

Lord Northcliffe Sums Up The Ulster Case Seriously

Ulstermen Have Been Working While T. P. O'Connor Talked—Protestant Army Bigger Than the Boers—Many War Veterans in Their Ranks and Able General at Head.

London, July 16.—The following article is published from the pen of Lord Northcliffe, owner of the London Times and the London Daily Mail, who has just returned from Ulster:— "Many American friends have asked my opinion on the present revolt of the Scotch Irish Protestants of North Ireland, against what they consider to be their impending subjection to the Roman Catholic majority in the Parliament to be held in Dublin. "The Scotch-Irish are by nature better equipped for work than for talk. They have never taken the trouble to put their case before the world, preferring to depend for what they believe to be their liberty on abundance of rifles, ammunition, and machine guns. The Irish of the south, on the other hand, are fine orators and admirable writers, and such eloquent newspapermen as my friend, T. P. O'Connor, have fully informed the public of their views for many years. "Unfortunately, Mr. O'Connor's viewpoint failed to take into account the formation of Scotch-Irish mechanics, farmers, ministers, editors, lawyers, doctors, storekeepers, clerks, and others into an army that, in the opinion of European authorities, is the last word in military organization. "Larger Than Boer Army. "It is an army that already is much larger than that which the South African Boers put into the field in 1899, and, while it is true in point of numbers the Scotch Irish Protestants are the under dog as compared with the Roman Catholics in an insurrection, it is beyond question the fact that in military organization and commercial and business development, these practical, hardheaded men are well able to look after themselves. "They have no intention of submitting to what they call Home Rule, and my many visits to Ireland, including the one as recently as the present month, convinced me that, rather than submit they will fight to the last man, woman, and boy. "While Mr. O'Connor and his friends have been visiting and talking, the Scotch Irish have been organizing. Apart altogether from their vast stores of ammunition, their night and day signalling system, their automobile transport and great stocks of gasoline, they are equipped with hospitals far ahead of those used by the Japanese in their war with Russia, and their nursing and ambulance arrangements have met with the approval of interesting experts from all over the world. "Next Two Weeks Critical. "In their ranks are many veterans of our South African war, and their head is one of Earl Kitchener's ablest men. They are an unpaid, democratic force. The fight quality of the Scotch-Irish was tested in their revolt against King James the Second of England, when they overthrew his army, and the pages of our civil war show what part they played in leadership. "That such bitterness should exist between Protestant and Catholic is almost inconceivable to American and English people unacquainted with the check-by-jowl relations of Irish people in their beautiful, but unfortunate country. "The next two weeks will, in my belief, settle the question as to whether we are to have civil war between these two factions in Ireland, or whether they will compromise the matter between themselves by cutting out the province of Ulster and allowing it to become either a separate state on the American system or remain part of the British Parliament. "The disposition to blame Mr. Redmond on the part of some Irish-Americans is unjust. He is quite powerless in the face of the Scotch-Irish Army of Ulster."

LOSSES FORTUNE SANITY IN TEST

Son Asks that Aged Widow of Brazilian Planter Be Sent to Insane Asylum.

New York, July 17.—After losing a large fortune speculating in Paris, Mrs. Suzanna von Ischer de Morocvo is in danger of spending the rest of her declining years in an insane asylum. On the petition of Charles von Ischer, her son, Justice Guy, of the Supreme Court, yesterday designated a sheriff's jury to inquire into her sanity. Mrs. de Morocvo, who is more than eighty years old, is the widow of a Brazilian planter and inherited much wealth. After receiving her fortune she went to Paris to live and about ten years ago began a series of speculations that ended in the loss of all her money with the exception of a few thousand dollars. The son in his petition says that after her fortune disappeared she began writing him letters from Paris and Berlin, in which she stated she had been robbed and persecuted by her enemies. Afterward she came to this country, and on June 21, 1913, was sent to a sanitarium in Amityville, L. I., alleged to be suffering from senile dementia. The affidavits relate that after Mrs. de Morocvo lost her fortune she became penniless, so much so that she bought most of the articles she needed for her home in the five and ten cent stores. She also had a mania for locks, it is said, and would buy locks with three keys and throw two of them into the river. Mr. von Ischer says his mother still has $5,000 in bank deposits and $5,000 in bonds, and asked that a committee be appointed to look after her property.

PORTUGAL'S FUTURE AS GLOOMY AS EVER

Democrats Aiming for Return of Dr. Costa and Supreme Control.

