A NEW USE FOR SHOES.

Anent my little article on the golden age for shoe lovers, a letter friend suggests a new use for shoes — telling character by them.

"Don't you think," she writes, "that shoes are next to hats in expressing personality?"

"At a college Halloween party several years ago I read palms for fun (to oblige a young cousin) and a good part of that palm reading I did by shoe reading. As each girl approached I glanced at her feet and in a moment I knew the man who was working their way and the ones who stood for prestige and cash. Then, of course, besides that I could tell traits of character by the condition of the shoes.

Then Shoes Show Extravagance and Vanity.

A sleazy silk stocking and a cheap shoe show right away that the owner is making a futile effort to imitate riches, and I put her down as extravagant and vain.

"If a white shoe shows signs of old dirt on it I make a mental comment of carelessness.

"Run-down heels, missing buttons, etc., are the result of a loose ditch in one's make-up.

"We Americans sit cross-legged so much that a tap shows up on a shoe pretty plainly, and if a mended shoe worn with an elegant costume it denotes a bread-and-butter struggle.

How Shoes Show Occupation.

When a person habitually wears his shoes to one side I know his occupation keeps him standing up a good deal, and the tired body will force the shoe over.

A dainty walker and dancer almost always interlards or wears one ankle against the other.

"A forcible character walks heels and toes and wears them both down. A small or slender foot probably has a heritage from aristocratic ancestors who rode a good deal. Vice versa, a large flat foot might indicate a sampan or soldier's forbears."

Shoes and Ancestry.

Evidently that explains the idea that a slim foot is aristocratic, but really must take issue with the universal truth of that. I have a suspicion that the size of the person has something to do with the size of the foot, as well as the habits of his ancestors. Isn't it natural that a slim person should have a slim foot to match, no matter what his ancestors did? In my own case, I wear a double A, but as far back as my ancestors are known unto me, I feel sure they walked more than they rode.

So ends the study of character by feet. You may find it interesting to look over your friends' (and perhaps your own) feet in the light of these revelations. Perhaps you will find some further suggestions to make.

Two South Sea Countries Are British Dominions.

BUT THEY DIFFER ENTIRELY.

The proposal made by Viscount Jellicoe that a powerful Far Eastern fleet be created, toward which Australia would be expected to contribute 20 per cent, and New Zealand five per cent, again calls attention to the growing importance of a far away corner of the world.

Usually, in our mental geography, Australia and New Zealand are conveniently grouped, yet one of the first surprises awaiting the tourist from the northern hemisphere is to find that Australia and New Zealand may not be regarded as two islands of like appearance, differing mainly in size; near neighbors which may be treated as a unit," says Herbert E. Gregory.

"New Zealand is nearly twice as far from Australia as Bermuda is from New York, and is not only east but also south.

"Four days' travel across a chilly sea is required for the traverse from Wellington to Sydney, and after exchanging chill midsummer climate of the New Zealand lake region for the heat of Adelaide, one readily accepts the evidence of the map that the Southern coast of the Australian mainland has the latitude of central New Jersey, while the southernmost of the three islands which comprise the Dominion of New Zealand occupies the position of Southern Newfoundland.

"In climate and vegetation the two dominions are as unlike as Norway and South Carolina. New Zealand is a land of mountains, gorges, rivers, and floods. The higher peaks of the South Islands are eternally snow-capped and the glaciers of its southern Alps rival those of Switzerland. The surrounding seas are too cold for corals. Among the mountains of the North Island volcanic fires are still active, and the geysers and hot springs are little less impressive than those of the Yellowstone Park. The aboriginal inhabitants of New Zealand, at the time of their discovery by Captain Cook, were the most advanced of all the South Pacific races, while the aborigines of Australia are the lowest in intelligence of all human beings.

"Australia is in no sense inferior to New Zealand in geographic interest, but lofty peaks, profound canyons, and active volcanoes are lacking; its rivers are unimpressive and its permanent lakes small and few in number; it is a continent composed of plains interrupted by ridges and mountain knobs."

The Failure of Bolshevism.

