Indignation at Port Saunders

Special Evening Telegram. To-day. PORT SAUNDERS. Yesterday was fine, clear and smooth, and the Home passed this and other ports, owing to anchor and gear being out of order, but called at Bonne Bay. There is a good wharf here and anchoring is unnecessary. Great indignation prevails in various settlements. Important mails, freight and many passengers were left behind. Owing to the near approach of the close of navigation, orders for winter necessities are delayed. Such action this season is condemned as reprehensible and inexcusable. The Government subsidizes for weekly mails, instead we get them fortnightly. THEMIS.

Fashions and Fads.

Accordion-pleated skirts continue to grow in favor. Some of the new muffs remind one of pillow slips. White-plush hats, trimmed with fur, are very smart. Draped mantles are much worn and are lovely in fur. Yellow-brown in all shades is a color much in vogue. Waists of one-piece dresses are bloused front and back. High necks are the latest improvements in combinations. The dominant quality of all corsets these days is flexibility. New albatross dressing sacques are accordion pleated all over. Short rose-colored matelasse jackets are worn with cloth skirts. Jersey-top petticoats, both wool and silk, are increasing in favor. Fur and shadow lace are often seen together on evening dresses. Handbags of moire or velvet are elaborately beaded or embroidered. The smart walking boot should have cloth tops to match the gown. One white-stitch blouse should be included in every winter wardrobe. Fur is an excellent finish for the neck and sleeves of an evening cloak. Moleskin bands on a violet charmeuse dress are a delightful combination. Dark and black silk petticoats are on the whole preferred for tailored wear. Striped porcelain buttons are used on some of the new-tailored suits. A great deal of allover embroidery is being used for the new brassieres. Many of the draped chiffon dresses have plicated-satin foundations. Bound button holes are appearing even on the children's gingham dresses. At the recent horse show in New York a great many slashed skirts were seen. There is a tendency to the use of many dull reds and blues in millinery for spring. Tiger cat is a fur much seen resembling tiger, but paler and less decidedly marked. Some of the very best tailored suits so far have been made of dark blue wool velvet. Velvet skirts slashed in front with black-lace petticoats are worn with short coats.
