MILBURN'S HEART & NERVE PILLS

Are just what every weak, nervous, run-down woman needs to make her strong and well. They cure those feelings of trembling and shivering that come on at a glance, make the heart beat strong and regular, give sweet, refreshing sleep and build up the system. They induce new life and energy into depleted, exhausted women who have come to think there is no cure for them.

They cure Nervousness, Stomachache, Headache, Dizziness, Indigestion, Pains in the Back, Stomach, and Bowels, and all ailments arising from a run-down system.

Price 50c. per box of 24 PILLS. All druggists have it. Sold by THE T. WILSON CO., LIMITED, Toronto, Ont.

MISCELLANEOUS.

"Is there really anybody in America who sincerely desired to have the election stayed?"
"Yes, the gallery gods."

Minard's Liniment cures Distemper.

"My son has taken to writing poetry. What would you consider a suitable birthday present for him?"
"Why, give him a few sheets of postage stamps."

Minard's Liniment for sale everywhere.

One evening the mother of a three-year-old girl said: "Bessie, I see you yawning. It is time you were in bed."
"I wasn't yawning, mamma," replied Bessie. "That was a new kind of snore."

Blind with Headache.

"I was so bad with headache that I could hardly see. I could get nothing to help me till I tried Milburn's Sterling Headache Powders and they quickly cured me."

JOSEPH MURPHY, Emerald, P. E. I.

"I suppose," said the advertising man, "you will want a position for your advertisement next to pure reading matter."
"Oh no," replied the advertiser, "as I'm after the swell trade you'd better put it next to the report of some society scandal or divorce case."

Minard's Liniment cures Burns, etc.

"Ever been on a training-ship?"
"No."
"They have a great system of education."
"How so?"
"They teach the boys, the cooks, the sailors, the ropes."
"What are the ropes?"
"Yes; even the ropes are taught!"

Cured of Constipation.

Miss Bessie Nason, Glover Hill, N. S., says: "I gladly recommend Lax Liver Pills, as they cured me completely of constipation before I had finished the third box."

Mr. Arthur Byrnes, Rock Hill, Ont., writes: "I was laid up with stiff joints for about four years, and could get no relief until I used three bottles of Hagar's Yellow Oil which cured me." Price 50c.

Bertie.—"Dab Jove! I'd like to choose those reporters!"
Weggie.—"Why, dear boy?"
Bertie.—"The other day the firemen rescued us fellows from the burning club-house, and now the papers have the account headed: 'A few things saved, but nothing of any value.'"

To the Weary Dyspeptic, We Ask This Question: Why don't you remove that weight at the pit of the stomach?

Why don't you regulate that variable appetite, and condition the digestive organs so that it will not be necessary to starve the stomach to avoid distress after eating?

The first step is to regulate the bowels. For this purpose

Burdock Blood Bitters

Has No Equal. It acts promptly and effectively and permanently cures all derangements of digestion.

Under the heading of "Papal Democracy," the Boston Herald said:—

"For the masses of mankind a sympathetic chord is struck in the notes concerning the humble origin and lowly family life of the new Pope. The papacy has always been an essentially democratic institution. Questions of birth and breeding, even if they ever cut well in the case of the incumbent for the chair of St. Peter, appear to play no part in the considerations. Here is a good man who has risen from far down the word the base of the social structure and is exalted upon a pinnacle that, in the eyes of an immense portion of mankind, is the highest place to which any human being can aspire. The head of the Roman Catholic Church outranks all secular aristocrats. Among these some of the proudest rank and noblest lineage bow in humility before him. In his presence no thought of his peasant stock is entertained. The man is valued for what he is himself, not for what his family may have been."

Non-Catholic Comment on the New Pope.

Unprecedented (says the Sacred Heart Review) was the choice of pope and appreciation called forth from all circles and classes on the occasion of the last election, and the death of Pope Leo XIII. Societies unanimously assumed funerals, and people who formerly looked askance at Rome and the ecclesiastical system of the Catholic Church, were manifested in their pulses of the head of that system, the Grand Old Man of the Vatican.

Surprising indeed, when one reflects how the papacy was regarded not long since among non-Catholics as this spontaneous tribute to Leo XIII. He has planned and surprised his own by the tone of non-Catholic editors and writers toward the present Holy Father, Pius X. His election and coronation have given rise to much comment, and it has been uniformly fair and even cordial. The whole matter, from the beginning of Leo's last illness up to the present, has been the means of raising the mind of the world to the Church of Rome. The fierce light of modern newspaper enterprise has been focused upon the Eternal City and the ecclesiastical system of sensation-mongers, the picture of the press has given us the picture of a man who has been through roughly editing and editing. It can not but have a telling effect upon the minds of all the fair-minded men and women, no matter what erroneous ideas they may have previously held with regard to the Catholic Church and its government.

The New York Sun said on the day following the election of Pius X:—
"From a religious point of view the members of the Conclave could not have chosen more wisely, when they raised Cardinal Sarjo to the Pontifical throne, had they, from the outset, been guided exclusively, as they are presumed to be, by the highest spiritual motives. Cardinals are men, and their souls are sometimes prompted by loyalty to personal friendships, or by a wish to secure the triumph of particular policies. When they shed themselves, however, engaged in the most solemn and momentous function that they are called upon to exercise, all minor and mundane considerations are apt ultimately to give way to a supreme, overmastering desire to promote the welfare of the Catholic Church and of mankind. In Cardinal Sarjo the Sacred College has found a worthy successor of Pius IX. and Leo XIII. It is the testimony of all who know him that the Roman hierarchy includes no more exemplary embodiment of piety and loving kindness."