Bolshevism has ceased to be the form of government which caters to the laboring classes and is ruled from below. It has become autocratic. It has made the ten-hour, or in some trades the twelve-hour day, the rule. It does not allow to labor the privilege of working or not at its own pleasure. In fact it makes no reckoning of the rights of labor. If a laborer refuses to work, or loafs on his job, he is shot. Those who believe that Bolshevism represents the most advanced socialism in action, and that socialism means the leveling up of labor and the leveling down of everything else, should note the course of events in Russia, to-day. —Family Herald and Weekly Star.

IN THE OLD TIME.

When I was young a shilling was pretty hard to get; for hours a man went drilling in pools of honest sweat, before he'd fairly earned it, and when he drew his tin, 'twas seldom that he burned it or idly blew it in. At Christmas time he'd holler and make some kopecks fly; and he would spend a dollar the Fourth day of July. And when the three-ring circus came lumbering to town, with grafts and fakes to work us, he'd holler and blow a crown. Then, having had his riot, he to his work returned, and, strictly on the quiet, he picked all he earned. And when life's winter found him, it didn't find him broke; he'd comforts all around him, and greenbacks in his poke. But now such sane endeavor, such sense, we vainly seek; the Fourth is with us ever, and Christmas once a week. The money's coming easy, with equal ease it goes; the toller, flip and breezy, just blows, and blows, and blows. With all wise rules disgrusted, he blows his wad to-day; cheer up! we'll soon be busted! a panic's on the way!

World's Largest Bible.

The world's Bible, to which reference has already been made in our columns, weighing three quarters of a ton, is at present being carried from place to place, making a tour of the entire globe.

A specially constructed motor was made for the purpose of carrying and displaying this great book.

This motor-car has an attractive pupil and platform, and equipped with the great Bible and its showman, is the principal feature of a world-wide publicity campaign for the popularization of the Holy Scriptures that will presently visit Canada.

The book is remarkable in other respects than its size, for every one of the 12,000 texts from Genesis to Revelations are hand-written and signed by individual Christians as a testimonial of their faith.

The idea was originated by the founder of the Bible Crusade, Mr. William Henry Fry, a grandson of the great English Quaker philanthropist, Mrs. Elizabeth Fry, and is part of the plan to make the year 1920 "Bible Year" throughout Christendom.

The volume now rests on a blue velvet-covered platform under a canopy of Union Jacks at the showrooms of the Oxford University Press, the constructors, at Amen-corner, London.

Standing on end the book is more than 5 feet 2 inches high and nearly 3 feet 6 inches wide. When opened flat it measures 7 feet 10 inches across.

Twelve large goat skins were required for the binding, which is in rich red levant morocco leather of the finest quality. The front cover is surrounded by the arms of the counties of England and Scotland inscribed in blue morocco and decorated with gold.

A panel of royal blue morocco containing the royal arms in the centre of the front cover is inscribed with the heraldic colours. The book contains 175 sheets of stout paper boards. It is sewn with twine in the old-fashioned way round six stout hempen ropes (each rope containing seventy strands of hemp), much thicker than the ordinary clothes-line. Four of these ropes are laced into millboards half an inch thick, which form the foundation for the leather covering.

In order to hasten the handling of the book during the various processes of binding, a staging was erected, from the cross-beams of which depended an iron chain and pulley block, without which it would have required six men to manipulate the volume.

No fewer than 4,476 copies of the smallest Oxford Bibles could be contained within the compass of this enormous book. About 2,000 of the texts are at present complete. Their writers vary from bishops and other Church dignitaries to laymen and women.

Why Dancing is Popular.

Moral, and elderly, people are declaring a judgment of death against the dancing craze which has taken possession of society since the war. "I do not think they will succeed," says Sir Phillip Gibbs, the English war correspondent. "There is some natural, primitive and healthy instinct behind this call to the dance. It is, perhaps — almost certainly — the reaction of youth against the tragedy of war and the pervading gloom of years when sacrifice was demanded by the gods. It is the dance of life following the dance of death, and a joyous proclamation of youth's divine right against unnatural discipline."