London, July 16.—The second general elections under the republican form of government will take place on August 29. The first Parliament, which should have gone out of office on April 2, has been several times prorogued, and it is likely that it may extend its life until the very eve of the elections, although nearly a majority of the deputies have already left the city owing to the heat. Although it has done none of the things it had promised to do, when the present Premier, Dr. Bernardino Machado, succeeded Dr. Costa last January, and there seems to be no hope of their performing them in the time remaining, they are against dissolution because each member has been voted $100 a month, dating from April 2. The unfinished work consists of modifying the separation law and passing the budget. Nor is the outlook for the elections reassuring. Even Dr. Machado has gradually withdrawn from the coalition which had supported him, and is looking for a return of the Democratic party in full force with Dr. Costa at the head. The Democrats consider persons of all other parties to be enemies of the republic, and since the welfare of the republic is their supreme law, do not scruple to employ every method in order to defeat their adversaries, that is, the Evolutionists, the Unionists and the Independents. The Royalists do not count. No Royalist will present himself for election. The Royalists do not even exist, says the Premier in the Chamber of Deputies a week ago, in answer to a protest against the seizure of two Royalist newspapers by the police, Dr. Machado said: "As to the seizure of Royalist newspapers I will say that in Portugal, as there is no Royalist opinion and no Royalist party, there are no Royalist newspapers." It would have been truer to say that the Republicans have done their utmost to prevent the existence of any Royalist newspapers in Portugal. A few, however, have survived, and the Democrats object to the violence of their language. Certainly the language of the Lisbon press of all shades of opinion is too violent and personal, but it is not for the Democrats to complain, since their own Journal, O Mundo, is the worst offender in these respects. Wealth and Fashion at Newport's Big Show

FROM LEFT TO RIGHT MISS JANET FISH, MRS. FREDERIC NELSON, MRS. REGINALD C. VANDERBILT, MRS. GEORGE DAVENHETZ, AND MRS. STUYVESANT FISH

American wealth and fashion is depicted in the accompanying picture. As the camera man got busy at Newport he gathered in such lights of society as Miss Janet Fish, Mrs. Frederic Nelson, Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Mrs. George Davenport, and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, who are as prominent abroad as they are in the United States. Newport, R. I., has been the Mecca for the swell set for years and continues as popular as ever.

CO-RESPONDENT AIDS IN DIVORCE

Woman Named Furnishes Telling Diary and Letters to Mrs. Hollister.

New York, July 17.—A report of Alexander R. Gulick as referee, recommending a decree of divorce in favor of Mrs. Henry H. Hollister, will come before Justice Donnelly in the Supreme Court tomorrow for confirmation. Through the application of Mrs. Hollister for judicial approval it became known yesterday that the correspondent, whose name was withheld in the proceedings, furnished the evidence on which the referee decided against Mr. Hollister. It was said that the one-time member of the New York Stock Exchange had maintained an apartment for the witness in 1911 and at various later times up to the opening of the court action. A diary which the correspondent had kept from 1908 to 1912 contained a note of each call which Mr. Hollister had made, according to Mr. Gulick's report. The book was said to have held one page in the handwriting of Mr. Hollister giving his telephone number and directions for teaching him. A package of letters which had been carefully preserved by the co-respondent were entered in evidence. They are said to have shown in the words of Mr. Hollister his relations with the girl. The documentary evidence was supplemented by an alleged confession on her part, which was followed by testimony of maid employed in the apartment where she made her home. Mr. Hollister and his wife, who was Miss Hope Shepley, met in 1905 at a wedding in Providence and were married within a year. He was graduated from Yale in 1899. Tax collector Heath and the Selectmen of East Douglas are getting worried over the tax lists. They are not made out because the assessors are too busy having. Even the poll taxes, which should have been ready in May, are not ready yet.

Thousands Fight For $5,000,000 War Claims

Believe Far Larger Amount is Held in Treasury Against Amounts Due from Sale of Cotton and Other Property Seized by Federal Troops Fifty Years Ago.

Washington, D. C., July 16.—Several thousand residents of the Southern States are engaged in a picture fight before the Court of Claims in favor of Mrs. Henry H. Hollister, will come before Justice Donnelly in the Supreme Court tomorrow for confirmation. Through the application of Mrs. Hollister for judicial approval it became known yesterday that the correspondent, whose name was withheld in the proceedings, furnished the evidence on which the referee decided against Mr. Hollister. PRE-SEMITIC TALE OF FALL OF ADAM

Newly Discovered Fragments Are Probable Scene of Biblical Story.

London, July 16.—Dr. Langdon, the Assyriologist of Jesus College, Oxford, who recently translated important early Babylonian tablets found at Nippur and now in the library of the University of Pennsylvania, recovering thereby a pre-Semitic account of the Deluge and of the Fall of Man, which in many ways seemed to be the source of that in the Old Testament, today made a further interesting statement to the correspondent of the Montreal Gazette regarding the find. "In the fragment which I copied at Philadelphia last autumn," he said, "the university authorities have found two large fragments which join the original fragments. I have photographs of these, and it is very evident that the tablet is now complete and contains a complete pre-Semitic version of the Flood and also of the 'Temptation.' "In the fragment which I had at first translated as the story of the Temptation was broken away, and Eve, or the woman, did not appear, but from the remainder of my original fragment, I must infer that it is possible that a woman was concerned in the Temptation and in eating the forbidden fruit as well, and that almost certainly a serpent figured in the Temptation. "Consequently we shall soon have in our hands the most ancient version from which the entire Biblical account came. It will take some considerable time to do the work of translation, and it is possible that the photographs which I have will be inadequate, and that I shall be compelled to send to America for certain signs. Then the press may expect to make the most important theological announcement that has been made for a long period. "The little 'abbe' copies are exceedingly popular and the latest have thick tulle ruffles at the back of the neck.

