is generally an effective renovator of silk. If grease spots are to be removed, rub first with gasoline.

China silk waists should be washed, then starched in a thin starch and ironed while damp. This makes them look just like new.

Restore fine net veilings which have become stringy by sponging them with a weak solution of black starch. Pin them out to dry, keeping the edges perfectly straight.

Tucked chiffon, when crumpled and shabby looking, may be easily fresh-ened up by passing a hot iron over the wrong side of the material. This makes the tucks have the raised ap-pearance they had when new.

German Women In the Professions Back twenty or thirty years ago a few women began to call the attention of their sisters to all the evil and deof their sisters to all the evil and de-pendence the lack of education meant for them in a country where knowl-edge is accounted the highest good. Quiet, steady work followed, undis-mayed by legislative action and by public abuse and ridicule, until now elmost all the German universities are almost all the German universities are open in a measure to women, allow them degrees in various branches, and high schools and preparatory schools and courses exist in various cities. With the right to study the professions at home has come the right to practice hem, and there are a number of them, and there are a number of woni-en physicians and a few women law-yers in Germany today, something that would have been considered impossible thirty years ago.—Pilgrim.

The Hot Sand Bag.

We are all acquainted with the virtues of the hot water bag, but many persons are not aware of the fact that a sand bag is even better. The way to prepare it is this: Get some clean, fine sand, dry it thoroughly in a kettle on the stove, make a bag about eight inches square of fiannel, fill it with the dry sand, sew the opening carefully together and cover the bag with cotton or linen cloth. This will prevent the sand from sifting out and also enable the person using it to heat the bag quickly by placing it in the oven or on the top of the stove. After once using this no further recourse will be had to the hot water bottle.

Black chantilly lace is much employed in this season's millinery. It is particularly effective when it is used on white hats and combined with black estrich tips.

Shirrings are now being used more than ever. They appear both on waists and skirts of all materials thin enough to be treated in this manner. Touches of velvet cut out and applied on cloth are very smart. So also are bits of embroidered lace done in gold, silver or colors.

ACCESSORIES OF DRESS.

Sashes Are Again In Favor-Deep Kid and Silk Belts.

The deep belt has become an almost indispensable part of the costume. This belt is made of kid or silk, but kid is by far the smartest. It is shaped or else crushed. Some of the new belts are trimmed with buttons both front and back, and these are sewed on little and back, and these are sewed on intre-crosswise strap effects.

White kid belts, white kid gloves, white linen shirt waists and bolero suits—these are combined with large white French sailor hats draped with lace or chiffon veils. The whole forms one of the smartest of summer cos tumes and one which, better still, can additional fullness thus gained into a hip yoke if there is no hem to let down. Sashes are returning to favor, and quite a number of Parisian dressmakers are introducing them on the summer gowns they are making. But the new sash is anything but a simple affair. It is elaborately boned and knotted, and the ends are frequently trimmed with chiffon lace.

Every kind of linen, from the very coarsest to the finest, is in vogue, and never has Dame Fashion had so many varieties to place before her votaries. Loosely woven crashes flecked with color and coarse linens spangled with small rings of raised embroidery of the same color or of a darker shade are among the very newest designs.

The picture shows a traveling coat of blue cloth trimmed with white cloth revers and oriental embroidery. The hat is of soft straw, trimmed with a ribbon bow.

The Wenlock Stecks.
One of the last places in England, if not absolutely the last place, at which minor offenders were sentenced to the stocks is the little town of Much Wen-lock, in Shropsbire. There this ignominious though painless form of pun-ishment was practiced as recently as 1852. Innumerable towns and villages have preserved their stocks, but Wenmachine is peculiar from the lock's machine is peculiar from the fact that it is carried upon wheels and has a handle by which it may be drawn. These render the Wenlock stocks unique. It appears from the minute books of the borough magis-trates that the wheels were added shortly before the punishment was abolished, in order that the instrument abolished, in order that the instrument of the law could be drawn inside the guildhall—in an upper room of which it is preserved—out of the way of irreverent and mischlevous persons when it was not in use. However, the parish contribles after not person the constables, either not perceiving the object of the innovation or by way of increasing the public disgrace, when they had secured their prisoners in the machine drew it round for all to see.

for the man or the woman whe will invent a sock that won't wear out," said the man with an economical turn of mind. "I can't afford to buy a new pair of socks every time my toes poke a hole through a sock, and I hate to have my wife spend most of her time darning for me."

"I'm worse off than you," declared the economical man's unmarried friend, "for I've got no wife to darn for me. But," he went on, "I've found a way to make my socks last more than what you might call their normal life. It's simple enough. Don't wear the same sock on the same foot more than one day at a time. Put today's left sock on the right foot tomorrow, and so on. I've been, astonished at the amount of wear I've got out of my socks by this easy method. It has saved me many a darning bill at the laundry, and if you will try it your wife will have less darning to do."