Agate, the same paper said:—
"The election of Cardinal Giuseppe Sarjo, Patriarch of Venice, as the successor of Leo XIII. is the chair of St. Peter must be as wholly satisfactory to Roman Catholics as it is to people outside that communion. The new Pope's personal character is of the very highest. His reputation has grown entirely within the domain of Church life. He had marked himself out as a true bishop by the excellent administration and the reforms introduced in his patriarchate. Pius X. is not an old man as Pope Leo, 69 years, the age of his predecessor at his accession. This offers the probability of a long career for him in the papacy, even if he be too weak to expect that his reign will be as prolonged as that of Leo XIII. The 'prophecy of Malachi' describes the new Pope as ignis ardens. Pius X. may well be a 'burning flame' in the best sense for the Church."

These are only a few of the many non-Catholic tributes to the new Sovereign Pontiff. More significant perhaps than any praise of the personality of Pius X. is the general tone of justice, tolerance and even sympathy towards the papacy and the Church in general which characterized the utterances of the secular newspapers. The light of truth is certainly beginning to shine in places but lately darkened, if not with bigotry, at least with misconception and misunderstanding.

The Question of "Leakage"

At a meeting of the Manchester (England) Catholic Truth Society, recently, the Rev. Dr. Edmund, one of the speakers, gave a long list of figures and percentages to prove that despite the great growth of the Church, numerically, in England, there goes on a certain 'leakage' whose results are sufficiently grave to call for action. The contributory causes of this falling away are (according to Dr. Edmund): (1) The spirit of the age, insubordination to spiritual authority; (2) the press, bad reading and poisoned wells of information; (3) mixed marriages brought about by evil associations; and (4) the apathy of parents in not selecting the company for their children into those four evils the lecturer entered fully, and he added a fifth cause, the curse of intemperance.

We have no doubt the same causes are at work in this country to draw people away from the Church. Whether or not our 'leakage' is so grave as that which takes place in England is a question. Occasionally optimistic Catholics deem that there is any 'leakage' and they lay stress upon the successes to our ranks from Protestantism. But the world the flesh and the devil are busy even in the United States, and we have no doubt there are always Catholics, take warm or weak-kneed Catholics who, when circumstances favor it, are ready to drop away from the Church. The reported incidence to non-Catholics are proof of this. They always fall of 'fallen away Catholics' recorded in the Church through the work of the missionaries. Anything which makes for a steady drop of such drifting away is ready to be welcomed and encouraged.—S. H. Review.

The "Decadent" Latins Again.

People who bubble about the degenerate Latin race will not get much to sustain their theories in the magnificent physical moral and mental make-up of the late Pope Leo. As the representative of the aristocratic type of the Italian people, long life and many honors well performed of those who stand as a reflection of those who would have no believe that the Latins are decadent. But as the lower end of the social ladder there is evidence also to be found of the vigor of the Italian people. Great Henry Chesney, an American, writing of the inhabitants of Viareggio, an Italian sea-coast town, says:—

"A splendid people are these Viareggians—the women brave, and strong of body and soul, the men intensely grave, living in too imminent a shadow for the brief summer to dissipate. What makes the town really beautiful is the reality of human brotherhood. There is no pretense among these humble folk, almost every one is poor, but no one is ever to poor to share his poverty with a neighbor, whose sorrow he knows. There is a certain heart. If Fortunata's husband is to return from a ten months' absence, the very old grand mother brings the message smiling, and says: 'I'll drink a glass of thimble red wine in congratulation; if Maria's oldest boy is off for his first voyage, all the neighbors will be busy a week getting him ready and giving him counsel and encouragement; if Paul's baby is dead and there is not money enough for the funeral expenses some one will run about and collect; and all these things are done and done with a grace and a cheerfulness that is not to be seen elsewhere. Yet the type is superb, far finer than the Tuscan, far more intellectual than the Roman, borrowing something of the best of each.'—S. H. Review.

We are requested to state that 'The Art of Living Long,' which was recently reviewed in these pages is to be had only of the author, who, by the way, is the organist of the Holy Trinity Church, Milwaukee—Mr. W. F. Butler, 27 University Building. There are two editions of the work which are sold at $1.50 and $1.00. The price is low for so handsome a volume and so good a guide to a long, healthy and happy life as Lucia Casarini left to posterity.—Ave Maria.

Itching Skin

Distress by day and night—That's the complaint of those who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with Eczema or Itch Eczema—and outward applications do not cure. They can't.

The source of the trouble is in the blood—make that pure and this itching, burning, itching skin disease will disappear.

"I was taken with an itching on my arms which proved very disagreeable. I concluded it was salt rheum and bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. In two days after I began taking it I felt better and in a week I was cured. It is a long, healthy and happy life as Lucia Casarini left to posterity.—Ave Maria.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

cleans the blood of all impurities and cures all eruptions.