AROUND GIBSON.

Painting of the I. C. R. Bridge Completed.—Personal Notes of Interest. Gibson, July 17.—Mr. William Johnston, C. E., who has been spending a few days with his mother, Mrs. E. Johnston, here, returned yesterday to Grand Lake, where he is employed in construction work. Misses Jean and Gertrude Kelly, who were here for the purpose of taking the Normal School entrance exams, returned last night to their home in Stanley. While here they were guests of Mrs. M. E. Clarke. Work has begun on the painting of the I. C. R. bridge. A crew of men are already at work and the bridge promises to present a much improved appearance when completed. Too many people spend today what they hope to earn tomorrow.

GIRL FIGHTS GIANT NEGRO BURGLAR

Her Screams Attract Another Young Woman Who Goes to Rescue.

New York, July 18.—When Miss Beulah Reich opened the door of her brother's apartment on the first floor at No. 1225 Madison avenue at half past five o'clock last evening, two long-fingered black hands reached in and fastened themselves about her wrists. In the scuffle that started then a big negro threw her to the floor and kicked the door closed. She fought as vigorously as her frail strength would permit, and as the giant negro held her throat with one hand so that she could not scream and beat her face with the other fist, she wriggled from under his great weight until her hands could touch the door. She brushed her knuckles and discolored her hands as she beat upon the door in the hope of attracting aid. When the negro caught her two wrists in his one free hand he relented his other hand by placing his knee on her throat so he could try to wrench the rings from her fingers. Then he turned to see if she could reach the door and with her heels she beat upon the wood. Across the hall, in the apartment of Jerome Hauser, wholesale soap dealer, the pounding was heard by Miss Rose Hauser, a young daughter. She opened the door of the Reich apartment and when she saw the negro upon Miss Reich she screamed and attacked him. He did not fear her fists so much as her loud voice, which already was attracting others. The negro abandoned his attack and fled from the apartment and out to the street. Miss Reich had been so severely beaten that she could not rise, but Miss Hauser followed and her cries caused a score of men to start in pursuit, close upon the heels of the young woman, before the negro was half a block down Eighty-ninth street. They followed Park avenue and then north to Ninetieth street, gaining in numbers all the time. The negro turned east in Ninetieth and disappeared into the basement of the apartment house at No. 75. There the crowd, which now numbered more than a hundred, was halted by the darkness. Miss Hauser wanted to go in after him, but men detained her until Policemen Harper and Sergeant Kensler arrived. She was right after them, and was there when they jerked a negro out of a dumbwaiter shaft where he had sought refuge. The negro, who said he was Albert Richardson, was taken back to Miss Reich's home, and she identified him as the man who had attacked her. By that time her brother, S. G. Reich, had returned home and had called physicians to attend her.

EARL RUSSELL IS FREED BY WIFE

Second Wife, Formerly Mrs. Mollie Somerville, Obtains Restitution of Rights.

London, July 17.—Mollie, Countess Russell, was yesterday granted a decree of restitution of conjugal rights against her husband, Earl Russell. The latter married twice, first in 1890 to Miss Mabel Edith Scott, daughter of Sir Claude Edward Scott. In 1901 he obtained a divorce in Nevada from his first wife, and married Mrs. Mollie Somerville, who had previously obtained a divorce from her husband. On his return to England Earl Russell was tried for bigamy by his peers of Westminster, and was sentenced to three months' imprisonment. Later he was granted a free pardon by the King.

CHEAP WEEK-END CABLES.

Reduction Urged by Dominion Royal Commission. London, July 16.—We were glad that the postal authorities and various bodies interested should rest until week-end messages of moderate length, say from ten to twelve words, can be transmitted throughout Your Majesty's Dominions for an inclusive charge of not more than five shillings per message. This important proposal for cheaper week-end cables is made in the third interim report of the Dominion Royal Commission. The volume deals with South Africa, and the commissioners point out that "it will only be when the price has been reduced to this level that any idea can be formed of the amount of social and non-urgent traffic which can be created, and that Your Majesty's subjects in the Mother Country and in the Dominions will enjoy those means of maintaining the family and national relations to which they are legitimately entitled."

IS NOT RESIGNING.

Hon. Mr. Crothers Will Hold His Post. Ottawa, July 16.—Absolutely nothing in it; I haven't the remotest idea of giving up my portfolio," was the declaration tonight of Hon. Mr. Crothers apropos of the Liberal yarn that he is to become Lieutenant Governor of Ontario and be succeeded by Hon. W. J. Hanna in the cabinet here. The opposition press tells Mr. Crothers about every six weeks, assigning him to different positions. He intends to stay where he is.
